Outside Store, Gone
When Mom Returns

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) —The six-week-old daughter of a tragedy-riddled couple was kidnapped from her carriage outside a crowded department store where her mother was shopping.

"It doesn't seem to be a kidnapping for ransom," said State's Atty. Abraham S. Ullman. "It looks like it was done by a person who wanted a baby."

Police said they suspected a stocky, dark-complexioned young woman of taking blue-eyed, brown-haired Cynthia Ruotolo. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ruotolo, who have also an eight-year-old boy and 13-month-old daughter. Two previous children died, one in an accident; the other of pneumonia.

RUOTOLO is a salesman who starts a new job with a paint firm Monday. He quit his old job last week because it called for a transfer to Boston.

Mrs. Ruotolo said this was the first day she or the baby had left their $18,000 home in a new development here since the birth. She had gone shopping with a neighbor and left the child in its gray carriage outside the store.

She said she made 10-minute checks on the child and when she went out the second time, the baby was gone.

The 33-year-old mother dashed back into the store, crying: "My baby is gone! My baby is gone!"

STORE OFFICIALS called police after announcing over the store inter-communication system that the child was missing. The FBI promptly jumped into the case, by virtue of a new federal law which permits immediate federal action in kidnapping.

Nixon Meets Advisers, Tells Plan for Whistle Stop by Air

WHITTIER (AP) —Vice President Nixon conferred with his advisers here Saturday and a spokesman said he would make what might be called "a whistle stop campaign by air."

Nixon, who returned from Washington because of his father's critical illness, met with James Basset, who has taken a leave of absence from his position as city editor of the Los Angeles Mirror-News to become the vice president's press secretary; Jack Brown of Long Beach; Ray Arbutnot of La Verne and Robert Finch of Los Angeles. The latter three are California Republican leaders who will act as advance men for the Nixon campaign.

Basset said they discussed cities in which appearances would be made.

Asked if Nixon is going to make any kind of whistle stop campaign, Basset replied: "It will be mostly by air. You might call it air whistle stop. But he'll make fairly full dress appearances."

Depending upon the condition of his father, Frank A. Nixon, 77, the vice president plans to leave for Chicago Thursday after addressing the American Legion's National Convention in Los Angeles.

Nixon's father rallied Saturday.

Warrens Turn Home

NEW DELHI (AP) — U. S. Chief Justice Earl Warren laid the cornerstone of the new American Embassy building here Saturday and said he and Mrs. Warren will return to the United States today.

L.A.C. Says:
Weak Answers

County Manager Art Will was asked why county residents should be asked to pay for an auditorium in downtown Los Angeles. He replied that it was thought it would be self-supporting because of parking lot revenue that was expected. He was then asked: "Why then does not Los Angeles finance its own project without asking the rest of the county to do so?" Mr. Will apparently had no answer to that, according to those attending the session.

When the auditorium scheme group starts depending on parking revenue to show how the $51 million project will be self-supporting they are on shaky ground.

JANIS BIMANIS... Security Blueprinted in His Future

JANE BIMANIS OWNS a neat white house at 2223 Fashion Ave.

The home is well furnished. In one corner of the pleasant living room stands a handsome television set, in another an expensive spinet piano.

Parked outside in the driveway is a late model car.

Such material possessions are not necessarily the ultimate desire in this world.

But they are what a workingman works for and Janis Bimanis is a workingman, an electrician at the local Ford Motor Co. plant.

To other American workmen, such comforts are just part of the normal scheme of things.

But Bimanis can't take his present prosperity for granted.

SIX YEARS AGO, he was in Germany, daughter, Liza, in a displaced persons camp—living with his wife, Elza, and their young son, sharing a small room with two other families.

He was a worker then, too, doing about what he is doing now for Ford. But then his labor just bought space in a crowded room in a DP camp—and one bottle of skimmed milk a day for his child.

Even in his native Latvia before the Russians moved in in 1944 and he moved out just ahead of them, Bimanis' standard of living didn't approach his present affluence.

And there, he was relatively well off as head electrician in a Ligatne paper mill.

Then, in those good times, few workers owned their homes. Virtually none had automobiles.

WHEN THE BIMANIS family arrived here in 1950 (under the sponsorship of the First Methodist Church), all they had was the clothing they wore.

Now on this Labor Day, six years later, Janis Bimanis can sit back in the security of his comfortable home and enjoy the bountiful fruits of his labor.

And Tuesday he will go back to that labor in the factory—the American factory prospering by building luxurious automobiles for American workers.

NEITHER BAIR, 23, nor his wife, Alice, 25, was injured in the accident.

Bair's mother, Mrs. Clyde F. Bair of the Long Beach address, said the young couple and their baby were on their way back to Bob Jones University, in South Carolina, where Joseph Bair is a student. They had spent the summer in Long Beach, and had stopped off near Salida for about 10 days to attend a church seminar for youth camp instructors, Mrs. Bair said.

ALSO IN the car were three other students on their way to the university. One of them, identified as Don Kinney, 20, of Long Beach, suffered cuts and bruises.

Bair's mother said her granddaughter was riding on Kinney's lap when the one-wheeled trailer being pulled by the car skidded and caused the station wagon to overturn.

Valuable Mink Coat Blows Out of Car Window

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP) — A mink coat from Washington, D. C., was at large in San Luis Obispo County Friday.

Arthur B. Hill, assistant director of the U. S. Treasury's savings bond division, told highway patrolmen here his wife's coat vanished from their car as they drove along the wide South Coast highway north of here.

Patrolmen speculated that the coat, estimated to be worth several thousand dollars, had blown out the window. It bears the initials of Mrs. Hill, M.S.H.

Surprise Scrutiny
Ordered by Senate;
Will Start Sept. 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Elections Sub-committee announced Saturday it will make a "deep and thorough scrutiny" of the presidential and senatorial campaigns—and the money spent on them.

In a surprise move, Chairman Gore (D-Tenn.) summoned the Republican and Democratic national chairmen and other top level political figures to public hearings Sept. 10 and 11.

He said the hearings will launch a study that will continue right through the campaign.

"I PLEDGE that the conduct of the subcommittee will be fair and impartial," Gore said in a statement announcing his plans.

He made public virtually identical letters to GOP Chairman Leonard W. Hall and Democratic Chairman Paul Butler summoning them to the Sept. 10 hearing and informing them the subcommittee will want statements of the "exact amount of funds" each national committee has on hand as of Sept. 1.

Thereafter, the letters said, "the subcommittee study will require an identification of all contributions and expenditures made."

THE LETTERS also asked for the "stated opinion" of the chairmen on the need for new and better election laws, which the subcommittee has the duty of helping to enforce. Each letter said the chairman was "invited and requested to appear" Sept. 10.

Gore said there are two "primary purposes" behind the subcommittee's continuing study:

"1. Honest public reporting of campaign contributions, election

THANKED BY IKE

President Eisenhower presents an autographed program to 12-year-old Jo Ann Dougherty of Pennsylvania, N. J., at a White House ceremony marking the issuance of a special Labor Day stamp. Jo Ann is the great-granddaughter of Peter McGuire, who is credited with being the founder of the holiday.

Labor Day Founder's
Kin President's Guest

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 12-year-old New Jersey girl who had invited President Eisenhower to a Labor Day observance in her home state was Eisenhower's guest Saturday at a White House ceremony. "I hope you think this will substitute," he told her.

The younger, Jo Ann McGuire Dougherty of Pennsylvania, N. J., is a great-granddaughter of Peter J. McGuire, who is credited with having proposed Labor Day as a national holiday.

Jo Ann and eight other McGuire descendants attended ceremonies this morning in the White House rose garden marking the issuance of a new 3-cent Labor Day postage stamp.

THE STAMP will go on sale Monday at Camden, N. J., after an observance near the grave of McGuire, who also was co-founder of the American Federation of Labor.

Jo Ann had invited Eisenhower to Camden and was invited by the President to come here instead.

After addressing the rose-garden gathering, Eisenhower went over to the girl, shook her hand and said:

"Thank you very much for the invitation. I hope you think this will substitute."

JO ANN AND other McGuire descendants had their pictures taken with Eisenhower. In the group were two daughters of the labor leader, Miss Lillian McGuire and Mrs. Kathryn Caya of Collingswood, N. J.

Jo Ann's parents were present as well as her 15-year-old sister, Barbara. So was Mrs. Iris Russell and her 8-year-old daughter, Kathleen.

Gussy Moran Plans to Annul 3-Week Marriage

NEW YORK (AP) — Former tennis star Gertrude (Gussy) Moran and her husband of three weeks, Thomas Corbally, have separated and she is planning an annulment, it was disclosed Saturday.

Corbally, 40, vice president of an industrial design firm, verified the separation and Gussy's plans for an annulment, adding: "I'm very unhappy about it. I still love her."

Miss Moran, now a sports broadcaster for radio station WMGM, could not be reached Saturday night. A spokesman at the radio station said, however, that she had confirmed the separation from Corbally.

It was the first marriage for the 32-year-old Miss Moran.

Fire Rages in Mountains

IDYLLWILD, CALIF. (AP) — Nearly 300 firefighters Saturday encircled a raging brush and timber fire in the rugged Mt. San Jacinto watershed some 16 miles southeast of here, but the blaze still was out of control.

The fire, which broke out Thursday, has burned out 1,300 acres. Fire fighters hoped to control it within a few hours, but feared winds might rise and fan the flames.

No damage to homes or other property was reported.

Tennessee Troops Rush to Torn City

Gov. Clement Blasts Shouting Mob as Power Grabbers

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP) — A tear gas barrage turned back an angry mob advancing on the courthouse in this racially torn town Saturday night and minutes later 100 state patrolmen arrived to enforce law and order.

But during a segregation rally that followed, two shots fired by an unknown sniper came through an open window at a courthouse office, forcing three persons to drop to the floor. No one was hurt.

Gov. Frank Clement dispatched the troopers here and also ordered the National Guard to follow to prevent bloodshed. The guardsmen were expected by today.

IN A SPECIAL radio and television broadcast from the capitol at Nashville Saturday, Clement said he "cannot sit back as governor and allow a lawless element to take over... if they can take over Tennessee because of one issue, they can take it over on others. It may be your home they take over next."

Just before the troopers swept into town with sirens blasting and red lights flashing, a shouting mob of some 300-400 persons marched on the courthouse as thunder and lightning split the overcast skies, after a hot, sultry day.

A thin line of 30 auxiliary police and regular officers stood their ground as the crowd advanced, then fired six tear gas shells, one by one, at the feet of the massed demonstrators who broke and ran for cover.

THE TEAR GAS and the arrival of the highway patrol apparently averted further trouble and the one-hour segregation rally that followed went off with little display of emotion from the crowd.

The speeches of the pro-segregation leaders also lacked the fiery tenor of two others, one who was jailed, who protested bitterly against the admission of 12 Negroes to Clinton's previously all-white high school.

Arabs to Ask for Ouster of Truce Chief

CAIRO (AP) — The Arab nations intend to ask United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to fire Palestine Truce Mediator Gen. E. L. M. Burns on grounds he is "completely biased toward Israel," the semi-official Mideast News Agency said Saturday night.

The agency, in a report from Damascus, quoted an official Syrian source as saying Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan are considering presenting a joint demand to Hammarskjold calling for Burns' immediate ouster.

The report could not be confirmed officially, either here or in Damascus.

BURNS, A CANADIAN, has been under heavy fire from Arab newspapers for the past two years for his handling of the frequent flareups between Israel and her Arab neighbors. He has been criticized particularly in connection with the U.N. Security Council's debate on the Israeli attack on Gaza last year in which 63 Arabs were killed.

Burns told the Security Council then that the attack was precipitated by Arab infiltration into Israeli territory.

L.A.C. SAYS:

All they have to do is look at the Pershing Square parking project in downtown Los Angeles to prove that parking does not pay where so large an investment is involved. The city of Los Angeles has not received a cent of income in the five years of operation of that project, for which it was to receive a share of the profits.

Adequate parking facilities are an essential part of a healthy business district. A city is often justified in subsidizing such facilities. It usually gets its money back from additional taxes. But why should Long Beach subsidize a parking project for Los Angeles? That is a question neither Mr. Will nor any of the supervisors has been able to answer. In particular, the Long Beach supervisors, Burton Chace and Herb Legg, have failed to give a reasonable answer to that question.

When it was shown that no auditorium in the nation makes anywhere near as much money as is promised for the L. A. scheme and when it was shown that neither Chicago nor San Francisco auditoriums can seat half as many people as will the new Sports Arena being erected in L. A. Exposition Park, this parking lot revenue gag was offered in explanation of how the scheme will pay out.

Last Tuesday the two Los Angeles supervisors, Hahn and Ford tried hard to get the $150 million road bond issue on the November ballot. Chace and Legg opposed it on the basis there was so much opposition to the project it was almost sure to lose—so why put it on the ballot? We must assume they are equally sure a L. A. auditorium bond issue would lose by county vote—but they are going ahead to spend the money—WITHOUT A VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

It is understandable that supervisors whose constituents are almost entirely within the city limits of Los Angeles would be subservient to Los Angeles interests. But it is disturbing to find Herb Legg and Burton Chace giving in to those same interests. They are doing so if they go along with the $51 million scheme without presenting it to a vote of the people. The people in the county outside Los Angeles city will pay 60 per cent of the cost of the project. Who will say they get anywhere like 60 per cent of the benefits? There is no sound reason for not presenting this project to a vote of the people of the county before they are encumbered with the obligations which should be placed on the shoulders of Los Angeles—if that city wants them.—L.A.C.

expenditures and political practices, and

"2. The preparation of constructive and corrective legislation in the next session of Congress."

"It will not be the purpose of the subcommittee to discourage legitimate campaign contributions," Gore's statement said. "On the contrary I hope that public enlightenment on the tremendous cost of an election campaign of today will encourage unselfish and reasonable contributions."

"It may be that some campaign contributions that require secrecy either as to source or size will be discouraged, but it is my hope that these will be more than offset by public spirited contributions made as a result of the knowledge that our study will bring forth."

In addition to the national party chairmen, Gore said he is asking Sens. Schoepel (R-Kan.) and Smathers (D-Fla.), chairmen of the Republican and Democratic senatorial campaign committees, to testify Sept. 10 and to provide additional campaign information.

GORE SAID many persons believe "an honest election law" can be enacted only in a non-election year. This was one of the arguments heard when Congress adjourned without acting on pending legislation to revise the election statutes.

"I hold the view," Gore said, "that our elections can only be subject to a deep and thorough scrutiny during the progress of an election."

"To this end we will examine the conduct of the current campaign during its progress rather than after the election is over, and seek to bring to public view the fullest possible disclosure in the hope that an enlightened and aroused public opinion will vigorously support whatever legislative program the study may reveal as necessary."

cases. Formerly the FBI had to wait a week.

State police and New Haven police also joined the search for the woman, whose description was pieced together by police receiving it from shoppers who called police headquarters hours later.

All busses and automobiles were stopped and searched in a massive police operation.

Four years ago, the Ruotolos lost a daughter, Ruth, who died at the age of three weeks of pneumonia.

Two years ago, a son, Gary, three weeks old, died in an accident. A little neighborhood boy wandered into the house, picked up the week-old child and dropped him. He died of a brain injury two weeks later.

Both parents made dramatic radio appeals for the return of their child Saturday night.

SPEAKING WITH deep emotion, though tearless, and pausing between words, Mrs. Ruotolo made this appeal from her home:

"This is the mother of the baby that was stolen this afternoon. I pray for the safe return of the baby. Please don't leave the baby unattended. We hope to God that somebody will give us some information as soon as possible."

Her 33-year-old husband took the microphone then and said:

"I am not a man of means but, if it's money you want, take all we've got. We need the baby very badly because of other instances in our family (the deaths of two other children). I haven't lost faith in human nature."

Police said there were no ransom notes, no telephone calls to the shaken parents.

Ullman said if the kidnaper wanted money she had plenty of time to leave a ransom note or to otherwise contact the parents.

Hours after the kidnapping, people filed into the police headquarters here with reports of the woman police sought.

The reports came from shoppers, passers-by or people sitting in cars in the parking lot.

Police said some reported they saw the stocky woman holding the child awkwardly in the store's parking lot.

State Police Maj. George Reemer said this description was pieced together from the various reports:

The woman is "on the stocky side." She is about 35 years old. She is white, 5-1, 125 to 130 pounds. She has shoulder-length brunette hair, has a dark complexion and was wearing a royal blue, low-cut dress with a white or yellow print. She wore low, ox-blood shoes.

MRS. STEVE RUOTOLO
"My Baby Is Gone"

REEMER SAID one woman reported that she saw a woman answering this description sitting on the bench in the parking lot near where the baby's carriage was about 1:20 p.m. Mrs. Ruotolo said it was about 2 p.m. when she discovered that her baby was missing.

Others said they saw the woman walking in the parking lot with the child, awkwardly settled in her arms. They said she was noticeable because of the contrast in the complexion of the woman and the child and also because of the awkwardness with which she carried the child.

Tear Gas, Bullets Fly in Race Row; Gov. Clement Orders Out Troops

two shots into the office of County Judge J. D. Yarnell during one speech and Capt. Leo Grant of the National Guard, who organized the auxiliary police, Yarnell and Attorney Buford Lewallen, son of the mayor, hit the floor.

Grant said the shots apparently came from a building about 100 yards away but two investigating officers found no trace of the sniper. Grant said a check of the office would be made to find the slugs.

The crowd, which gradually melted away after the rally ended, apparently didn't notice the shots.

The speakers urged white parents to keep their children home from classes when school resumes Tuesday. They also called on the Tennessee legislature to enact laws aimed at keeping the races segregated.

Criminal Court Judge Raulston Schoolfield of Chattanooga, Tenn., the main speaker, did not appear.

Four persons were placed under arrest during the night, the last at the height of the tear gas barrage. He was Roy Edmonds, about 50, of Clinton.

The highway patrol cars, each carrying about two troopers began arriving about 8:15 p.m. and drove up to the courthouse where an uneasy quiet reigned in what moments earlier had almost become a battleground.

The patrolmen had assembled three miles outside of the city to be briefed before they moved in. They parked double on two sides of the courthouse.

Their automobiles blocked two of the streets around the courthouse square but left the main street open to traffic.

With the smell of tear gas still in the air, the segregation rally protesting the admission of 12 Negro students to Clinton High School got under way with the speakers pleading for quiet and order.

The crowd which had dispersed at their feet swelled to 1,000 as T. L. Mitchell, executive vice president of the States Rights Council of Tennessee, cried from a sound truck that "you are playing right into the hands of the enemy." He said he had come here to "tell the community how it can eliminate integration."

Most of the patrolmen stayed by their cars as the meeting got under way without disorder, keeping their arms holstered although a force of 44 auxiliary police augmented the 12 regular officers had displayed weapons openly in subduing the mob.

In ordering the troopers and guardsmen to Clinton, Clement said after a top-level conference at his mansion in Nashville that he was "not doing this to promote integration or segregation. I am doing this to promote law and order—to preserve the peace."

Clement acted on urgent appeals from Clinton and Anderson County officials to prevent bloodshed "before the night is over."

The cause of the turmoil was the admission last Monday of 12 Negroes to the Clinton High School, marking the deepest penetration of mixed schooling into the old south since the Supreme Court's historic order of 1954.

But even before the governor acted, the town declared itself in a state of emergency and mobilized in a force of volunteer and regular police under the direction of a tough paratrooper veteran personally manning a submachine gun.

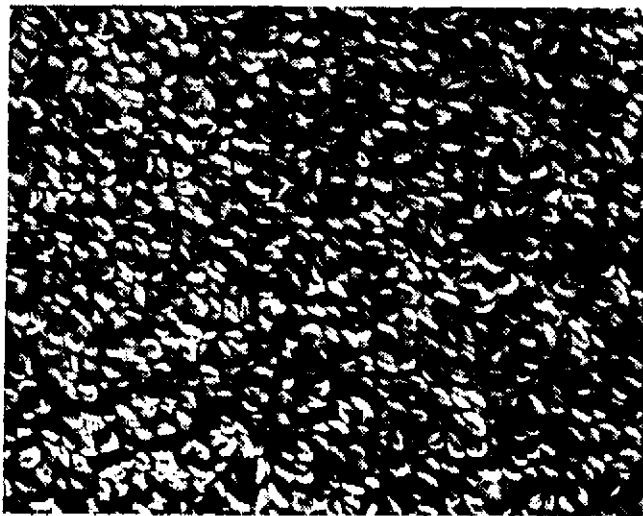

The volunteer force was armed with riot guns, shotguns and tear gas guns. Capt. Leo Grant of the National Guard, their commander, said "Don't shoot unless ordered to do so by the uniformed police."

The volunteer police force leader, Grant, is a 29-year-old former infantry captain who was wounded on Heartbreak Ridge in Korea while fighting with the 31st Rifle Company.

The highway patrol units ordered in by the governor were under the command of the state's public safety commissioner, Hilton Butler.

Twanging Their Ukes, They 'Played' Florida

Two Long Beach college youths have just returned from a 9,000-mile tour of America during which they "conquered" Florida—all for only $20 and a song.

They are Jim Loomis, 20, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Loomis of 821 Molino Ave., and Mike Baehr, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Baehr of 4216 E. 2nd St.

Loomis is a junior and math major at Long Beach State College. Baehr, also a junior, is a business administration major at the University of California.

The pair left here June 21 clad only in Bermuda shorts and carrying two suitcases labelled "At Least Wave."

BUT THEY ALSO carried a song—and each was armed with a ukulele.

"We're tired and we're hungry, we've thumbed our way from Long Beach," they sang to the tune of "Old Faithful." "We'll wash your car, mow your lawn, do your dishes, we're subject to your wishes . . . for room and board for just one night."

Their luck would have as founded the professional hitchhiker. So would their reluctance to ride too far.

"We had to turn down a fine air-conditioned ride with a fellow who insisted on going straight to Dallas," Loomis recalls. "We were taking the scenic route and wanted to see the Carlsbad Caverns."

Thumbing and singing, they had no troubles in obtaining rides (most of the people had late model cars), food and lodging.

"Most people took us in for a night's food and lodging to listen to us talk," Baehr said, "but we did some chores such as washing and car washing in return for food and beds."

Girl, 11, Flees Rather Than Live With Mother

Florida police intensified their search late Saturday for an 11-year-old girl who reportedly fled her father's home rather than go with her mother to live in Long Beach.

The child, Laraine Reiss, had been living with her father, Hugh Reiss, 45, airport manager at West Hollywood, Fla., and was scheduled to join her mother, now Mrs. F. B. Phelan of Long Beach.

REISS REPORTED the child missing at 7:45 a. m. Friday, just 15 minutes before she was to have been surrendered to her mother.

Mrs. Phelan told Circuit Judge Harold R. Vann she believed the child had been harmed and "she may be dead in the Everglades."

Reiss offered to take a lie-detector test and insisted he had nothing to do with her disappearance.

Mrs. Phelan said the girl was afraid of darkness and wouldn't have left the house at night, "especially without her dog, which is still there."

REISS AND HIS wife were divorced on April 12, 1955, and the child was to spend alternate years with each parent. At a hearing last Wednesday, Laraine became hysterical and said she did not want to go with her mother.

OPENING DAY 40 Miles Out, He Gets Dove

Skipper Pete Peters of the Fisherman II, which works out of Pacific Sport Fishing Landing, hated to miss the opening of the dove-hunting season Saturday—but work was work.

Then while trolling for albacore 40 miles at sea, off Santa Barbara Island, a dove alighted on the rail of the Fisherman II. Peters grabbed a gun and went a-hunting—successfully.

Such incidents are nothing new for the Bellflower mariner. Last year, 13 miles at sea, he spotted a rabbit floating in a kelp bed. The bunny met the same fate as the dove.

Jimmy Utley and Ex-M.D. Held as L.B. Abortionists

An alleged abortion mill at 1146 Pine Ave., which was raided Friday night by Los Angeles detectives was part of a chain that earned for its two operators as much as one-half-million dollars a year, police said Saturday.

It was the second such raid in Long Beach by Los Angeles police within seven months. Booked at Los Angeles Central Jail were Jimmy Utley, 55, of Van Nuys, long-time Los Angeles-area underworld figure, and Leonard M. Aarons, 50, of Burbank, former M.D., whose license was taken away by the State Medical Board in 1952.

The two later were released on writs of habeas corpus. The raid came as a surprise not only to Utley and Aarons, but also to the Long Beach Police Department.

Authorities here were not informed of the raid until after it had taken place. Lt. Herman Zander of Los Angeles said the arrests were made without first notifying local authorities because it was "a matter of field expediency."

"We had been talking these people and we didn't know where they were going," he said. "The arrests had to be made when the evidence warranted."

However, Chief William Dovey of the Long Beach department said the incident was "not good policy on their part."

"We welcome any law-enforcement body," he said. "As a general rule, it's customary for out-of-town officers coming into a city to contact local authorities."

Dovey said Long Beach detectives occasionally go into Los Angeles on narcotics cases, and when that happens, the L.A. authorities are informed.

Utley and Aarons had been working their purported abortion racket about a year and a half, Zander said. Their Long Beach setup had been under surveillance about two months.

They had several locations from which "they could pick and choose," Zander said. They would move from one to another frequently in an attempt to avoid suspicion, he added.

The Friday night arrests came while the pair may have been planning another move, investigators said. Merchants in the neighborhood reported they had noticed carloads of people pulling up to the store late at night when other businesses in the area were closed.

Three patients were on the premises when the raiders struck, Zander said. One girl, 18, was there with her father and mother. Another girl, also an 18-year-old, was accompanied by her sister. The third girl was with her brother.

All were from Los Angeles. They were released after the raid. Zander said the pair charged fees from $100 to $1,000 for abortions.

Zander said the two men had just finished performing an operation when the place was raided. Also seized was $1,000 in medical supplies and equipment. Police said the patients told them Utley identified himself as "Dr. Green" and, at other times as "Dr. Brown."

Utley, who has a long criminal record, is widely known for his onetime connection with the plush gambling ship, Lux, which was anchored off Long Beach in the late 1930s. Once during a gang war over control of the ship, Utley was brutally beaten by two gunmen in a swank Hollywood cafe while several movie stars looked on.

Zander said Aarons was stripped of his license to practice medicine after he was involved in an abortion case in 1952.

Aarons allegedly performed the operations, Zander said, while Utley acted as doorkeeper, cashier, nurse and general handyman.

The Friday night raid came only six days after a Long Beach Superior Court jury convicted five other persons of abortion charges stemming from a raid on an abortion house at 5460 The Toledo, last Feb. 4.

That also was a $500,000-a-year setup, police said. Long Beach officers were not notified in advance of that raid, either.

Central U.S., New England Areas Cooled

CHICAGO (UP) — Cool air, bringing a preview of autumn, marched across the Midwest and New England Saturday, forcing hot weather into a corner in the eastern third of the country.

The limits of the cool air mass reached from the eastern Great Lakes region to central Texas and from the area around Long Island, New York, to the northern part of the state.

Conflict between the cold and hot masses produced showers and thunderstorms, some of them heavy locally, along the boundary areas as they have in the past few days.

At Syracuse, nearly five inches of rain, more than half the city's record total of 8.41 for August, fell in the past four days, flooding many cellars and boosting small streams in the vicinity to flood stage.

Showers and thunderstorms also emerged from a flow of hot air over the mid-Atlantic and South Atlantic states in the afternoon.

At the same time, generally fair weather and mild temperatures prevailed from the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific Coast.

THAT OL' VILLAIN

Subsidence Opens Skiing Playground

By LEE CRAIG
Independent Press-Telegram Marine Editor

A new rival to the popularity of the Marine Stadium as a mecca for water skiing and outboard motoring enthusiasts has risen on the other side of the city—and one of the factors making it possible is that old villain, subsidence.

Years ago, the mouth of what is now the Los Angeles County Flood Control Channel was periodically clogged with silt, deposited there by waters pouring into the sea after inland storms.

In the summer, the flow became just a memory as the sand banks stood high and dry above the few remaining trickles in the channel.

Then, several things happened.

DREDGING BEGAN on a large scale in 1949 and 1950 and the channel's banks were lined with rock as the flood control project began. More than 8,000,000 cubic yards of fill was removed from the entrance.

Subsidence helped—and is still helping—by lowering the channel floor at a rate of nearly a foot a year.

Nearby, at the foot of Golden Ave., a cement ramp was located by the city so that boat owners could back their trailers into the water and float their craft off.

This was followed by a huge parking lot and new landscaping, on which work is still in progress.

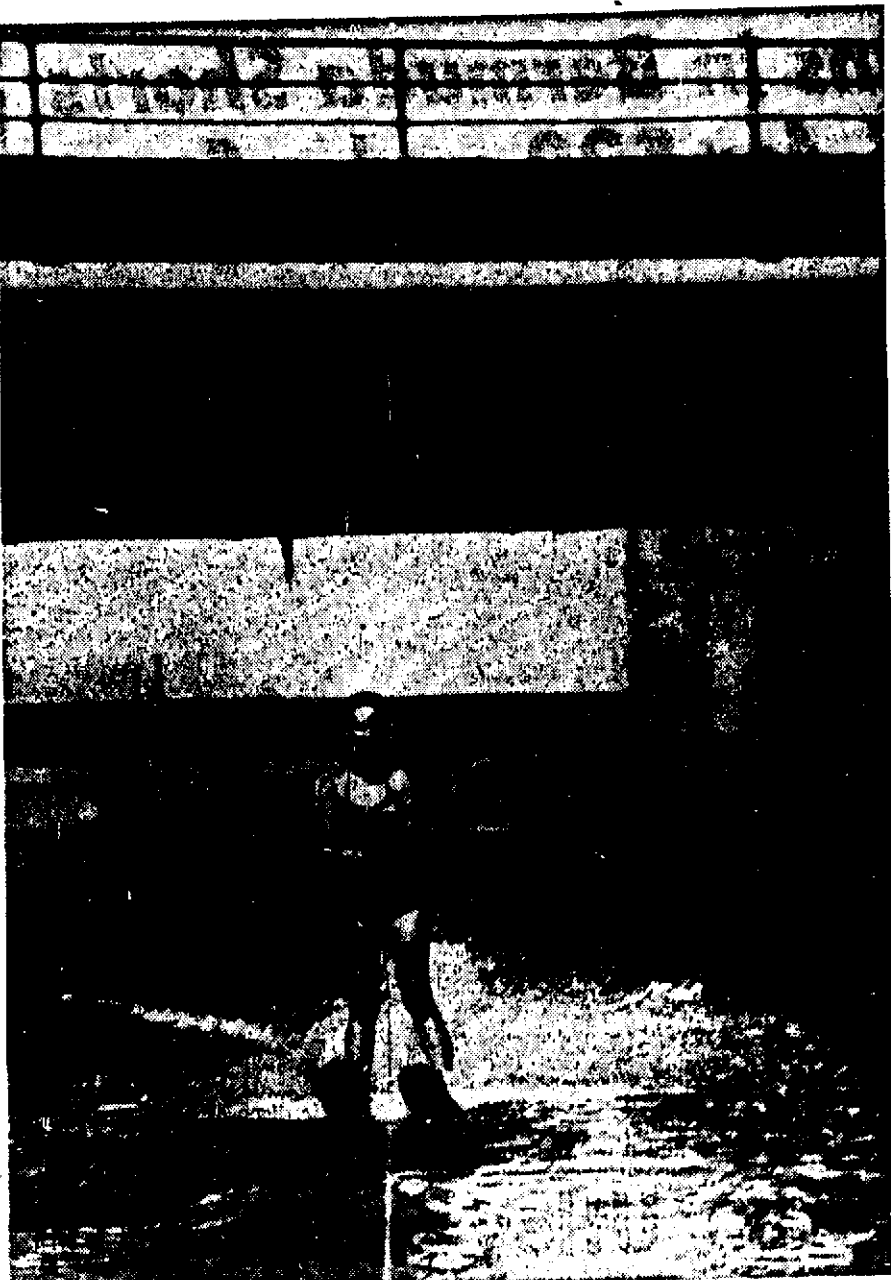

Popularity of the facility grew amazingly.

NOW, ACCORDING to B. K. Jones, district supervisor for the Recreation Commission, more than 500 boats are launched on weekends. Sometimes the lines of craft and their owners reach all the way to Ocean Blvd. Many of them come from as far as San Fernando Valley.

A lifeguard station, on the area's east limits, is manned fulltime to keep swimmers on the right side of the buoys which mark the region.

Playground facilities are available for the younger set who tire of boating or swimming, with a director present to supervise their play. A new clubhouse for the grounds is now under construction.

"We were surprised at the public's response when we opened the area to boating," Jones said. "Now, we're considering widening the ramp so that more boats can be launched at a time."

YOU SKI FROM BROADWAY TO OCEAN

Egypt Gets West's Plan Today for Future of Suez

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO (AP)—Delegates from five nations east and west of the Suez Canal today began talks for canal-crisis talks in which the Egyptians have been urged by Soviet Russia to refuse compromise.

The five-nation mission, headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, is arriving to determine how far President Gamal Abdel Nasser is willing to go toward acceptance of a Western proposal to put the Suez Canal under international control.

While saber-rattling could be heard in the background, the emphasis in the center of the stage was on peaceful negotiations.

THE MENZIES mission represents 18 of the 22 nations which took part in the London Suez conference. Most of these 18 also advocate a peaceful settlement of the dispute, though Britain and France are strengthening their Mediterranean forces in what they call a precautionary move.

President Eisenhower Friday gave strong support to Egyptian hopes for a peaceful settlement with his statement recognizing Egyptian sovereignty over the Suez Canal while urging guarantees for international usage of the waterway. Egyptian observers said Eisenhower appeared to open the door for serious talks.

Eisenhower gave the Egyptians the impression he was not insisting on any particular solution being adopted, but genuinely was seeking a peaceful solution.

A SIMILAR attitude has been expressed from the other side of the fence by India's K. V. Krishna Menon. Although he was the architect of the London conference minority plan advocating only international advice for Egypt in running the canal, Menon this week declared he was not pressing Nasser to accept any specific plan.

At the same time, Egyptian close to Nasser say the Egyptian president himself is eager to open doors to find some solution consistent with Egyptian sovereignty.

Cairo newspapers forecast the talks will last about a week. They say Nasser will meet the Menzies mission in his office Monday morning with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi and his foreign affairs adviser, Wing Cmdr. Ali Sabry, in attendance. Sabry was his observer at the London conference, which Egypt boycotted.

"NASSER is ready to talk, talk, to negotiate, to explore, to do everything possible to solve this problem peacefully," an Egyptian source said, "although he can not compromise on Egyptian sovereignty."

Contrasting with these mild words were signs of trouble from countries at the opposite poles of the crisis.

Britain has granted France the right to move troops to Cyprus, 250 miles off Egypt's north coast, and both countries have announced a continued buildup in the eastern Mediterranean.

At the other extreme, Soviet

10 Held for Terrorizing 700 on Boat

KEANSBURG, N. J. (AP)—A band of 10 beer-drinking New York City teen-agers, including two 15-year-old girls, were ordered held in jail here Saturday on charges of terrorizing 700 passengers on an excursion boat and trying to seize control of the vessel.

Police said the vessel "City of Keansburg," which makes a regular three-hour run from Manhattan's Battery to Keansburg, was a scene of boisterous pushing and shoving by the teen-agers Friday night.

The youngsters boarded the ship with a supply of liquor and beer, police said. They began stirring up serious trouble as the ship neared Keansburg, officials said.

The Keansburg sailed at 8 p. m. Capt. Paul Faulks of Keansburg received reports from time to time of pushing and shoving among the passengers. Then, at 10:30, the trouble started in earnest, with the two girls allegedly egging their rowdy boy friends on.

French Town Time Right—but Late

SEZANNE, France (AP)—For the first time in memory the city hall clock is right.

Years ago, the clock was made five minutes fast to help travelers be on time for trains. "We just wanted to be like everybody else," a city official explained after the right time was set.

LONDON (AP)—Dom Mintoff, prime minister of Malta, arrived Saturday night for talks with the British government about his island's future.

Indians Will Sell City's Shrine as Business Site

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—An historical Indian burial ground treasured by this city as part of a downtown park will be sold by the Wyandotte Indians of Oklahoma for a business site, a tribal spokesman said Saturday night.

Lawrence E. Zane of Miami, Okla., chief of the Wyandottes, said the two-acre property in Huron Park is worth 1½ million dollars. He said title to the ground was returned to the tribe by a bill passed by Congress in the closing days of the last session.

Rep. Errett P. Scrivner (R-Kan.) who has blocked passage of similar bills in the past, said Saturday night he had asked his office in Washington to find out how this bill was passed without a hearing in the House. He termed it a "sleeper" bill.

Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) in Coffeyville Saturday night said he had not seen the bill nor heard any debate on it.

220-Pound Woman Admits Slitting Landlady's Throat

WESTVILLE, Ind. (AP)—A husky woman who told authorities she was fired as an attendant at a mental hospital because of her "hot temper" admitted Saturday she strangled her landlady and slit her throat with a butcher knife.

Mrs. Nancy Mitchell, 41, was taken to nearby LaPorte County jail for investigation of murder.

Officers said she signed a statement saying she strangled Mrs. Gertrude Bovey, 65, a widow, during an argument over rent.

Mrs. Mitchell, who weighs 220 pounds, said her landlady tried to get away during the argument but she overtook her about 40 feet from her house, beat her to the ground and strangled her. Then, she dragged her body back to the house.

Mrs. Mitchell said she grabbed a 12-inch butcher knife and cut Mrs. Bovey's throat.

Her last act, she said, was to

Mansfield's Disturbance Quiets Down

By ROBERT E. FORD

DALLAS (UP)—Did the mob action at nearby Mansfield, Tex., Friday and Thursday foreshadow what will happen at other southern city schools forced by courts to integrate white and Negro classes?

That can't be predicted, but these significant facts show up:

1. No known school east of Mansfield has integrated in Texas. The movement now has reached the western edge of East Texas, where observers long have forecast bitter resistance to desegregation.

2. It is the first school below college level in Texas ordered by the courts to integrate.

Contrasted with that picture is the fact that between 70 and 100 schools west of Mansfield in Texas have integrated without any disturbances or incidents.

MANSFIELD has settled down to its usual serene appearance. No further disturbances are expected before Tuesday, when the school opens again. But two effigies of Negroes still hang on the school grounds.

At Mansfield, a crowd of men and youths, reaching a total of 400 at times, surrounded the high school and vowed no Negroes would register.

Federal Dist. Judge Joe E. Estes had ordered immediate integration and confirmed his order while the mob first was forming.

The New Orleans Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals refused to approve the school board's request for a year's postponement. A plea to the U. S. Supreme Court is planned.

Members of the mob handled a state assistant district attorney and some photographers and threatened to use guns if officers tried to take Negroes into the school by force.

GOV. ALLAN SHIVERS sent Texas Rangers with orders to arrest anyone, white or Negro, whose actions threaten the peace. The orders were so worded that they could apply not only to persons resisting integration but to Negroes seeking to attend the school.

The governor also advised the school board to transfer out of the school district any student if necessary "for the general welfare (and) to preserve peace and orderly conduct."

Actually, Negroes in the Mansfield district have a choice in the court order of attending either the Mansfield high school or a nearby Fort Worth high school.

But the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People is seeking to have Negroes registered at the Mansfield school, even against their wishes.

SAID CHARLES MOODY, 17, one of the three Negroes in whose name the court action was begun:

"Mister, 'I don't wanna go to school in Mansfield. I'd rather go to school among my own people in Fort Worth. But I'll go to the Mansfield school if the NAACP makes me."

AN NAACP ATTORNEY yesterday sought to register Moody and two others by telegram, but the school superintendent refused to accept the telegram as a registration.

Only 12 Negro high school students are in the district which has about 300 white high school students.

Elsewhere in parts of Texas it was a different story.

The Texas Commission on Race Relations, a prointegration privately financed group, reported that 71 of the state's 3,857 school districts were integrated in some form or other in the past year. This means that about 1,500 Negroes were attending Texas city schools which have a total of 300,000 attendance. The commission said Negro enrollment represented as high as 17 per cent of students in some schools.

Still, that's only a fraction of the 1,833,432 students in Texas schools last year below the college level. Court suits have been filed against several schools, but action is not expected this school year.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the people of Mansfield have shown they definitely mean action.

They are honest, hard-working, God-fearing, church-going residents of a normally quiet town 20 miles southeast of Fort Worth, astride U. S. Highway 287.

But an expensive, heavy, new automobile bearing two large and rough talking men Friday forced the tiny Volkswagen driven by Irwin Frank to the curb and demanded to know if he was an "outside instigator."

Frank is a staff writer for the Associated Press and was returning to his Dallas bureau office after covering the Mans-

EXPRESSIONS OF FEAR and apprehension are shown by these three unidentified Negroes, in two separate cars, while angry white mob, fired by a segregation speech, attacked their automobiles Friday night in Clinton, Tenn. Mob bashed windshields and rocked cars. At least six cars bearing Negroes were stopped and heavily damaged. No one was reported injured.—(AP Wirephoto)

Legionnaires Set for Controversy

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Controversial issues and politics boiled in the American Legion's pre-convention camp Saturday.

Thousands of Legionnaires already are on hand for opening of their national convention Tuesday.

The committees and commissions shaping the 2,800,000-member organization's policies tackled resolutions which may throw the meeting into an uproar.

Candidates for national commander mapped campaign strategy and worked as feverishly as aspirants at the recent Democratic and Republican conventions.

There was the case of Margaret Nettles. She had said that if Negroes were admitted and there was nothing students could do about it, she would "accept it."

Friday afternoon, Frank found her sitting on the school steps and crying as if her heart would break.

"They're all calling me a nigger-lover," she told Frank.

THE TEXAS delegation came up with what may be one of the more controversial resolutions. Its proposal demands possible reduction of the nation's "conventional" armed forces in favor of an all-out nuclear defense plan. Proponents of a strong Army and Navy were expected to oppose it.

Possible recognition of Red China by the United States or the United Nations drew heavy fire.

The Legion's foreign relations commission voted to send a strong nonrecognition resolution to the convention resolutions committee.

NATIONAL COMMANDER J. Addington Wagner spoke out in opposition to recognition of Red China. He said in an address:

"Such recognition would be a further compromise of American principles—a further retreat before the ideological advance of communism.

"In effect, it would be an admission that you can shoot your way through the American Army into diplomatic recognition and into the United Nations councils."

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) will be the target of at least nine resolutions, the Americanism commission said. The Legion last year urged American educational institutions to "desist from the use of educational materials of UNESCO propounding world citizenship and nebulous world government."

The resolutions at next week's convention "should strengthen our points on the subject," said James F. Daniel Jr., chairman of the Americanism commission.

VETERANS' PENSIONS, civil defense and foreign affairs were other subjects which were UNDERWEAR

Now High Style for Africa Women

BRAZZAVILLE (UP)—Shoppers in French Equatorial Africa were puzzled by a sudden upsurge in sales of ladies' underwear. Then they learned from travelers that most of it is going to the Ubangi-Shari bush country.

African women there have adopted the dainty underthings for outdoor wear. Particularly modish in the bush are brassieres. They are worn with nothing else.

IS ATHLETIC BOARD THE GOVERNMENT?

Shoplifting Fuss May Bar Soviets From Olympiad

LONDON (UP)—Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Communist party, accused Scotland Yard Saturday of holding champion athlete Nina Ponomareva incommunicado for 90 minutes and trying to make her confess that she stole five hats from a London shop.

It said British police permitted the muscular woman to sneak out of a clothing shop without paying for five cheap hats she took with her. However, a Soviet spokesman told United Press the woman is "still in London."

Pravda told its Soviet readers that a Russian speaking man was found among the employees of the shop soon after the discussion was accused of trying to take the hats.

"He explained that he allegedly had studied Russian at Oxford University, but he could not explain why he was working in a clothing store," the Communist organ said.

"This individual is a detective in the service of the shop," Pravda continued. "This detective is the only witness for the prosecution."

There was still no sign of standards, Ponomareva was prevented for one and one-half hours from communicating by telephone with the Soviet embassy. The agents of Scotland Yard—the British criminal police—who arrived on the spot, tried in vain to obtain from the Soviet champion an admission that she intended to commit theft.

The Manchester Guardian said, in a front-page story, that the manner of the Russian protest over the incident and Friday's withdrawal of the Soviet team from a scheduled international athletic event with British track stars "surely made clear once more to outsiders that the Russian athletics governing board is in fact the Russian government."

Olympic rules ban any country whose athletics are controlled by a government agency.

SKILLS OF DISABLED SHARPENED

CRI Gives Hope to Handicapped

WAY OUT OF DARKNESS

Handicapped by sight impairment and facial paralysis, Mrs. Marian Barrows, right, is increasing work skills guided by Mrs. Dorothy Brink, orthopedic worker at Hughes Aircraft. Training brings disabled persons back to useful employment.—(Jasper Nutter Photo.)

R. J. T. is a veteran. He lost his left eye in 1951 and has progressive glaucoma in his right eye. He previously was employed by top companies in all phases of airframe and ordnance fabrication.

A useless member of society now? He might have been. But, he's a registrant of the Communities Rehabilitation Industries, 1438 E. Anaheim St. CRI has plans for R. J. T.'s skills: bench assembly, drill press ability, his use of a Braille typewriter and data machines.

The disabled in Long Beach, like the millions of men and women like them in the United States, can be rehabilitated and returned to places of usefulness in our society, CRI says.

CRI IS A community effort to do this by providing employment opportunities and rehabilitation services. It draws its applicants from disabled persons who want jobs but can't be absorbed directly into industrial employment.

The exact number of people who cannot be helped to find work by established agencies is not known. But T. L. Pezman, CRI program director, who spent several months in the State Employment Service office here surveying the situation before the program went into action, said that SES records more than 300 job applicants each month who cannot be placed through normal channels.

Primarily, the sheltered workshop where the handicapped are employed depends on getting work from industries in the area.

TWO OF THE major industries in the Southland have tried CRI and found it successful:

A spokesman for Douglas Aircraft Co. stated: "... Recently we placed our first job with your organization which has since been completed satisfactorily to schedule. In addition, your interest and enthusiasm in handling our first order was most gratifying."

"The Long Beach Division (of Douglas) is deeply interested in supporting Community Rehabilitation Industries just as we have supported similar organizations in the past. Our policy is to continue this support as long as jobs which you can accomplish are available."

From a Hughes Aircraft Co. spokesman:

"We have seen sheltered workshops prove themselves successful in other areas and know their value. Hughes has found participation in such workshop programs economically sound and is happy to play a part in CRI."

Other firms which thus far have sub-contracted work to CRI are: Industrial Aids of Compton and Battenfeld Grease and Oil.

WHILE MORE FIRMS are expected to sub-contract work to CRI, the organization is developing its own projects.

One of the people employed by CRI is Marian Barrows, widow of the late Dr. Edward M. Barrows, professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin. She was for a time a newspaper correspondent and covered Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's press conferences for approximately eight years. She made special reports for the historical section, Far East Command, in 1945-49.

In 1949 she went to Arizona for her health. In 1953 she developed a coronary condition and in 1954 underwent surgery for cancer. A virus affection attacked her facial muscles; she suffered partial paralysis and loss of vision.

But Mrs. Barrows is working on a project that CRI hopes will make for employment of herself and others at the workshop. She now is working on Christmas originals—decorations for wholesaling to gift shops—many of whose owners have seen her work and expressed interest. Her works show originality and a professional craftsmanship.

INCOME FROM these sources, it is expected, will be augmented by supporting membership dues and sustaining grants. A membership drive will get under way this month.

Meanwhile, the organization, in headquarters with 5,000 usable square feet made available by Veterans' Industries of Long Beach, is registering and evaluating persons referred for employment.

"Pain-killers" are a by-word in the world of the handicapped. But the best "pain-killer" is a job—not a make-work job, but an honest-to-goodness job at going rates of pay.

That's what CRI is doing and hopes to continue to do on a bigger and bigger scale.

'JUST GOOD FRIENDS'

Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburg of Birmingham, Ala., secretary of the Democratic National Committee, Saturday squelched reports of romantic interest between herself and Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate. Preparing to sail from New York to Europe aboard the Ile de France, Mrs. Vredenburg told reporters Stevenson "is a great man ... but we're just good friends."—(AP Photo.)

Truman Hits GOP on Farm Issue

By Associated Press

Former President Truman (Agriculture) Benson and Eisenhower made his first speech of the 1956 campaign Saturday, telling an Iowa audience that a Republican administration in Washington "is always bad news for the American farmer."

After mentioning "Harding and Coolidge and Hoover — those earlier Republican apostles of flexibility," he said:

"They vetoed farm bills, just as Eisenhower has done. They favored big business, just as Eisenhower does. And they regarded hard times as the normal condition for the American farmer, just as Eisenhower and Benson do."

The closest he came to making a political statement was when he said:

"Each citizen ... must go through the processes of voting and doing every other thing in our country that means he is really ready to do his part as an American citizen. In so doing he will make certain that freedom remains with us strong—ever stronger—as the years roll on."

EISENHOWER's press secretary, James Hagerty, told newsmen the President will offer Adlai Stevenson, his Democratic opponent, weekly secret intelligence reports on foreign affairs.

Stevenson had told a Chicago news conference Friday that he would "welcome such an offer very much."

Intelligence reports have been made available to presidential candidates several times in the past to lessen the chance they might, for lack of information, say something in the campaign that could injure national security. Eisenhower and Stevenson received them from Truman in 1952.

Stevenson was spending the weekend at his Libertyville, Ill., farm before flying to Detroit Monday to make a Labor Day speech.

TRUMAN ADDRESSED a Democratic rally for farmers and labor at Ottumwa, Iowa. He said:

"We can get out the vote in November and get (Secretary of

THE FARM ISSUE also was subject of a statement Saturday night from Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler. He termed as "cruelly false" a statement Friday by Secretary of Agriculture Benson that a 3 per cent mid-summer drop in farm prices was "largely seasonal."

"The only thing 'seasonal' about the farmers' condition is that the Republicans declared open season on farmers when they took office," Butler said.

Special Labor Day messages were issued by Secretary of Labor Mitchell and President George Meany of the AFL-CIO. Both contained political overtones.

Meany said the nation "needs more progressive and forward-looking government" and that the AFL-CIO must turn to political action to achieve its political objectives.

JOE SMITH SPONSOR BACKED

Homefolks Right Behind Carpenter

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (UP)—The folks in "Joe Smith's" home country are backing up the man who tried to nominate Joe for Vice President at the Republican National Convention.

Most Nebraskans have tried to ignore Terry Carpenter, the GOP delegate from Scottsbluff, who dreamed up the mythical Joe Smith and tried to run him against Vice President Richard Nixon.

But in the western Nebraska cattle country around Scottsbluff, Carpenter's neighbors defend him as "a man who will stand up for his convictions no matter what the consequences."

IT'S BEEN MORE than a week since Carpenter turned the San Francisco convention on its ear, but Joe Smith is still a hot topic here. The sentiment seems to be going about four to one in Carpenter's favor.

As for Carpenter, a former Democratic congressman who is a converted Republican, he still insists that the nomination attempt was "no joke," but a sincere effort to make the vice presidential nominations "open."

He was thwarted by convention chairman Joseph Martin, who demanded to know whom Carpenter planned to nominate. Carpenter had wanted to nominate Interior Secretary Fred Seaton, a Nebraska publisher, but Seaton had written Martin a letter saying he would not be a candidate even if nominated.

Carpenter maintains Seaton and Martin "connived to embarrass" him.

THE FORMER DEMOCRAT has a long and stormy history in Nebraska politics. Residents here were not at all surprised when Carpenter emerged as one of the stars of the GOP convention.

As one citizen put it, "We're used to him here."

The daily newspaper and radio station here have carried lots of stories on the Joe Smith episode since the convention.

A radio interview Wednesday morning drew heavy response during an afternoon program on which transcribed telephone calls from listeners are used in a public forum. Most of the callers supported Carpenter.

CARPENTER, WHO IS a real estate developer and a businessman of varied interests as well as a politician, meanwhile debated whether to accept some of the many speaking invitations he has received.

He was expected to accept an invitation from Col. Charles Cobb of New York, who is organizing the "Citizens for One Million Write-In Votes for Joe Smith for Vice President."

100 Demos Will Hear Adlai in L.A.

By THE LOOKOUT

Approximately 100 Long Beach Democrats will help make it a rousing greeting for Adlai Stevenson when he arrives at Los Angeles International Airport Tuesday at 9 p.m.

Two bus loads of the local Stevenson supporters will go to the airport, and others will go in private cars. Mrs. Frank Parker and Mrs. Mabel Agee of the Democratic Women's Study Club are arranging the bus trips, which will start from Long Beach about 7:30 p.m.

Stevenson will speak the following noon at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles to the American Legion convention.

APPOINTED

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach has been appointed 18th Congressional District representative on a new executive committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

The committee, named by Chairman Alphonzo E. Bell, will hold its first meeting on Thursday in Los Angeles. An important piece of business will be selection of a Republican candidate in the 20th District to replace the late Rep. Carl Hinchey, with H. Allen Smith of Glendale likely to get the nod.

Elaborate Phony Bomb Frightens Oakland Officials

OAKLAND (UP)—An elaborate and realistic bomb hoax threw a scare into city officials Saturday. A package, made up to resemble dynamite sticks, was found in a foyer of the City Hall.

Army and Navy ordnance experts who raced here from San Francisco and Vallejo sized up the hoax quickly.

What appeared to be dynamite actually consisted of five pieces of wood dowling, wrapped in wax paper.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—M. Bullard, wealthy Newport, Tenn., industrialist, said Saturday he paid an unidentified woman $10 to get the Tennessee delegation recognized at a crucial moment and save the Democratic vice presidential nomination for Estes Kefauver.

Bullard said he paid the woman to tell the Democratic National Convention chairman, House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, that the state was ready to switch its vote from Sen. Albert Gore, whom it had supported through two ballots, to Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Instead, the delegation switched to Kefauver, Tennessee's senior senator, and started a chain reaction which resulted in his nomination.

"I got word that morning that Kefauver was in trouble," Bullard said, "and I caught a plane at 10 a.m. to fly me to Chicago. The plane was late, so I chartered a helicopter to take me directly to Convention Hall, and I went in by the back door."

Bullard, who operates various manufacturing plants in the Newport area, long has been a Democratic leader in Tennessee. "I've always helped Sen. Kefauver whenever I could," Bullard explained. "I admire him greatly and he's a personal friend of mine."

"I paid a woman $10 to go up there (on the platform) and tell Mr. Rayburn what we felt to be the situation—that Tennessee was ready to switch to Sen. Kennedy."

"We were trying to get Tennessee recognized," Bullard said. "Of course, I believe we would have been recognized eventually anyway, but we were trying to do all we could for Sen. Kefauver."

Democratic warfare between the two parties has been proceeding with vigor lately in the wake of the Republican National Committee's announced decision to shorten the name of the opposition to the "Democrat Party."

While leaders of both parties have generally taken a humorous view of the whole thing, a local lawyer is taking it seriously.

The attorney, I. Dan Danziger, has filed suit in the federal district court here for an injunction barring the Republicans from dropping the "D" from the traditional label, Democratic Party.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler used the longer appellation Saturday in a statement blaming the Republicans for the recent drop in farm prices.

A Democratic National Committee spokesman admitted it.

Dems Strike Back in War of Semantics

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic strategists have come up with a word-glimmer of their own to counter Republican "D" droppers.

Instead of referring to the "Eisenhower administration," they call it "The Eisenhower-Nixon administration."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler used the longer appellation Saturday in a statement blaming the Republicans for the recent drop in farm prices.

A Democratic National Committee spokesman admitted it.

New Draft May Back Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department's manpower chief said Saturday that if the new six-month military reserve program does not continue on a "steady, growing basis" it may be necessary to ask Congress for authority to draft trainees.

Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L. Burgess said that on the basis of results thus far in the year-old program he "can't be too definite at this point" on whether the draft authority is needed.

BUT HE MADE IT CLEAR in an interview that the Defense Department is considering the possibility of asking the new Congress for a draft provision. He said the department will have to take "a new look" at the program in December.

"If it is not on a steady growing basis, we may have to ask for the draft," he added.

Coincident with Burgess' statement, President Eisenhower signed an executive order permitting youths under 18½ to enlist in the Air Force Ready Reserve for eight years. This service would include six months active training and seven and one-half years of reserve training. The same privileges have been extended to young men in Naval and Coast Guard Reserve units.

BURGESS, the architect of the new reserve program, conceded that he had been hopeful more youths would volunteer, particularly last spring at the time of high school graduations. But he said he was "not displeased" at the progress of the program thus far "although there are grounds for a lot more growth than we have had."

Probers Test Radar Car Brake

DETROIT (AP)—Congressmen investigating automobile safety had a ride in a car equipped with radar brakes before their weekend departure after five days with top industry officials.

The electronic brake takes over when, for some reason, the driver fails to apply the brakes himself, said its inventors, George Rashid, Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Paul Dudeck, Detroit.

A small radar screen on the car grille puts a beam on objects in its path. If the car gets too close to the object without the driver stopping, the electronic unit applies the brakes.

Radar also pushes the accelerator back, even though the driver may be pressing the pedal.

Rep. Kenneth A. Roberts (D-Ala.), subcommittee chairman, said after going through a demonstration ride in heavy Detroit traffic. "It works amazingly well."

Dudeck said it would cost about $250 to install such a unit now. He said the Army has shown interest, especially for use in truck convoys under blackout conditions.

GI Weds Girl Three Times to Be Sure

DERBY, England (AP)—Donald A. Behnke of Chicago, a 22-year-old American soldier stationed in France, and a British girl were married Saturday for the third time in a month.

The bride was Joan Booth, 23, who lives in Wingerworth, near Derby. She met Behnke while on vacation in Paris. When they decided to marry they got conflicting advice as to where the service should be held, because of their British and American citizenships and Behnke's residence in France. So they made triply certain their marriage is tidy and legal.

First they were married at a civil service in Paris. The next day an Army chaplain married them military style, and today they went through it again at the parish church at Wingerworth.

"Getting married three times is great fun, and of course I expect three honeymoons," said the bride.

They plan to live in Chicago.

$193 Million Goes to South Asia

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Cooperation Administration (ICA) reported Saturday that five south Asian nations received $193 million worth of nonmilitary U. S. aid during the year ended last June 30.

The five South Asian nations are Afghanistan, Ceylon, India, Nepal and Pakistan. Pakistan got the biggest share, $107 million, and India, the second largest slice with $60 million.

Proposition 4 Riles Democratic Parley

By MORRIS LANDSBERG

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The Democratic State Convention Saturday night alighted on Proposition 4 after a battle over the oil initiative touched off criticism of the party's predicted new chairman.

Delegates adopted the 1956 Democratic state platform carrying a strong declaration on civil rights, but party leaders maneuvered a possibly fatal delay on a move to oppose Prop. 4. The resolutions committee earlier recommended that the one-day convention go on record against the controversial oil measure. Assemblyman Charles V. Porter of Compton, the chairman, said, however, it had been decided to hold up floor action until the Democratic State Central Committee meets today.

Democratic strategists, with an eye on the November elections, worked behind the scenes to avoid any party division on the hottest ballot measure that California has seen in many years.

The resolutions committee's anti-No. 4 action gave momentum to clusters of delegates opposing Roger Kent of Kentfield for state chairman. But the delay in bringing the issue to the party membership bolstered his supporters' hopes that he would manage to ride out the storm.

Kent, the present vice chairman, came under fire because he signed the official argument in the voters pamphlet in favor of No. 4. The measure, variously described in terms of "conservation" and "monopoly," provides for unit control of California oil fields by majority agreement of the producers.

In its preamble, the platform declared "We are proud" of the Democratic national platform and the party's ticket of Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Excerpts from the platform: CIVIL RIGHTS—"We accept and applaud the decision of the Supreme Court banning segregation."

SENIOR CITIZENS—"Proposes an increase in state aid to not less than $100 a month and repeal of the relative responsibility law."

HOUSING—"We condemn the failure of the Republican national administration to provide adequate public low-cost housing. We are unalterably opposed to any discrimination in housing because of age, race, color, religion or national origin."

EDUCATION—"Holds that colleges should encourage organization of student political clubs and deny recognition to fraternities, sororities and other student clubs practicing racial or other discrimination."

Stratojets Fly Nonstop England to Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Three Boeing B47 Stratojet bombers flew 5,000 miles nonstop from England to Oklahoma City Saturday, bringing greetings to the National Aircraft Show from the Lord Mayor of London.

The three, 6-engine bombers made the flight in 12½ hours, arriving at the air show at 3:45 p.m. They refueled in the air as they reached the Atlantic coast.

One of the pilots, Capt. L. W. McCarty of St. Louis, brought letters of greetings from Lord Mayor Cuthbert Ackroyd of London and Mayor Aubrey B. Wilks of the Borough of Bury St. Edmunds.

The other two pilots were Capt. C. W. Guy of Ardmore, Okla., and Capt. Carl Phillips of near Mansfield, Ohio.

Labor Thugs Called 'Frankensteins'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Justice Department official said Saturday that labor racketeers, such as those who are accused of blinding columnist Victor Riesel, are "Frankenstein monsters" for whose creation both management and labor must share the blame.

He said that Johnny Dio, the ex-convict "labor consultant" now awaiting trial in New York on charges of ordering the April 5 acid assault on Riesel, is one of many prohibition-era mobsters who have made lucrative careers of applying their strong-arm tactics to the field of industrial relations.

The official, who declined use of his name, said the federal government's law-enforcement agencies have bulging files that record the story of the rise of labor racketeering.

After repeal of prohibition, in 1933, he said, underworld mobs which were forced out of the bootleg liquor trade began looking for a new field of operations.

Labor and management were then locked in bitter battles over wages and working conditions. Both sides, he said, "invited" the unemployed hoodlums into their struggles, each claiming that it was resorting to force to counteract force.

The invitation soon backfired and a whole new "industry" for the underworld was founded, he said.

The official said all parties affected—employers, unions and the buying public—have paid a heavy price for the mistakes of the early thirties.

He said the sum that racketeers extort from employers for "labor peace" is reflected in the form of higher operating costs, and therefore higher prices for the consumer.

The racketeers prey directly on the pocketbooks of rank-and-file members of thug-dominated unions and on employers who are "shaken down," he said.

Hearty Welcome to Legionnaires, Vigilant Patriots

FOR NEARLY 40 YEARS the American Legion has stood as a bulwark against anti-American influences and for the promotion of patriotism. On this weekend, with the Legion starting its annual convention in Los Angeles, it is appropriate to point out that probably no other organization has maintained such a vigilant watch over the national and international affairs that might adversely affect the future of our country.

It was born in 1919, at the close of World War I, that a group of veterans met in Paris and laid the groundwork for the Legion which was formally organized shortly afterwards in this country. There were 500 men in the founders group and about 200 of these are still living. Today the Legion has a membership of approximately 4,000,000.

Outstanding among the Legion's activities down through the years has been its vigorous and unrelenting fight against subversive influences. The organization likewise has kept a watchful eye on the care of veterans, both in hospitals and outside. The members have two outstanding loyalties—to their country and to the men who offered their lives, if necessary, to protect our nation against its enemies.

THE LEGION is a non-partisan organization. Its creed is loyalty to the United States of America and perpetuation of the principles that have made this the greatest country in the world. Its members fought to preserve freedom and the American way of life and they have a deeper appreciation, perhaps, of what freedom means to the individual and to the nation.

Women are playing an important part in Legion affairs today. It is interesting to note that there are 297 all-women Legion posts in this country at the present time and a Legion Auxiliary that numbers many thousands of patriotic women in its roster.

Long Beach has more than a dozen Legion posts with several thousand members. They are just as alert to subversive influences and just as active in keeping aloft the torch of freedom as their brothers in other parts of the country.

To a splendid group of Americans whose representatives are now meeting in the Southland we offer congratulations and gratitude. While the spirit of the Legion and other fine veterans organizations lives this country will be safe from aggression.

Inflation Issue Bigger One Than Ike-Adlai Tilt

OVER THE LABOR DAY weekend, millions of pleasure-bent Americans will jam the highways, crowd the golf courses, go to the races, watch the ball game, attend outings and possibly listen to a few political speeches.

Some of us can recall the time when the annual Labor Day parade was the big feature of this legal public holiday. Now, the march of the tollers has largely given way to traffic lines of two-toned cars, filled with happy and prosperous families, bent upon reaching their favorite recreation spots.

At the risk of injecting a serious note into summer's last fling, may I offer the opinion that the people of this country are facing a more serious problem than simply deciding between Eisenhower and Stevenson.

THE FORTHCOMING campaign, soon to be characterized by the sloganizers as "the greatest decision of our times," is not nearly as important to our future welfare as another decision that could spell ruin and disaster.

I refer to the course we follow with respect to the growing dangers of inflation.

Will we have the courage to take the steps that are essential to preserve the value of lifetime savings, insurance policies, government securities, pensions and social security?

Or, will we continue to drift along the inflationary road, lulled by the pleasant thought of high wages and a seemingly endless prosperity?

The answer will determine America's future.

INFLATION IS A SORT of creeping confiscation which gets its hand into your pocketbook before you realize what is happening.

The now generally accepted pattern of annual wage increases, plus extensive "fringe" benefits, makes it more expensive for the employer to do business.

The manufacturer, faced with rising production costs, then charges more for the items he makes. This is known as the "pay and pass on" philosophy with the purchaser picking up the tab.

The worker gets higher wages. The big manufacturer makes more money. The tax collector grabs his share so that Uncle Sam can keep on spending with a lavish hand.

But who gets it in the neck?

The consumer, including the families of the men and women who receive the higher wages.

The small businessman, the little manufacturer and the independent store owner who can't meet the rising costs and make a reasonable profit.

The pensioner, the investor in government securities, the insurance policy holder, those who live on fixed incomes and the many millions of Americans who depend upon social security.

Unchecked inflation eventually destroys the value of savings, and with it, the economic and moral fiber of the nation.

INFLATION CAN BE STOPPED, but at great political risk. It takes real courage to restrict credit and reduce government spending.

Even the Federal Reserve Board's action in raising interest rates has been coolly received in Washington and drew a flood of criticism from the Democrats.

Both parties talk about the dangers of inflation while promising the voters more welfare benefits and, at the same time, a cut in taxes.

This is a huge fraud upon the American people but only a few men such as Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia have had the courage to speak the truth.

This is a political year and with both parties bidding for the "labor vote," we can expect more hogwash than horse sense.

'Aw, Shucks, There It Goes!

Adlai Should Clarify Himself Instead of Engaging in Personal Attack on Ike

WASHINGTON—The Democrats say openly that they are going to make a campaign issue of their charge that President Eisenhower is a "part-time President." Their idea is that, even before his illness, the Chief Executive was not giving full attention to his duties.

This is an issue which the Republicans ought to welcome for debate. For it goes to the very core of personal integrity and devotion to duty. It means that the Democrats will try to portray Dwight Eisenhower to the country as the kind of a man who neglects his duty. It implies that, when he was Commander-in-Chief of the largest army in history ever commanded by a single man, he must have had the same disregard of duty. It means that, after being elected to the highest office in the gift of his fellow citizens, he has not served conscientiously but has purposely and wilfully turned away from the functions of his job.

Will the American people believe any such accusation? Will this kind of personal attack get across on the stump? If there's one thing about Dwight Eisenhower which has made an indelible impression on the electorate, due to his utter frankness and candor in his press conferences whenever questions have been asked of him about his work or his health, it is his unswerving honesty. People may disagree with his views but they think he is honest. What the Democrats will be trying to do is convince the voters that Mr. Eisenhower isn't honest about his work and lets it slide while he plays.

FROM THE very beginning of the Eisenhower administration, the reporters have written news stories about the President's recreation. The record shows that FDR often went to Hyde Park and Warm Springs, and was away from the White House far more than Ike has been. Recently the White House records were searched and the facts made known, which revealed that other Presidents have taken recreation frequently and have left the White House more than has the present incumbent.

But the press here has not always emphasized what happens when a President departs temporarily from the White House. The story of the elaborate arrangements for instant communication with the President, no matter where he happens to be, is not often told. Anyone who thinks a President of the United States can be off the job for as much as an hour day or night without being subject to call doesn't know the White House routine.

The public will soon tire of the so-called "health" or "part-time" issue. For the fact is that no human being can guarantee that Eisenhower and Nixon or Stevenson and Kefauver will live out their terms if elected.

What is really more important, on the other hand, is for Adlai Stevenson to answer the principal questions that people are already asking. Would he favor war on Red China and further military action to avenge the shooting down of an American plane? Would he favor lending Nasser a billion dollars to build the Aswan Dam to enable Egypt's cotton to undersell American cotton in the world market? Does he criticize the present administration because it gave moral support to the effort of Egypt to get British troops out of the Suez? Would he abandon nuclear tests even if the Russians keep right on with them?

These are not the only pertinent questions that are being widely discussed. The Democratic party's nominee will have to state clearly whether the Democrats intend to pillory "big business" if they get into office and thereby stop business expansion and involuntarily bring about a drop in employment.

The Noise and Buncombe

THE CONVENTIONS appeared to have annoyed a sizable number of television fans who found them a very boring interference with their favorite entertainers. There were also many others who were repelled by the noise and the buncombe to a point where they wanted somebody, the networks or the party managers, to do something about the boredom.

I am not myself much of a fan when it comes to entertainment or television. . . . But, except for part of an evening toward the end of the two weeks vigil, when the audience was sentenced to eight scolding speeches, I watched and usually listened rather conscientiously. A lot, perhaps most of the oratory, canned and packaged by automation, was hard to take. It taught me, however, how to tell the difference between a Democratic and a Republican orator.

IF EVERYBODY AND if every state and every act was "great," then the speaker was a Democrat. If they were "of all time" and "dedicated," the speaker was indubitably a Republican.

For relief from those who were unbearably intoxicated with the exuberance of a ghost-writer's verbosity we would turn to the other networks, hoping to find one of them engaged in interviewing, uncanned and unrehearsed, and in an unobtrusive voice a real politician, or failing that, doing a singing commercial and station identifications.

Often, however, there was no escape from the orator, all the networks feeling themselves in honor bound to broadcast him. Then, the best remedy was to turn off the voice until the picture on the screen, which cannot bite you, showed that someone else, anyone else, was talking.

Both Parties Ducking Maine Campaign

WASHINGTON—Maine's reputation as a political weather-vane has both parties so apprehensive they won't send their big names within speaking distance of the state. Maine voters go to the polls a month early, Sept. 10, and the old saying "as Maine goes so goes the nation" has the politicians scared stiff.

GOP State Chairman John Weston and National Committee woman Mrs. Selam Wagg begged party boss Len Hall to help out with the Maine campaign. He promised campaign funds but absolutely no open help. Earlier, the White House hinted to Maine's congressional delegation that President Eisenhower might pay the state a one-day political visit, then tour the New England states.

But Hall turned thumbs down on the proposal.

Adlai Stevenson is also avoiding Maine as if it had the political plague, though the Democrats are trying to scrape up contributions to help out. They made it clear, however, that no national personalities would be sent into the state.

The Maine outcome is so uncertain that neither party wants to risk "losing face" by waging an all-out campaign, then possibly going down to defeat. Here is the outlook: Gov. Ed Muskie, Maine's first Democratic Governor in 20 years, stands a good chance for re-election. He has a good record, is popular with both parties. "Republicans for Muskie" clubs have mushroomed all over the state. GOP Congressman Charles Nelson is giving up his seat, leaving it to Republican James Reid and Democrat Frank Coffin to fight for the vacancy. The Democrats could pick up this seat.

GOP Congressmen Robert Hale and Clifford McIntire are firmly enough planted on the remaining two seats that the Republicans ought to hold them.

Both Republican Senators, Margaret Chase Smith and Frederick Payne, stayed home from the San Francisco convention to stump the state for the Republicans. Gov. Muskie is doing his best to keep up with them, crossroad for crossroad.

THE OUTCOME indeed might show which way the political winds are blowing. Clue: The textile industry, powerful in Maine, is sour with GOP failure to keep out cheap Japanese textiles. Their attitude wasn't helped any by Justice Department action ordering the FBI to investigate the textile workers for alleged "restraint of trade." The textile boys allegedly brought pressure on Maine merchants to boycott Japanese textiles.

Hosmer to Run as Ike Backer but Not as a Coat-Tail Rider

REP. CRAIG HOSMER will campaign for re-election this fall as a Congressional supporter of President Eisenhower, but not as a coat-tail rider.

Hosmer indicated this in a frank discussion of his plans with local newspaper men at a press luncheon held last week, arranged by Republican Associates. He said his third-term campaign emphasis will be his own prestige as a Congressman with a record of good service and with a promise of the continuance of the same with the advantage of added seniority.

As is customary and proper, the 18th District Congressional race will dominate the local side of general election interest. The race between Hosmer and Democrat Raymond C. Simpson will be second only to the presidential battle in local interest, with the U. S. Senator and local Assembly races following along.

The Congressional contest is the one race decided exclusively by all of the voters of the Long Beach-Signal Hill-Lakewood district. On President and Senator, they only contribute a percentage to the statewide or national results, and the Assembly races are decided by separate groups of voters within the area.

Hosmer said he plans to put in two weeks of Navy duty (he's a commander in the reserve) and then will devote virtually all of his time to a grass-roots drive for votes. The Navy service will be regional in nature, with Hosmer on duty out of Long Beach Naval Base and using the experience further to familiarize himself with naval activities in Southern California.

ASKED BY THE NEWSMEN about the basis of his campaign, Hosmer said that it will be the record he has made and the seniority he has established. A part of the record, he added, obviously concerns his support of the administration. He said that some analyses of Congressional voting show him with a record of about 75 per cent administration support. He indicated this shows he is a loyal supporter of the President, but not a "rubber stamp" Congressman.

(Congressional Quarterly in a recent analysis showed Hosmer's over-all support of the President at 76 per cent on 34 key issue roll calls, and 15 per cent opposition. On foreign policy roll calls, he supported Ike 100 per cent. Hosmer's record of support of the administration as shown by this analysis is as high as that of any of Los Angeles County's 12 Congressmen.)

COUNTING PRIMARY and general elections, this will be Hosmer's eighth campaign in the 18th District, with a consistent record of success in the district as it is now constituted. He first ran in 1950, and while he failed to win the election, he carried the Long Beach-Signal Hill-Lakewood area by over 12,000 votes. The district then included other sectors as far north as South Gate, which were later cut off in reapportionment.

Hosmer defeated Democrat Joseph M. Kennick in 1952 and 1954 by substantial margins. In the 1956 primary, he crossed, while Simpson sought only the Democratic nomination. Hosmer got 44,302 votes for the Republican nomination, and 20,848 votes for the Democratic nomination. Simpson got 37,967 votes for the Democratic nomination, turning back Hosmer's bid for double nomination but trailing the Republican in the overall total by 27,183 votes.

AS A REPUBLICAN candidate, Hosmer faces an adverse registration situation as he has in previous elections. At the time of the primary, there were 101,948 registered Democrats and 76,833 registered Republicans in the district. No current figures are available, but it is expected the proportionate percentage will be about the same when registration closes for the November election.

Simpson campaigned vigorously in the primary and may be expected to step up the effort this fall. Both candidates are young attorneys with considerable political experience, and a lively contest is in prospect.

TOWN MEETING

Removal of Deadly Dips Requested

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently, I witnessed a horrible accident which was caused by those deadly dips in the streets of Long Beach. The driver hit a dip, road was wet, he lost control of car, skidded, smashed into an oncoming car, causing serious injuries to four people and completely demolishing both cars.

How many times have we heard "Car hit dip, went out of control?" Not only the guilty one is injured, has extensive property damage, but the innocent one suffers likewise when the other car lands in his lane of traffic. Again, the "dip" was to blame for this accident—for the sickening sight of bodies being removed—for the broken bodies being given first aid—for the complete destruction of personal property—for the needless waste of taxpayers money being spent for services of ambulances, use of police cars, services of policemen who are badly needed elsewhere.

VERY FEW of these dips are marked, as is evidenced by the accidents our policemen have had while in pursuit of suspects, or our ambulances on emergency calls. Neither should be forced to slow down because of the dips.

Try to visualize yourself as the driver on strange streets, suddenly hitting a dip, your car out of control, slipping into the other lane of traffic, helplessly smashing up.

When is the City of Long Beach going to correct this? BERNICE W. THOMPSON 1837 Olive Ave.

Comments Noise Editorial

TO THE EDITOR:

Your recent editorial relating to excessive noise, partially caused by automobile mufflers, is to be commended. Until the state legislature takes cognizance of the fact that after market exhaust manufacturers are not obeying the law, that the mufflers sold by them are not in accordance with the mufflers originally installed on any motor vehicle, so long will the great majority of citizens suffer.

Section 673 of the California Motor Vehicle Code, as written, should be clear to a child in the sixth grade. Why there is all the controversy about the clear definition of the words "excessive or unusual noises," is beyond my understanding.

HERE IS THE pertinent part of that article:

"Every motor vehicle subject to registration and operated on a highway shall at all times be equipped with an adequate muffler in constant operation and properly maintained to prevent any EXCESSIVE or UNUSUAL NOISE and no such muffler or exhaust system shall be equipped with a cutout, bypass, or similar device. NO PERSON shall modify the exhaust system of a motor vehicle in a manner which will amplify or increase the noise emitted by the motor of such vehicle above that emitted by the muffler originally installed on the vehicle and such original muffler shall comply with all of the requirements of this section."

Are we men or mice? Are we going to attempt to get the legislature to prohibit the sale of these unlawful appendages, or are we going to live with the racket?

This Remedy Really Worked

TO THE EDITOR:

Automobile theft is approaching the rate of two million cars a year, and over 60 per cent of these cars are stolen by juvenile criminals.

When caught, sometimes after an extremely perilous police chase, the young punks know the penalty will be a stern scolding by juvenile officers and that they will then be released in the custody of their parents.

In the great days of our West the penalty for stealing a man's horse was hanging. Now, 70 years later the penalty for stealing an expensive automobile is about an hour's lecturing by a cop. And the teen-age toughs are happily aware of it.

Toronto, Canada, handled the auto-theft problem some years ago by giving the young thieves a sound spanking with a birch rod or strap, and in a matter of weeks car thefts dropped almost to the vanishing point. This remedy really worked!

Senator Soaper Says---

MORE THAN A MILLION people in government are reported authorized to classify documents as secret. The wily bureaucrat, staggering home at 3 a.m., will forestall his wife's questions by stamping himself "Confidential."

THE FELLOW WHO ALMOST, but not quite, bought a ticket on an airplane, train and ship, all of which had accidents, won't have time to talk politics or baseball the rest of the year.

PEOPLE ARE NICER than birds. Who, for example, ever heard of a robin refusing to build a nest because it might interfere with a human construction project?

ALTHOUGH EVERY MODE of transportation seems to have its hazards, let's remember that a lot of accidents happen right in the home, too.

MORE AND MORE pressure is being put behind the idea that men should dress for comfort. On a guess, this could mean heavy tweed suits to combat summer air conditioning and Bermuda shorts for the winter's steam heat.

SOME CITIZENS object to the noise that Air Force jet planes make, and the trick is to think of it as a friendly and protective sound, like the policeman on the beat bouncing his nightstick off the pavement in the old days.

PROBABLY THE IDEAL couple is one where his hobby is dishwashing and hers is grass-cutting and they both look forward to retiring and enjoying themselves.

Big Boom Yet Ahead —Knight

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Gov. Knight Saturday predicted "spectacular" future growth for the West with California destined to overtake New York's supremacy in population and industry.

But, he said in a speech before the California State Fair press-radio-television dinner, development of the nation and the West hinges on halting "the encroachment of governmental paternalism."

REPRESENTATIVES of the news media were honored guests during the fourth day of the 12 day exhibition.

Officials of the fair predicted attendance for today would hit over 100,000. The comparable Sunday last year drew 101,394.

Feted today were the Odd Fellows, De Molay, barbershop quartets and Tehama County.

Continuing cool, sunny weather heightened prospects for a whopping Labor Day turnout, Monday, fair officials said.

KNIGHT TOLD the news industry representatives that research experts predict a 17 per cent population rise in the nation in the next 15 years to give the country a total of 200 million people.

"But here on the Pacific slope," he said, "we can expect our population to increase more than 40 per cent, most of it in California, making this state more populous than any of the other 47 in the union."

"While California rapidly overtakes New York in population we are likewise preparing for the day when we will show our heels to the old established center in the matter of industrial plants."

THE GOVERNOR said the West is "only entering its true and fore-ordained phase of dramatic industrial growth."

But to realize the promise of development for the whole nation, he said, Americans must take a stand against "the necessary expansion" of government and the "seemingly irresistible trend to the socialistic state."

Neutralist Anti-Atom Appeal Hit

SACRAMENTO (UP) — Sen. William K. Knowland Saturday chided "well meaning neutralist nations, led by India" for being critical of U. S. nuclear experiments.

"The United States does not intend to be intimidated by neutralists abroad to stop these tests until there can be an adequate system of inspection," the California Republican told a breakfast of California business leaders.

The Senate minority leader observed that there has been a tendency of other governments to criticize our nuclear tests at Bikini and in Nevada.

BUT, HE ADDED, "there has been a strange silence when the Soviet Union conducted its tests in the remote regions of Siberia."

Claims U.S. Imports Substandard Doctors

NEW YORK (UP) — A Columbia University doctor said Saturday more than 25 per cent of the physicians on house staffs of hospitals in the United States are aliens and that many lack a satisfactory professional education.

Dr. Willard C. Rappleye, dean of the faculty of medicine, made the observation in his annual report to the university president.

"At a time when the American medical schools are struggling to maintain high standards, the country is welcoming doctors from every part of the world," Rappleye said.

"Many are excellent individuals with good personal and intellectual qualifications but most of them have had no opportunity in their native lands to acquire a professional education that could be regarded as satisfactory."

"Also included are several thousand Americans who have gone abroad to study medicine because they could not get into an American school."

His report said the influx of foreign physicians stemmed from a national policy of permitting displaced persons without requiring, in the case of doctors, sufficient evidence of their professional qualifications.

"It has been predicted recently that over 5,000 foreign-trained physicians will enter the country this year, compared with a total of 6,977 graduates of all the American medical schools," Rappleye continued.

"Most of the foreigners will be graduates of unapproved schools."

"In many sections of the country there are now two classes of citizens as far as medical services are concerned: those who are to be cared for by physicians who have had a satisfactory preparation for medical practice, and those whose medical care will be provided for by physicians who are graduates of substandard schools."

He said that in some states more than 50 per cent of the physicians on the house staffs of hospitals are aliens.

Fine Carvings Dug Out of Indian Mound

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Fine carvings are being uncovered in an ancient Indian mound located east of here in what may be the oldest continuously inhabited area of the world, an archeologist said Friday.

The mound is being excavated in a race with builders of the Dalles Dam across the Columbia River east of here. The dam's reservoir will flood the site next March.

Dr. Robert Butler, University of Washington archaeologist, directing the exploration with funds from the National Park Service, told the City Club in a talk here that the culture of the mid-Columbia area had been traced from 16,000 years ago to the present. There are remains of cities older than that, he said, but none continuously occupied.

The original inhabitants are believed to have been Indians, probably from Asia, and the Indians living in the area now are close to being their direct descendants, Butler believes.

Train Cuts Tractor Half in Two

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UP) — A freight train ripped into a tractor at a grade crossing near here Saturday, leaving the driver unharmed with the steering wheel in his hand.

The tractor was torn in half and parts of it scattered 400 yards along the track. But Jack Natus, 19, of Hansen, survived without a scratch. He landed only a few feet from the point of collision, still in the tractor seat and with the steering wheel gripped firmly in his hands.

Train Engineer Maurice Muck of Pocatello estimated his speed at 40 miles an hour at the time of impact.

NEW YORK (UP)—A 72-year-old building superintendent, who told conflicting stories about a borrowed patent leather hatbox, was ordered held as a material witness Saturday in the rape-slaying of pretty ballet student Pielades Fieldgrove.

The body of 28-year-old Pielades, named for a constellation, was found by the superintendent Friday in the courtyard of the Green-ville Village apartment house in which she lived.

Police questioned Edward Peter Lamp, superintendent of the apartment house, throughout the night and morning. He told three different stories about how he came into possession of a hatbox such as those carried by New York models and show girls.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Red China has expressed "great regret" over the shooting down of a U. S. Navy plane last week but also has refused to admit definitely that Communist planes were responsible.

Bombs Hurlled on Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)—Terrorist bombs exploded and fire broke out Saturday in the tightly guarded headquarters cantonment of Britain's Joint Middle East Command at Episkopi on the south coast.

Names in the News

Democratic vice presidential candidate Estes Kefauver Saturday cancelled a Labor Day visit with his 86-year-old father, Robert Cooke Kefauver, at Madisonville, Tenn. Kefauver's office said the visit was cancelled in order for the candidate to attend conferences beginning Monday to map out a campaign trip.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said Saturday the time "is here or near" for another summit conference to explore prospects for peace and an end to the atomic arms race. Mansfield, an influential member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he hopes "someone" among the major powers will take the initiative in exploratory talks at the ambassadorial level.

Roscoe K. Fawcett, publisher of True magazine and other monthlies, broke his collarbone in a freak highway accident Saturday night north of Reno, Nev.

1 of 4 to Be in School This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Office of Education said Saturday the 1956-57 school and college enrollment will reach an all-time peak of 41,533,000 persons. This means one of every four persons in the United States will attend school or college this year.

Despite the enrollment increase, Commissioner of Education Samuel M. Brownell said shortages of classrooms and qualified teachers "will be somewhat reduced, although still serious."

"This will be the 12th consecutive year that the total enrollment of schools, colleges, and universities has shown an increase," Brownell said. "The 1956-57 estimated enrollment will be 1,754,300 higher than the previous peak enrollment of 39,798,700 recorded in 1955-56."

THE OFFICE OF EDUCATION estimated public and private school enrollment in kindergarten through the eighth grade will total 29,618,000. This includes 3,985,500 in private and parochial schools. Last year's elementary school enrollment was 28,514,200.

High school enrollment for 1956-57 was estimated at 8,111,600, a jump of 361,500 students over the 1955-56 enrollment of 7,747,100. Private and parochial school enrollment was included at 870,600.

Colleges and universities will enroll an estimated 3,232,000 students. This compares with last year's enrollment of 2,996,000.

Brownell said 36,800 additional kindergarten and 14,600 more high school classrooms are needed to meet the increase.

REPORTS from state departments of education indicate that about 67,000 public elementary and secondary school classrooms and related facilities are scheduled for construction at a cost of about $2.5 billion. This compares with 60,000 new classrooms, costing $2.2 billion, the previous year.

Brownell said the figures indicate some progress is being made in reducing the classroom shortage accumulated over a period of years. He added that the rate of construction should be sharply increased if the needs of children for classrooms are to be met in a reasonable time.

Of the total of $2.5 billion in planned school construction last year, local school districts contributed about $2 billion and the states about $160 million in grants for capital outlay and debt service and $328 million in loans. The federal government contributed $91 million for school construction in federally affected areas.

BROWNELL said 76,100 men and women will enter the teaching profession for the first time this fall. However, the shortage of qualified elementary and high school teachers was estimated at about 120,700. Last year the teacher shortage estimate was 141,300.

The total demand for teachers this fall was estimated at 1,316,100. Although there was a gain of 64,000 in the total number of teachers last year, the Office of Education said schools employed nearly 80,000 teachers who do not meet minimum certification standards.

The office said forecasts for the next 10 years indicate a continuing upward trend in enrollment. The increase between 1956 and 1965 has been tentatively estimated at 30 per cent.

FTC Warns Students of Gyp Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beware the correspondence school that promises draft exemption when you graduate, that approaches you as "one of a select list," that offers a "partial scholarship" because of your record, that claims employers will be practically standing in line to hire you.

And, above all, the Federal Trade Commission cautioned Saturday, beware the correspondence school salesman who tells you that you must "act now."

The FTC reported it had issued 10 cease and desist orders against gyp schools the last 16 months. Executive Director Alex Akerman Jr., said it was intensifying its efforts against them as stories of hastily-signed contracts for tuition of $200 to $400 flood into FTC headquarters.

Principal offenders, the FTC said, are schools offering training in civil service work, home handicraft and mechanical trades and courses in motel management, nursing, horticulture—even medicine and music.

Dave Richman, with an unbeaten record, was the top pitcher and clinched his season by setting a league mark of 21 strikeouts in a single game. Brian McCall of Bickel's posted the second best record, losing only one game and holding the strikeout record of 17 until Richman broke it.

Next most effective hurlers were Beach City's Frankie Smith and Woody Williams. Dave Richman not only was the top pitcher, but also led the league in batting with 17 for 37 and a .459 average. He beat out Big Mike Giers of Peterson Construction by two points.

OKLAHOMA NEAR WIN RECORD

By Associated Press
Oklahoma can better its own modern collegiate football record for consecutive victories by defeating North Carolina and Kansas State in its first two tests this fall.

Since they tied Pittsburgh, 7-7, early in 1933, the defending national champion Sooners have rolled through 30 games unbeaten and untied.

Winning has become an old Oklahoma custom under Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Between a 20-17 loss to Santa Clara in the 1948 opener and Kentucky's 13-7 upset in the Sugar Bowl, Jan. 1, 1951, the Sooners recorded the longest victory string of modern times—31 straight.

THE STRING DOES NOT approach the all-time mark of 48 consecutive triumphs by Yale (1885-89) but it stands as the top modern college achievement, according to an Associated Press survey.

Unless complacency hits Oklahoma's talent-rich squad, the Sooners could carve deeply their new niche in the gridiron records before meeting defeat again.

Many experts feel that Oklahoma's Oct. 27 date with Notre Dame will determine the 1956 national titlist.

Oklahoma's two leading performers in the unbeaten, untied category are closely followed by Michigan State's 28 victories from 1950 until Purdue's 6-0 shocker in '53.

Army, Southern California and Michigan are tied with 25 consecutive triumphs.

The Cadets traveled with open throttle from the start of 1944 until the historic 0-0 tie with Notre Dame late in '46. SC's string covered 1931-33 and Michigan's from the end of 1946 until Army stunned the Wolverines, 21-7, in '49.

All-America tailback Dick Greek Game
First as 'Kid'
Disqualified

By the Associated Press
Jockey Willie Shoemaker and Rex Ellsworth's California Kid beat the highly regarded Eastern two-year-old, Greek Game, for the second straight time Saturday but the latter was awarded the victory in the $143,510 Washington Park Futurity as California Kid was disqualified and placed second.

Willie Hartmatz, aboard Greek Game, lodged the protest as soon as California Kid flashed across the wire a neck in front in a stirring stretch duel. The stewards agreed that Shoemaker's mount bumped Greek Game unnecessarily in the stretch.

Time for the six furlongs was 1:10 4/5. Greek Game, the second choice, paid $5 to win. California Kid was the surprising even money choice.

King Harlan, as expected, walked off with the biggest part of the Hopeful Stakes purse at Saratoga as he came from behind to catch the pace-setting Nearctic in another test for two-year-olds, this one at six and one-half furlongs.

With Eddie Arcaro in the saddle, King Harlan raced the distance in 1:18 2/5, one-fifth slower than Needles' time last year, and the even money favorite paid $410.

Betz Hits Five

Roy Picks
$109 Double

The Independent's Roy Betz, king of handicappers in the Southland, really sent his followers home happy following Saturday's Del Mar Race card as he hit five winners, including an individual $109.60 payoff in the first race and both ends of the daily double which returned a juicy $109.20.

Betz had Manheim in the first ($10.80), Third Down in the second ($6.40), which combined for the double; Irish in the fourth ($4.50); Sully's Trail in the fifth ($5.20) and Golden Rage in the seventh ($0.50).

Manheim was Roy's BEST BET of the day. His suggested WIN PARLAY—Irish to Sully's Trail—also clicked. Terry and Holly of The Independent staff had Boston for a whopping $25.80 payoff in the third as did the Consensus.

Kazmaier was around most of the time while Princeton posted a string of 24 from 1948 until 1952. Southern California blanketed Tennessee, 14-0, in the 1940 Rose Bowl game to snap a 23-game skid for the Volunteers.

On the basis of undefeated records only—not counting ties—Notre Dame holds the modern mark of 39 from the first game of 1946 until 1950.

Oklahoma will be gunning for Notre Dame with a vengeance this year because the Fighting Irish are responsible for two of the eight setbacks Oklahoma's eleven have received under Wilkinson (84 victories, eight losses, three ties).

In fact, Notre Dame is the record at stake going into the only team to whip the Sooners coming campaign, too. The since Texas A&M (14-7) and Texas (9-7) caught them on successive weekends at the beginning of the 1951 campaign. The Irish won 27-21 in 1952 and 28-21 a year later.

HOWEVER, JIM TATUM could keep Oklahoma from even tying its record. Tatum and Wilkinson learned the split-T offense under Don Faurot and perfected it. Wilkinson served under Tatum one year at Oklahoma before taking over when Jim moved to Maryland.

Tatum now is back at his Alma Mater, North Carolina, where he's building for the future but might cause the Sooners trouble in their opener. Oklahoma has some other

11TH LABOR DAY CLASSIC

Top Field in Regatta

By BOR RUNKAUFF

Monday's 11th Labor Day regatta on Long Beach Marine Stadium goes down as semi-final of the 1956 season of regatta on the noted Long Beach course.

Beginning at noon, nine fleets of hydroplanes and runabouts will have at it in a program of 18 races, conducted under aegis of the Southern California Speedboat Club.

Usually the Labor Day action writes off the year for "lanky lagoon," but this time the swan song effort will, of course, be the 1956 National Outboard Championships of the American Power Boat Association.

Previewing Monday's stadium action, it appeared that the 1955 entry of 86 boats may well be surpassed. Too, most of last year's winners will be on deck to defend.

Bill Meyer of Hollywood, retired from competition following a serious accident at Turlock, will be regatta chairman.

ON THE SAILING FRONT—Several three-day regattas got underway Saturday—action continues full and by this afternoon. With classes now able to race on both bay and ocean, the Alamitos Bay YC's fixture this time has considerable added stature.

At Newport-Balboa, on mile high Lake Arrowhead and at San Diego, other major holiday series continue today.

Also, Southlanders look toward Italy. For today, on the Bay of Naples, San Diego's Lowell North and Jim Hill will be among six U. S. challengers going into the five-race Gold Star (International) Star boat series. North, a young (22) but veteran challenger in world performance, is considered among most dangerous threats in the series.

The 1955 inboard winners expected to defend laurels in the

FOR NINE HOURS OF VALOR AT CARIG
Major Henry F. Schroeder, U. S. Army retired, smiles in remembrance of a harrowing day in 1900 during the Philippine Insurrection when he and 22 comrades of Co. L, 16th Inf. Reg., beat off a siege of 400 Filipino insurgents. Schroeder, 81, of 6257 Vista St., won the Congressional Medal of Honor. He has given the medal to his old regiment.—(Staff Photo.)

Philippines Hero Gives Old Outfit His Medal of Honor

By BOB HOUSER
It's a long hitch between a bugle call at San Juan Hill and a chrome-plated jeep on a Kansas prairie. Those points circumscribe the career—man and boy—of Henry F. Schroeder, 5167 Vista St., one of the oldest living winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor.
Gen. Hamilton S. Hawkins gave Schroeder—then a young noncom—the order to sound the charge at San Juan almost six decades ago. The general was impressed enough by Schroeder's prowess as a resourceful courier to recommend him for the CMH.
However, the citation was reduced to Silver Star.

IT TOOK a couple more years and a new uprising—the Philippine Insurrection—for Schroeder's CMH recommendation to bear fruit. He was presented the nation's highest military award for valor on March 10, 1902, for heroic action at Carig, Philippines, on Sept. 14, 1900.
His outfit: Co. L, 16th Infantry Regiment, 1st Division.
For four glorious days this summer, the new 16th at Fort Riley, Kan., reminded retired Major Schroeder of his deeds and how they felt about him. He brought home a heavy parchment scroll making him an honorary lifetime member of the 16th regiment.
There, in a chromed jeep reserved for VIP's, the 81-year-old, mustached soldier reviewed 2,700 troops. There he gave the regiment his original Medal of Honor for its brand new historical library. There he started, but never finished, a prepared speech of thanks for their tribute to him. He was so overcome he was unable to continue. And there, Pearl Schroeder, the major's wife, also broke down as a military chorus crooned, "Old Soldiers Never Die."
The solemn chanty held more than passing significance to Schroeder. He knew both the MacArthurs, Gen. Arthur MacArthur, also a CMH winner, headed a special board examining CMH recommendations about the time Schroeder earned his.
IN THOSE DAYS, citations for the nation's greatest military tribute were brief. Schroeder's read: "With 22 men defeated 400 insurgents, killing 35 and wounding 90."
Schroeder recalled the battle: The 400-guerrilla force surrounded Schroeder's 23-man outpost during the night; apparently bent on capturing Col. Charles C. Hood, who, in a change of plans, left the camp hours before.
A sentry roused then-Sgt. Schroeder and the camp at 4:30 a.m. By 5 a.m., Schroeder had received a 45-70 slug in his left hip, a slug which he still carries in the hip. But the sergeant's band, under his command, fought to victory by 1:30 p.m.
"We buried 36 in one hole," Schroeder said, "and wounded 90 we knew of. Col. Hood

Arbiters Land Here to Name Sea Queen

Thirty-one Navy men who will judge the Mrs. U. S. Navy Contest starting here Thursday have arrived in Long Beach. Ship's cook third class Anthony R. Torcivia made the longest trip, travelling from his base at the Naval Air Station in Port Lyautey, French Morocco, as representative of the commander of the Northern Europe and Mediterranean Area.

The judges have come from each of the Navy's 31 commands. One contestant represents each command also.

ONLY LOCAL MAN in the group of judges is Henry O. Collis, chief yeoman. Collis is attached to the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. He represents the chief of naval air training.

The week-and-a-half-long judging at the Wilton Hotel will wind up Sept. 15 with the crowning of the first Mrs. U. S. Navy. Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas will crown the new queen.

Sept. 14, Thomas will take the largest fleet review ever held on the West Coast.

Aboard the USS St. Paul, Thomas will cruise through more than 80 fighting vessels lined up in the outer harbor here off Rainbow Pier. The affair will climax with a flyover of dozens of Navy airplanes and a show by the famous Navy Blue Angels precision aerobatic team.

Broker's Aide Pulls 'Boner' in Nixon Ad

The businessman brother of Vice President Richard M. Nixon Saturday described as in the "worst possible taste" a brokerage-firm salesman's letter to Young Republican groups announcing that shares of Nixon's, Inc., were being offered to the public.

At the same time, Emerson B. Morgan, president of the investment brokerage firm of Morgan & Co., termed the recent letter a "boo-boo" and described it as merely an attempt by an over-eager salesman to market the stock.

THE SALESMAN'S letter made no mention of the Vice President nor did it contain his name.

It stated in part: "I am writing you as a representative area group president of the Los Angeles County Young Republicans to request that you mention the stock offering at your next meeting." Morgan said he ordered the letter withdrawn when he learned of it.

DONALD NIXON, the vice president's brother, reiterated a statement of the past declaring the vice president has "absolutely no interest financial or otherwise in Nixon's Inc. and never has had any."

The letter, sent by salesman Walter E. Peter, stated ownership of the stock would permit shareholders to participate in the growth of all the Nixon firm's enterprises, which include a supermarket, family restaurant and drive-in in Whittier, a restaurant in Fullerton and a drive-in to be opened soon in Anaheim adjacent to Disneyland.

DONALD NIXON issued this statement: "My brother, the Vice President, has absolutely no interest financially or otherwise in Nixon's, Inc. and never has had any. So it was in the worst possible taste for Mr. Peter to seek to bring him into this completely unrelated business enterprise in such a letter to Young Republicans."

Public Works Chief May Take L.A. Job

By GEORGE WEEKS, City Hall Reporter

A one-vote margin in the City Council may result in a vacancy at the head of the city's largest service department.

By a 5-4 majority the council has rejected a special salary increase of $132 monthly recommended by City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers for James Kincaid, director of public service.

Although Vickers refused to comment on the Council's action, it was learned his office has not given up hope of reversing the decision.

Vickers asked that Kincaid's pay, which will be boosted from $1,038 to $1,176 per month effective Oct. 1, be raised again to $1,308 per month, or $15,696 annually, effective Oct. 16.

Kincaid reportedly has been offered a salary of $23,000 annually to head the County Road Dept. He has temporarily withheld replying to the offer.

A VETERAN of 19 years city service, Kincaid heads a 600-man department which handles such functions as garbage and rubbish collection and maintenance of city streets. The department's budget for this year is $4,903,666.

Voicing against the pay raise were Mayor George M. Vermlion and Councilmen Toby Wick, Raymond C. Kealer, D. Pat Ahern and John F. Baker. Supporting it were Councilmen Gerald Desmond, Lewis D. Reese, Charles M. Garrison and Virgil H. Sponberg.

Wick argued that if the city attempts to base its salaries on individual offers from other sources "we are going to be in trouble." He added that pay scales should be adjusted no

Masons to Hear Buffalo Expert

Pushmataha, Cherokee Indian associated with the Newport Beach Buffalo Ranch, will talk about Indians and buffaloes at a meeting of Long Beach Masonic Club Thursday noon in the Wilton Hotel. Ray Coleman will be chairman of the day, and the Rev. Dr. Russell M. Brougher will preside.

JAMES KINCAID Pay Boost Rejected

often than semiannually or annually. He also recalled that the council rejected a request for a special raise for a gas department job classification because the budget had only recently been approved.

OTHER COUNCILMEN emphasized that the request for the additional increase for Kincaid was made more than a month before his latest raise becomes effective.

Vickers said it is impossible to anticipate competitive pay offers far in advance.

The pay scale proposed for Kincaid merely places him on a parity with City Engineer Jess D. Glickerson, Vickers added.

He pointed out that San Diego pays $1,481 monthly for the comparable position of director of public works. Both outside data and internal relationships support the proposed increase, he asserted.

None of the opposition councilmen questioned Kincaid's record and qualifications. But they noted he will be eligible eventually for valuable retirement benefits under the integrated pension system now pending.

Money raised in the solicitation is used to aid not only the blind, but also needy persons who need glasses, treatment or other services to help correct their vision.

TAKING PART in the campaign in this area are members of the Downtown, West Long Beach, North Long Beach, Signal Hill, Los Altos, Belmont Shore and Lakewood Lions Clubs. Vito Romans is zone chairman of the campaign, which is a Lions Club project in 18 states.

Los Angeles County has more than 10,000 blind persons, Romans said. Countless others have sight problems which could be at least partially corrected.

Persons who contribute to the campaign will receive a pin in the shape of a white cane.

$340 Stolen Out of Parked Car

Three water skiers Saturday reported the theft of $340 from their billfolds, locked in the glove compartment of their car while they were water skiing. Franklin H. Besson, of Whittier, Thomas C. McGinley, of Alhambra, and Douglas Lee Evenson, of Puente, told police that they left their billfolds in the glove compartment of their car parked in the public parking lot at the foot of Golden Ave. When they returned the glove compartment had been opened.

12 TOP BANDS COMPETE Play at 2 Charity Dances

More than 12 top Western, popular, country swing and Spanish bands will compete for $500 prize money in a pair of dance programs in Municipal Auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight and Monday.

Proceeds will be earmarked for a ranch on which partially-paralyzed men could live and work, sponsors Dusty Ward of 1858½ Atlantic Ave. and Bob Corain of 1336 Linden Ave. said. Tickets for both dances are available at the door, Humphreys Music Co., or from local disc jockeys.

Nine square dance teams from Southern California also will participate in the event.

UNION regulations kept the Long Beach Youth Band out of the Cow Palace at San Francisco during the GOP convention, but the local toolers managed to get in a busy schedule of appearances, here and there.

The union didn't exactly crack down, but advised Mgr. Gordon Carmen that it hoped he wouldn't try to play in the "palace." He went along, and arranged for the band to play at the airport when Eisenhower arrived, to serenade Ike at the St. Francis when he left for his acceptance speech, on the street, at a couple of TV and radio shows, and at Letterman General Hospital. It was dubbed Ike's "official" band. For the hospital effort, the band has received a warmly commendatory letter from Maj. Gen. Paul Robertson, the commanding officer.

A CLERK at a local women's wear store went to a wedding and saw sitting in front of her a customer who had in the week previous purchased a hat she was wearing at the rites. Next day, the customer came in to return the hat, saying she just didn't think it was quite right. "It looked nice on you at the wedding," said the clerk. Startled and embarrassed, the lady decided to keep the hat after all.

DRYWOOD—The first full U. S. fleet review since 1934 will be staged in Long Beach Harbor Sept. 14 in connection with the Mrs. U. S. Navy contest. City Councilman Toby Wick, who lives in the same district as Councilman Raymond Kealer, says he's not going to move to another district to run for reelection. Wick either won't run, or will run against Kealer if the latter remains also in the district and decides to run. A delicate political problem there. . . . Rolland Hawk tossed a dart at this columnist on the street, after noting my remarks about the Pine Ave. paving job started while I was at the conventions. ## CITY ON A SIDETRACK

Lo, the Vanishing Red Car

(Second of 4 Articles)
By SPENCER CRUMP

"An impossible nightmare!"

This would be the reaction toward today's interurban travel systems of the people who settled the sleepy little seaside resort of Long Beach 60 years ago. For fun or business in the big city, they could travel to Los Angeles on the red cars in approximately an hour or drive without seeing more than a dozen autos or buggies along the way.

Today, despite technical improvements, the rail trip takes 1½ hours and you had best figure more than an hour by highway.

Interurban travel has been reduced to the night-marish elements of bumper-to-bumper cars honking frantically on freeways outmoded almost as soon as they are built.

Buses and electric cars move slowly on crowded streets, trying the patience of commuters.

DESPITE LONG BEACH'S amazing growth during the past 50 years, the comparative quality of its public transportation has drastically deteriorated.

Once adequate and convenient rail and ship passenger service has vanished, making it difficult to start transcontinental trips from Long Beach.

Even though the city boasts a modern airport, it is necessary to travel miles over crowded highways to board a transcontinental plane.

But more harassed than those who occasionally make transcontinental trips are the men and women who must use transportation daily.

For commuters, the problem of transportation, difficult for the past 10 years, is becoming even more tangled as highways become even more packed and public transportation becomes even slower on more crowded vehicles.

The commuter's transportation problem can be traced back primarily to two factors—this area's growth and its leaders' failure to cope with the situation.

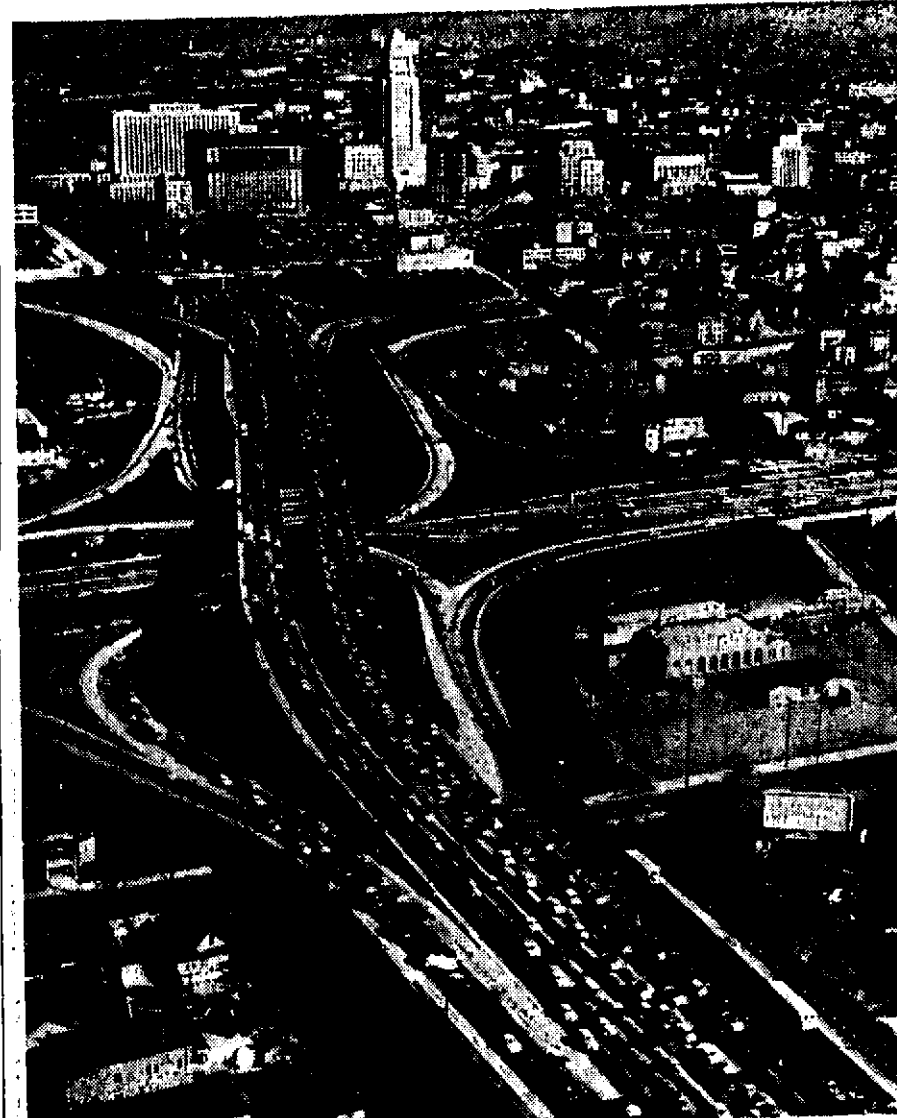

FIFTY YEARS AGO the

Southland's population was less than 200,000—with Los Angeles boasting 102,479 people and Long Beach an up-and-coming city proud of every one of its 1,681 residents. At that time the Pacific Electric Railway was developed into what was acclaimed as the world's largest and most efficient interurban system. At the system's peak, its famed red cars sped over 1,106 miles of track. It connected communities from San Fernando to Redlands and from Santa Monica and Venice to Balboa, Westminster, Yorba Linda and Garden Grove. At a time when automobiles moved slowly over inadequate roads, the big red cars rushed passengers at 60-miles-an-hour on its express routes.

TODAY, WITH Los Angeles

population well over 2,000,000, Long Beach's more than 300,000 and still growing and a greater need than ever for public transportation, the 1,106 miles of passenger track have been reduced to 105.

Most of this is between Long Beach and Los Angeles and service on it will be eventually discontinued under plans of the Metropolitan Coach Co., bus operating firm which recently

Discounts on auto insurance for owners whose cars are equipped with safety seat belts is a feature of a new policy package to be offered by Allstate Insurance Co.

R. H. Loewe, manager of the Long Beach regional office, said that with other features, such as provision for repayment of lost wages in the event of court appearances to defend bodily injury law suits, the package is the broadest auto insurance coverage in the history of the industry.

The 15 per cent discount feature applies to cars equipped with safety belts when auto medical payments and death disability protections are included in the policy.

Power Firm Case Dismissed

BAKER, Ore. (AP)—A circuit judge dismissed an indictment brought against the Idaho Power Co. for starting to build Brownlee Dam on the Snake River without a license from the Oregon Hydroelectric Commission.

Judge F. L. Hubbard held that "no state can exercise, by any state law or regulation, a veto power against the action of the Federal Power Commission, acting under the Federal Power Act."

The judge said "the license granted is paramount over the laws of the State of Oregon for the construction and operation of the dam."

'57 Car Change: Prices

More Glass, Pushbuttons Coming Up

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Automotive Editor
DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry's designers and manufacturers currently are experiencing their annual period of nervous tension. They are about to introduce new model cars with broad styling and engineering advances. They insist they never make radical changes but they always are concerned about how projected changes will be accepted.

The auto builders are not switching to gas turbine or "free piston" engines. Neither are they "revolutionizing" their styling. But the changes in the 1957 line of cars are intended to make your old car obsolete. That's why models are changed annually.

Public Likes Plaza Deal

Opening of 11wy. 39 Plaza has met with strong public acceptance, sales agent Gilbert Hayes reports. Under the development's purchase plan, a family may move into a home with an initial payment of $100, Hayes said. Purchasers who act promptly may take possession before school starts, he added. Monthly payments for veterans range from $73 to $77. Income requirements vary from $325 to $350 a month. Luxury living at 11wy. 39 Plaza, Hayes said.

Not Tied
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Of-fleets said everything but a 10-ton trailer was tied down at a construction site in Oklahoma County. Somebody stole the trailer.

There will be more glass in all makes. There will be more pushbuttons. There will be more "step-down" body designs. One manufacturer, about to present his 1957 models at a press review, puts it this way: "There will be tremendous changes in our line for 1957; there will be a basic shift in our approach to the car market."

THAT MAY sound somewhat like the usual tom-tom beating for a new model presentation. Yet most persons who know something about the industry's planning for 1957 agree the changes will enhance eye-appeal and also stimulate the interest of motorists mechanically inclined.

The manufacturers' sales chiefs are counting upon these changes to overcome whatever resistance might be expected to auto retailers always have to result from higher price tags, make some price concessions in a buyer's market. But the surveys show the current cleanup of outgoing models is perhaps the most orderly the industry has experienced in many years. Whether competitive factors will hold down the increases at the retail level is still to be determined. However, there are some among the industry analysts who say quality improvement alone will justify much of the price increase.

THERE ARE others, too, who foresee a sharper control on assembly line output, spelling an end to some of the fantastic price discounting and exorbitant trade-in allowances that have marked retail car merchandising during the last five or six years. They get support for this view in current retailing surveys.

These disclose an increasing number of new car sales at prices closer to full gross price. The auto makers already are paying higher prices for steel. They are not sure that they can escape further increases for other raw materials.

HERE AND there about the country dealers are holding "pressure" sales—"100 cars must be sold regardless of price," and "buy now before prices go up."

But the practice is not nearly as widespread as it was in 1955 and the preceding two or three years. Most recent surveys of the industry's retailing division indicate there are some car buyers who believe competitive factors will hold down any major price increase for next year's cars. This view is not shared by any persons close to the manufacturing division.

The auto makers already are paying higher prices for steel. They are not sure that they can escape further increases for other raw materials.

An approved course of instruction for the insurance agents and solicitors license will be available soon for the first time in this area, says George L. Richards, chairman of the education advisory committee of the Long Beach Insurance Assn.

This program will be conducted by Long Beach City College at the request of the education committee which felt this plan will make it possible for any company or agency, no matter how small, to take advantage of the certificate of convenience to bring new agents and solicitors into the industry. The course, which will start Sept. 11, will have sessions Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. for one semester.

Bear and Raven Stage Battle

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP)—A grizzly bear and a raven were seen in a "cat-and-mouse" game. Glacier National Park Ranger A. D. ## Santa Ana Story Book's Plan Popular Tract Proud of Kitchens

Still heading the list of "firsts" in the "Prince Charming" series of Fairview Ranches Homes in Santa Ana is the all-new kitchen by Waste King, which includes automatic dishwasher, garbage disposer, gas range and oven.

Women in the family are particularly enthusiastic over the pastel color schemes which are pleasant backgrounds to the work areas and appliances. Because so much interest has been shown in this feature, D. & E. Corp., builder-developers of the project, has decided to incorporate the Waste King kitchen in all residences in the new unit, according to Frank Chantel, agent.

THE LATEST UNIT in the current series is open today so families may take advantage of the long weekend to inspect the homes and take possession before school starts.

A rustic provincial treatment, using a low, sweeping roof and quaint shuttered, diamond-cut windows, plus used-brick trim, has been given the exterior. Concrete patios, 120 square feet in area, and terraces complete with redwood dividers, planter boxes and garden light-sea-

Many families are taking advantage of a plan whereby they may trade in their present homes on luxurious new residences in Chapman Woods, Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, reported.

The trade-in plan enables buyers to get the maximum sales price for the equity in their present homes, the agents said. Immediate occupancy is available. Priced from $17,850 to $14,950, the "Story Book" homes are at Chapman Ave. and Ninth St., Garden Grove.

AMONG THE many features of the homes are sliding window walls, aluminum casement windows, fireplaces, pullman-type lavatories, tiled stall showers, central hall planning, cathedral ceilings, cove lighting, television outlets and washable interior walls. Some models have indoor barbecue facilities.

Also offered are big, two-car garages, large lots and a choice of ranch style or contemporary architectural treatments.

'Mansionette' Fills Need for All-Purpose Playroom

The Mansionette, described as "a really complete, all-purpose family recreation room," is proving popular with Southland families, Chet Burnett of the Burnett Construction Co. said. A big factor in boosting sales is financing flexible enough to meet all budget requirements.

provide glamour touches. Conveniences include apattern-inlaid linoleum in kitchens and separate service porches, custom-selected lighting fixtures in dining areas, corallite around tubs, scenic and mural wallpapers.

To reach Fairview Ranches from Long Beach drive east on 7th St. (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol; right on Bristol to Fairview.

Burnett added. Total price of the "Mansionette" is $2,250, with no down payment necessary.

The "Mansionette" was designed to fill a wide variety of needs, Burnett said. It serves as a playroom for the children, a sewing room for mothers, a favorite hangout for teenagers—and doubles as a den for dad. A prime advantage of dealing with the company, Burnett said, is the "really thorough, beforehand planning that goes into these rooms."

Prestige Dwellings at Skylark Terrace

Homes which fully answer every requirement of family living and also provide luxurious extras are offered in Skylark Terrace Town and Country Unit 2 in Garden Grove, says Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers of the subdivision.

"Skylark Terrace homes have set a standard as prestige dwellings in a fast-growing area where new shopping districts, schools and churches are being constructed," Tietz said. "The wide, spacious lots of up to 85-foot frontages, generous living areas of up to 1,500 square feet, attractive architectural treatments and many luxury features contribute to the continued popularity of the development."

EFFICIENCY kitchens with Hotpoint wall ovens, range burners, garbage disposal, dishwasher and exhaust fan, and ample cupboards and Formica counter tops are among the strongest selling points of the houses.

Other features are massive fireplaces, sliding glass "lanai" walls, outdoor barbecues and grills, 80,000 BTU forced-air furnaces, hardwood floors, heavy drapes, shingle or dolomite rock roofs, light and plaster construction, Pullman baths with Formica and tile, etched-glass shower doors and landscaped front yards. Swimming pools and air conditioning are available as optional equipment.

THE HOMES can be purchased on F.I.A. or V.A. terms. Veterans with monthly incomes of $350 need no down payment. A $900 down payment is required of non-veterans.

Models are open daily and Sunday at Brookhurst St. and Chapman Ave. From Long Beach, drive out 7th St. to Brookhurst St., then north to Chapman Ave.

After All, Police Really Are Human!

IONIA — A pretty girl walking past in shorts diverted two policemen emptying a parking meter. The collection bag shifted and coins spilled into the street.

As bystanders guffawed, the two red-faced officers chased down the scattered money. They had to call a third policeman to direct main street traffic while they moved parked cars to dig coins out of a sewer.

New Home Has Bay View, Right Through the Floor!

A new home under construction by George D. Buccola at China Cove in Newport Harbor will not only have an unobstructed view of the harbor entrance, the jetty, and the ocean beyond, but will also have a view of the surging bay through the floor.

This is being done by cleverly cantilevering out in front of the bulkhead and then using a two foot by five foot 1/2-inch plate glass floor window, which will permit looking down on the rocks and water below. There will also be lights to light up the marine scene at night.

The home will be Chinese modern in design, with every possible feature, such as wall-hung refrigerator, built-in electric ovens and range, and dishwasher, all in decorator colors.

Shirts Are Lost but Boy Is Safe

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — Dale Edward Vinsett, 12, was missing from his home and his family feared he had drowned in a stock pond.

Magic was called into play to locate his body. A neighbor woman tossed a couple of Dale's shirts into the pond. She said that the spot where they sank was where he'd be found.

Dale was found, all right. He was at the home of a friend.

New Approach Homes Open--by Appointment

Builders of the New Approach Homes in Anaheim have devised a new method of showing off their models—by appointment only.

The aim is to give prospective buyers an opportunity to browse through the model homes without being squeezed by crowds of sight-seers.

Appointments still are being made for families to view the new community of 110 three- and four-bedroom, two-bath homes at Lincoln and Dale Aves. during the Labor Day weekend, officials of the Butler-Harbor Construction Co., the builder.

FOUR MODEL homes are on display. A spokesman for the sales agents, Walker & Lee, Inc., said these may be viewed by making appointments. The appointments can be made by telephoning JACKSON 7-5717, by writing the New Approach, 8333

Lincoln Ave., Anaheim, or by calling at the property in person. The Butler-Harbor Homes, priced in the $16,000 to $18,000 range on F.I.A. and 10-per-cent down V.A. terms, are being built expressly for families with incomes of $500 a month or more.

THE SALES representative pointed out that each family is shown the model home of its choice by a qualified salesman specially trained to answer all questions about location, construction and other features. Then the family may browse at will through the other models.

The homes were designed by Roy W. Donley, AIA, Architect. He is described as straightforward and devoid of extremes or faddish features. Colors used in-

School Near New Homes

Excelsior Village, a community with a nearby elementary school safely situated away from main streets, offers immediate occupancy on V.A. or F.I.A. terms.

Closeness of school will give Mom more time to enjoy the kids built into Excelsior Village kitchens—built-in ranges and ovens, built-in washer-dryer combination, many extra-space natural-finish hardwood cabinets and American-Standard fixtures.

Dad will like the large two-car garages, safe paved streets and sidewalks and extra spacious pool-sized, landscaped lots. Each house has a built-in fire alarm system to warn occupants at night.

The homes can be reached by driving out 7th St. to Brookhurst St., then right to the models.

Showing in Lemon Heights

Lemon Heights West, new community development of Schwartz-Yedor, builder-developers, in the Lemon Heights district of suburban Santa Ana, will be shown this Labor Day weekend, report officials of White House Realty Co., sales agents.

The first showing will be marked by impressive key-turning ceremonies in the first finished and furnished model homes. Hereafter, model homes will be open daily and Sundays for public inspection. An enlarged sales and hostess staff will be present this weekend to assure each prospective home-buyer personalized attention.

LOCATED ON "estate-zoned" sites, controlled by architectural restrictions, each home in this new community was custom-designed by John C. Lindsay, AIA, for luxurious large-family living. Newton S. Leichter did the interior decoration.

Because home sites average 10,000 square feet, many of the models have front elevations 90 feet wide. Residences have about 1,800 square feet of living space.

Indirect lighting ceiling panels in halls, floor-to-ceiling dividers with a fireplace on the living room side and indoor barbecue on the family room side, powder rooms, wall fireplaces and all-electric Westinghouse kitchen in confection colors are among the 60 custom features.

Westinghouse kitchen features built-in wall oven, range top, automatic dishwasher, sink-in-stalled disposer, wall-hung combination refrigerator-freezer, separate washer and dryer, and a desk with built-in overhead bookcases.

Offered in 22 custom-designed exteriors, the homes also offer a variety of floor plans.

Lemon Heights West is reached from Long Beach by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to 17th St.; 17th St. to Hewes Ave.; north on Hewes Ave. to Spaulding Ave. and left again to entrance of estates and model residences.

'Enchanting' Houses at Cinderella Homes

It's not a fairy tale . . . but almost unbelievable is the fact that such luxuriously planned homes as the Cinderella Homes in Anaheim can sell for such reasonable prices, according to the many, many "lookers" and buyers who visit these enchanting homes daily, salesmen report.

Featured as the home with the "$23,000 look," the homes cost only $14,890 to $18,250 and with special "extras" and appliances which Builders Shannon and Jene Vandruft have allowed, Vets may purchase a home for payments as low as $73.99 including principal and interest.

The homes, each of them a bit of enchantment, come in eight floor plans, including reverses, and 17 exteriors. Each is on a 72-foot wide lot allowing plenty of roominess and opportunity for suburban-loving residents to exercise their green thumbs to best advantage.

FLOOR PLANS are extremely functional and allow for maximum of comfort and usefulness. Shuttered openings between spacious living room and kitchen give the housewife opportunity to view television or carry on a conversation with guests even while preparing dinner.

Used brick fireplaces stretch ceiling high and are eight feet wide, adding beauty and romance, and the plans are further enhanced by hardwood paneling, golden oak floors, sliding glass walls and, most rooms, custom wallpapers.

Choice is afforded of three bedrooms, four bedrooms, or the popular three-and-a-family room, but each home has two full baths, one with a six-foot ceramic tiled shower.

The kitchen is equipped with Formica decks, disposers, exhaust fans, and many have Formica shelves between the kitchen and dining area. Built-in oven and range are optional.

AMONG THE many "extras" are built-in speakers for music, hand-painted ceramic light switch plates, expensive, tasteful custom lighting fixtures, electric lights in all closets, brick planters and veneer across the front.

Four of the models have been decorated by Hyron White of Downey.

The Cinderella Homes may be reached by going out the Santa Ana freeway to Hwy. 39 in Buena Park. Continue south past

CINDERELLA'S '$23,000 LOOK'

Cinderella Homes in Anaheim are priced from $14,890 but feature a "$23,000 look." This living area of one such home shows a ceiling-high used brick fireplace while one wall has rich wall paneling.

Knott's Berry Farm and through son St., which becomes Lincoln to models, one-quarter mile Ave.; turn south to Hwy. 39 to south of Orange Ave. From models, one-quarter mile south Long Beach, drive east on Car of Orange Ave.

Open House Today, Monday at New L. B. Apartments

Open house will be held from noon to 7 p. m. today and Monday at Mrs. Jo Knopp's new eight-unit apartment house at 40 Bennett Ave., at the Hedrick headquarters, 431 S. San Gabriel Blvd.

The building, now almost completed, has eight one-bedroom "San Gabriel Deluxe" units of California modern style. Features of the apartments include knotty pine kitchen cabinets, a breakfast bar, ample closet space, garbage disposals and plastered walls.

A LONG folding door allows the living room and bedroom to become one large room. The building was constructed by J. H. Hedrick & Co. of San Gabriel, specialists in low-cost apartment dwellings. Models are open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. (until 9 p. m. Mondays).

Don't Let Your Vision Freeze

BOSTON (U.P.)—Don't let your vision freeze in summer time if you would avoid highway accidents. So advises Richard W. Hoover, Boston safety director for the American Automobile Assn. "Many accidents occur because drivers keep their eyes glued to the immediate front and fail to look far enough ahead and often fail to take in the view from both sides. "It's a big beautiful country," he added. "Keep your eye on the road but also take in the big picture."

Sale at Signature Homes Top Half-Million Dollars

Sales and reservations topped the half-million-dollar mark last weekend at Signature Homes' twin communities of traditional-style dwellings at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves., Garden Grove, the builders announced.

Priced from $15,800, the "First Edition" four-bedroom or three-bedroom and family room, two-bath homes may be purchased on monthly payments from $67.60. "Special Edition" homes, priced from $11,700, also have three bedrooms and two baths and are offered on terms of from $52.50 a month.

Grand opening of the development was last week. It attracted record crowds, the builders said.

Colorama Homes Open to Veterans

A limited number of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes now are available for veterans in the new Colorama Homes development on Delhi Rd. just east of Bristol St. in Santa Ana.

Any of the homes may be purchased for about $13,500, builder Anthony Kuri said. No down payment is required from veterans, and monthly payments are $68.43.

DON COLEMAN CO. is sales agent for the development.

Still available in the unit are all of the 21 plans designed by architect Martin A. Stern Jr., whose work has won national awards.

Stern formerly specialized in custom homes, and his concern for detail and colorful styling is reflected in Colorama Homes.

A bonus feature of Colorama Homes is full landscaping and five-foot redwood fences enclosing each rear yard.

FOUR furnished model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

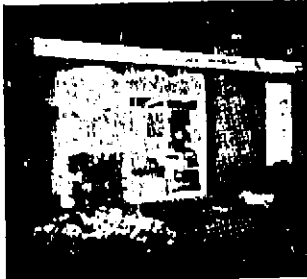

Among features of "First Edition" homes are wood-burning fireplaces, lavish use of ceramic tile and color-styled built-in ranges. The lower-priced homes were designed for more moderate budgets.

Cinderella HOMES

are the most talked-about homes in America, because they are . . .

priced at $14,890 to $16,250

THE COMPLETELY convincing proof of the above statement is in the homes themselves. Every inch of construction, every phase of finish, every tiny detail of decoration and color co-ordination eloquently says "expensive."

Homes of exquisite design that were created to give the discriminating home buyer the best in gracious and comfortable living for his family. The interiors were carefully designed to give an atmosphere of peace and tranquility; their character is warm and "homey" and wonderfully restful. You will agree when you see Cinderella Homes that they are indeed "the buy of a lifetime in which you will want to spend a lifetime."

Deep Wildcat Gasser Produces

HOUSTON (AP)—A three-and-one-half-mile deep hole in the ground has found gas with a 11,000-pounds per square inch pressure for a joint operation of Richardson and Bass Tidewater Oil Co., it was announced here.

The wildcat, in the South Broussard area of Louisiana's Saint Martin parish, was carried to a total depth of 16,606 feet for a reported world record.

Gas production through a 7-16th-inch choke was rated at 4.5 million cubic feet daily. Flowing pressure stood at 10,750 pound. per square inch with the fuel coming from perforations in broken sand at 15,024-85 feet.

NEARING SELL-OUT

Nearing sellout at Buena Plaza, on La Palma Ave. just east of Miller St., in Buena Park, are Aldon's three and four-bedroom homes, which feature a wide variety of exterior treatments.

Model Home Displayed at 'Homestead'

Large crowds are expected to visit Homestead Gardens, Garden Grove, this weekend to inspect the model home display on Verano St. north of Westminster Ave.

Officials of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the development, said one of the community's top selling points is its nearness to Long Beach. Many families who have bought homes in Homestead Gardens did so because they wanted to remain close to Long Beach, yet enjoy the pleasures of suburban living.

ALSO HELPING sales are new low terms which make it possible for both veterans and non-veterans to qualify on earnings as low as $85 a week. Down payments are $350, and special terms can be arranged to suit the needs of individual families, a Walker & Lee spokesman said.

The model home, on display daily from 10 a. m., is furnished by Aaron Schultz.

Features of the Homestead Gardens houses include 7,200-foot lots, thermostat-controlled heating, big wardrobe closets, steel casement windows, fiberglass insulation, acoustic ceilings, lath and plaster walls, stall showers with glass doors, and large garages.

Sales Total 750 and 400 More Begun

Laramore Construction Co., Whittier, announced Saturday its sale of homes in Orange County has topped 750, with another 400 dwellings ready for sale, or under construction.

Laramore is the developer of Ellanbee Manor, Magnolia Manor No. 5 and Huntington Crest.

Prices of the Laramore homes range from $11,150 to $11,850, with minimum down payments for non-veterans varying from $95 to $295. Ease of financing has been one of the prime attractions in the Laramore developments, according to sales agent Frank McFarland.

The homes have more than 1,300 square feet of living area. All are located on extra large lots.

Magnolia Manor No. 5 is located in Santa Ana, Ellanbee Manor in Westminster and Huntington Crest in Huntington Beach.

Buena Plaza Homes Still Available to Veterans

Veterans still may buy three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in the final unit of Buena Plaza, Willard Woodrow of Aldon Construction Co. said.

He attributed success of the $50 million planned community to its convenient location, easy terms and the national reputation of Aldon-built homes.

Terms for veterans require no down payment, and from $66.67 a month in monthly installments.

A model home furnished by Aaron Schultz is on display daily on La Palma Ave., east of Miller St., in Buena Park.

Featured in the Buena Plaza homes are floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, built-in Western-Holly gas ranges and ovens in decorat colors, aluminum sliding glass walls which link living areas to outdoors, Higgins hardwood oak block floors, select wallpapers and birch kitchens with exclusive AldonGlaze.

The development is within easy driving distance of major industrial and business areas in Los Angeles, Long Beach and Orange County.

VARIED STYLINGS

Varied home stylings, typified above, are offered for immediate occupancy at Homestead Gardens, a new community of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in Garden Grove. Location is on Verano St. a short distance north of Westminster Ave. Homes are available for immediate occupancy and can be purchased by veterans and non-veterans for $950 down.

It's a Fashionable Fall

Volunteer Work Is Satisfying

Women

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, SEPT. 2, 1954 SECTION W

AT SUMMER'S END, feminine thoughts skip like autumn leaves to new fashions. Panhellenic scholarship committee members take time out to make decorations for the 'Round the Clock fall fashion show Saturday, Sept. 15, in the Lafayette Hotel.

From left they are Mmes. Frederick Schafer, James P. Gormley, Clayton T. Pittman and J. Morris Haytor. Panhellenic members and guests will arrive at 1 p. m. for dessert. Afterwards Dinels' will show back-to-school and career fashions.

TWENTY COLLEGE social sororities have donated door awards for the Panhellenic dessert fashion show Sept. 15. A silver tray is being admired here by Mmes. Wolf DeLyre, John M. Pittblado and Wayne Fitzgerald. Mrs. Franklin Waters will commentate the show and bridge will follow. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. James P. Gormley, 3650 Gardenia Ave., or from sorority alumnae chapters in the Long Beach area. It is the group's only fund-raising drive during the year.

Panhellenic Event Boosts Scholarships

Each year Long Beach Panhellenic gives a fund raising event to furnish four $125 renewable scholarships to a graduate from a Long Beach high school and to a qualified girl from each class at Long Beach State College.

Since fashions are dear to the hearts of college girls, college graduates-turned-career girl, their mothers and their friends, a showing of the newest in everything from fabrics to hemlines is in store for them Saturday, Sept. 15 at the Lafayette Hotel. Dinels' will present the show after dessert at 1 p. m.

With proceeds earmarked for the scholarship fund, Panhellenic has invited the scholarship winners this past spring to be special guests. They are Mala Chavez, Lillian Lindstrom and Toni Anthony, Long Beach State College, and Marilyn Smith, Polytechnic High School.

Mrs. John Fortier is chairman of the show, assisted by Mrs. Ray O. Gould Jr., president of Panhellenic and Mrs. William G. Riley, vice president, and their committees.

The satisfaction of being helpful to others comes to many hundreds of Long Beach area residents each year because of the Community Volunteer Office.

Started nine years ago, CVO has proved to be one of the most valued agencies in this area, according to the 59 clinics, nurseries, welfare and youth services requesting volunteer aids to assist with their programs.

Whether the volunteer be young or old, man or woman, each finds that some place his or her talents and time can be useful to others.

From highly technical positions such as psychiatric caseworker, registered nurse and craft teacher to the groups of children who stuff envelopes or count materials, all can be placed where they are needed.

Finding the right persons for the particular assignments is a year around job at CVO and its success is measured by the continuing demands for more and more volunteers to help with all types of work.

The funds supplied CVO for operating expenses by the United Neighbors Community Chest come back double-fold in the amount of money saved Chest agencies by the use of unpaid staff assistants.

And not only are the Chest agencies benefited but governmental agencies, hospitals and private agencies depend upon CVO to interview and fill their requests for workers.

To be able to bring the rewarding experience of being useful and needed to the individual volunteer and to be able to help worthwhile community organizations continue their functions in a better way earns for the CVO an unique spot in our communities.

Over 900 persons registered at the CVO and spent 62,000 hours last year in filling volunteer needs in the Long Beach community.

Presentation to Royalty Trip Highlight

Returning Friday from a two-month trip abroad which was highlighted by presentation to Queen Elizabeth of England was Anne Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Avery, 4440 Myrtle Ave. She was accompanied by Elizabeth MacLeod, daughter of the John MacLeods of Balboa.

Their presentation to the Queen, and also an introduction to the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret, took place during a celebration of the MacLeod Clan on the Isle of Skye in Scotland.

The visitors also enjoyed tours through Copenhagen, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, the French Riviera, Spain, Portugal, England and France. The trip was made aboard the Scandinavian Air Lines from New York.

Murrays Back

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Murray, 271 Belmont Ave., returned this week from a trip of more than two months in Europe. They did most of their traveling by air, with the exception of Switzerland which they toured by bus and rail.

DURING VACATIONS and after school hundreds of young people are eager volunteer workers at the agencies the Community Volunteer Office keeps supplied with helpers. Here Jacques Burr, Becky Perry and Pat Odell entertain David Gentry at a clinic. They give many hours helping others.

RETIRE school teachers, housewives and career women find time to assist with the Community Volunteer Office agencies that need clerical help regularly or for special occasions. Mrs. Gladys Waddell is one of the volunteers used by Family Service when the work load is too heavy for the regular staff. Joseph McDonald, executive director of the agency, has found volunteers the answer to a need for a larger office force. CVO also registers specialists.

Athena Fall Suit, Coat Collection to Be Shown

The fall collection of Athena, talented California woman designer of suits and coats, will be presented by the designer herself in a special showing Monday, Sept. 10, at Grace Schick's Fashion Store.

The alliance of Athena with the coat-and-suit house of B. M. Michael, Inc., has resulted in a stunning and refreshing collection. There is not only a series of smart suits and ensembles but also a sensational line of coats, ranging from the extremely slim wrap style to the great coat.

Many things have been added to the classic look that has long been associated with the name Athena. The new collection includes for the first time a new size range for the petite size and a complete range to size 44; sophisticated juniors 8 to 20, and for regular and tall sizes 10 to 44.

Athena's well known detail signatures on her slim tailored suits include her use of stitched bias and flap trims and bias insets stressing the empire look. She uses lightweight but firm fabrics and chooses them among the imported chiffon weight wools and silk tweeds. The use of fabrics highlighted with metallic thread are effective in her coat and suit ensembles.

Grace Schick, who has recently returned from the eastern market and the couturier showings, announces that Athena's fall collection will be modeled informally in her fashion salon.

Among the guests were 10 of the hosts' friends and relatives who had witnessed their wedding on Aug. 24, 1921 in Riverdale, Fresno County.

White wedding bells were suspended over the refreshment table which was centered with a large cake appropriately decorated and inscribed to include the three honor groups. A profusion of coral and copper-toned gladioli decorated the rooms and accented the traditional color theme for both anniversaries. Presiding at the punch bowls and assisting with other hostess duties were Mrs. Bowen's aunt, Mrs. Francis Zeller of Burbank, widow of a Torrance pioneer minister; her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd White; Mrs. Everett White, also of Burbank; Mrs. W. R. Peer, and Mrs. Herbert Shirley of Hollywood Riviera.

Selover Son Takes Bride

Of interest to a host of Long Beach friends was the wedding on August 11 of John Lewis Selover, who claimed as his bride Miss Elizabeth Allison Bliss of San Francisco at a ceremony solemnized in the First Presbyterian Church of Sausalito.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bliss of the Bay City. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Selover, formerly of Long Beach, now of Boston, and is the grandson of Frank Selover, a former managing editor of the Long Beach Press-Telegram.

The newlyweds, after honeymooning in Oregon, are now residing in Mill Valley.

Art Judges Ready Pomona Fair Show

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent Press-Telegram Art Editor

Committees of judges are choosing paintings, sculpture and allied art work for the National Exhibition of the Contemporary Arts of America at the Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 14-30, at Pomona. A total of $8,000 will be awarded in prizes.

Approximately 800,000 persons visited the art exhibition at last year's fair. This ranks high among exhibitions in the nation.

After having been accepted by regional juries in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, the work goes before the juries of awards: oil paintings and graphics, Thomas C. Howe Jr., Leon Kroll, Patrick T. Malone, Millard Sheets and Arthur Miller; sculpture, Schmier and William Zorach.

Work by six young artists will be shown through Sept. 28 at the Studio, 1009 Nimitz Ave. The gallery is open 9:30 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

Exhibiting artists are Frank Di Santo, Billie Hamel, George James, Mary Korn, Dean Spills and Ray White. All have exhibited throughout Southern California.

Sculpture, jewelry and 165 paintings comprise the annual non-juried show by Long Beach area artists in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., where it will remain through Sept. 16. The show was hung by Athena Hall, King Hall and Mrs. O. S. Lindenberger.

The art of Charles Burchfield, Renaissance drawings of the Lombard school, prints and drawings by Alois Wach and paintings by Bedri Pabai Eshoghlu comprise a new exhibition opening in the Los Angeles County Museum, Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

Under the title "Roots of California Contemporary Architecture," a survey of architecture in California between 1900 and 1930 by creative designers will be shown Sept. 9-30 in the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery. Pertinently, the exhibit will be housed in a gallery designed by Frank Lloyd Wright adjoining his historic "Hollyhock House" atop the hill in Barnsdall Park, Vermont Ave. and Hollywood Blvd.

Continental Theme for Gay Dance

A saucy, Continental theme has been chosen by Symphony Jrs. for its "Streets of Paris" dance which promises to be one of September's smartest affairs. Planned for the 28th, it will take place within the comfortable environs of the Comfortable Club.

To produce the desired mood, Mrs. Earl Milton, chairman, and her committee are arranging to have portrait artists present to sketch the likenesses of guests, a monkey grinder to amuse with its antics and a bevy of Can-Can dancers.

For decorations there will be bright flower carts under Paris lamp posts, fluffy poodle dogs and a variety of other pert party paraphernalia. Proceeds will be placed in the group's continuance fund.

Mrs. Milton entertained her committee at a luncheon Wednesday at the Petroleum Club. There to discuss final plans were Mmes. William Nesbitt, Ernest Lockwood, Glenn Doody, Gordon Hill, Leo Bauch and Mrs. Stanford Church, president of Symphony Jrs.

Sewing Circle

Lincoln Sewing Circle, Ladies of the GAR, will meet Tuesday with Mrs. Mabel Walrath, 337 Cedar Ave. Sandwich luncheon will be served at noon.

ALL DRESSED UP FOR FALL

Carlene Kelly Speaks Vows in Lutheran Service

A Lake Arrowhead honeymoon followed the recent double ring marriage ceremonies of Carlene Marie Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Kelly, of Milton-Freewater, Ore., and James David Carter, son of Casper R. Carter of Walla Walla, Wash. For the evening service in Long Beach Lutheran Church, the bride chose a gown of net. Attending her were her maid of honor, Miss Mavis Brock, and bridesmaids Misses Beverly Kelly, her sister, and Lunetta O'Brien. Kathy and Pat Kelly, sister and brother of the bride, were flower girl and ring bearer.

Trip Wardrobe

Two-piece outfits should be taken on a trip so that they can be mixed and matched to extend the wardrobe.

The bridegroom selected Donald Simenly as best man and, as ushers, John Olsen Fashion is truly a fair lady this fall, and in her autumn wardrobe trunk is tucked a multitude of smart styles guaranteed to make midlady a creature of beauty, grace and femininity.

The feather and fur era of 1912 is the inspiration for many of fashion's most brilliant designs this fall, with the slim, empire silhouette being the No. 1 look for the new season.

Group Y of Ebells will bring forth the empire and many other autumn designs in its annual Fall Fashion Show at noon Friday in the patio and dining room area of Ebells Clubhouse. Mrs. Grace Schiek will present her collection and couterier of new hats. Commentator will be Irene Cook, with delicate background music provided by Jerri Pack at the organ.

Mrs. Lewis Van Winkle, chairman of Group Y, will welcome guests and introduce Ebells President Mrs. L. E. Shanks. Combining efforts in the show's success are Mmes. J. Roscoe Howell, M. A. Sneed, Leo H. Lynes, Robin L. Hadley, W. W. Hoagland, R. Tuckley Thompson, William A. Minnick, Lorne Middough, W. F. Davis, Eugene LeGrand, Harris Rogers, Merion Betts Smith and Will H. Winston. The public may obtain luncheon and show tickets from any Group Y member.

Gay 'Chase-isms' Abound as Ilka Tells of Movie Preview

By ILKA CHASE

Notes on a late summer night: Receive invitation to New York opening of "War and Peace." Having spent much time in country lately taste of big city life appeals. Accept. Some time since I have read Tolstoy's masterpiece but well remember what drove me to it. What, that is, other than pricking conscience that had never cracked world's greatest novel.

Motivating force Somerset Maugham who dined with us one night. "Mr. Willie, have you read 'War and Peace'?" "Five times." "Decide what's good enough for Somerset Maugham good enough for me. Read it. Since haven't read all novels can't say it greatest but powerful candidate. And fat. Farther than 'Inside Africa' or 'Marjorie Morningstar,' not world's greatest.

Invitation to opening, staid Hurdle. Faced by two hurdles — getting husband to a movie — getting him to dress for it. Husband can't stand movies.

Explain this is parochial viewpoint. Cinema great art medium. Husband looks grim but under pressure occasionally accompanies me to one. Unfortunately, often have difficulty proving point. Still, optimistic by nature.

Evening of "War and Peace" cool and cloudy. No objection to dressing. Invitation stated film would start at 8. After many years in theater world still naive.

Arrive Capitol Theater 7:45. Floodlights, big crowds, movie stars. Edward G. Robinson being interviewed and photographed on sidewalk as we drive up. Man with microphone spots me. "Miss Chase, will you be good enough to say a few words?" Eager to cooperate but observe moment of girlish reticence. "Sure she will," husband says cheerfully. "Take her picture too, she spent hours on her face." Shoot him a glance calculated to tell him in his tracks.

Chat briefly with Eddie Robinson whom haven't seen in years. Forget how small he is. Woman in back of me says, "They've done a good job on what hair he has left, haven't they?" Laugh loudly so Eddie won't hear. Obviously he thinks me crazy.

Enter theater. Another publicity man says won't we go up to mezzanine, Tex and Jinx crazy to see us. Pass through crowds held back by ropes. Crowds redundant. No effort to claw idols. Jinx deep in interview with Sylvia Mangano, wife of De Laurentis, producer of picture. Beautiful sullen face. Mangano's Jinx sufficient but cheerful.

Farther on Oscar Homolka, who plays wily old Russian General Kutuzov, being interviewed by someone else. Tex wanders about looking vague. Kisses me on cheek. Now three minutes to eight. Husband and I decide to find seats. Auditorium gradually fills. Mr. Barney Gradaban, president of Paramount who are distributing picture, finally appears on stage and introduces Madame Ilka Chase. Tolstoy, daughter of author of "War and Peace." Madame Tolstoy speaks feelingly of Russia. People of Russia and those of America to understand one another. Don't see why not. Russian characters all played by well known Hollywood actors. 8:32 picture gets under way.

Photography magnificent. Particularly snow scenes and French cavalry charge across green valleys in battle of Borodino. War more colorful in those days but just as horrible and futile. Pattern of anguish ever the same. Refugees fleeing before enemy, collaborationists, destruction, death, return to ruined homes.

Husband hit restive but happy with minicamera snapping most striking shots of picture. His success in this pastime extraordinary.

Performances mostly good. Audrey Hepburn enchanting. Mel Ferrer stiff and beautiful. Henry Fonda excellent as Prince Pierre but folksy American accent rings strangely on steps of Mother Russia. More appropriate steps of Mother Kansas.

Face of picture remarkable. Only toward end does it begin to seem like snippet of eternity. Agonizing retreat from Moscow in snow almost as long for audience as for soldiers who made it in 1812. By midnight when picture ends audience almost as hungry too.

Make our way out and highlight it to "21" to seek sustenance. "21" crowded with refugees from "War and Peace." General consensus fine job. Have light snack of clams, steak and beer.

Go home. Undress to philosophical discussion of incomprehensible willingness of human race to allow itself to be led to slaughter every 20 years or so.

Get into bed 2:30. I say, "For heaven's sake, turn out the light." Husband says seriously he must catch up on comics. "Oh, you and your comics. And listen, Mac, that crack to the publicity man about me wanting to be photographed..." Husband looks pained. "Please, dear, my work."

Deflect he is fundamentally a doting, just with exaggerated devotion to comics. Subside. In three minutes paper slips to floor. Breathing soft and regular. Reach over and turn out light. Realize drowsily that for me, too, the Sandman cometh. War over, peace reigns.

Worry Clinic

Glamorous Ghost Haunts Hubby; Wife Woos Love

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case S-349: Opal G., 22, has been married for six months.

"But I am terribly unhappy about one thing," she confessed. "My husband has been in love with another girl. She eloped with another fellow. Then I came along."

"We dated for a year. Oh, I knew that Frank didn't love me, at least as much as he did the other girl. However, I thought everything would turn out right in the long run. He had told me all the facts, so I entered marriage with my eyes wide open."

"But he still grieves about the other girl and once he even told me he thought we made a mistake by getting married. So I feel simply terrible. Dr. Crane, will he always love this other girl?"

Frank's pride is hurt because the other girl eloped and left him. In his imagination, he thinks about her because she also represents the mass of youthful romantic ideals he had woven around her.

A MAN must respect and admire a girl in order to love her truly, so she must stand out for her idealism and defend her moral principles with spunk.

A man may be sexually interested in many women even though he hates them, so a smart girl must learn the difference between male interest in sex versus his true love.

Men regard women as being custodians of culture and morality and religion, so females who smoke and drink and tell risqué stories, may pal around with men but they seldom get engagement rings. Even then, it is usually because the male has been fooled temporarily by their clever camouflage.

So maintain your idealism; then share as many happy experiences as possible with your husband. These include delicious meals, and mutual attendance at ball games and parties, as well as physical love.

Pay him daily compliments, for on his chest is that universal motto, "I want to feel important." Smile and be jolly. And kiss him with fervor. Then time will play into your hands.

Vows Solemnized in St. Luke's Ritual

Mrs. Philip Joseph Reilly

Reporter Recalls Remark That Outwitted Mrs. Luce

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
Washington Staff Correspondent

It takes courage, aplomb, quick thinking and an incisive wit to rock Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce back on her three-inch heels and come out the winner.

This was the unsought achievement of Rep. Marguerite S. Church (R-Ill.), who will be the keynote speaker at the National Federation of Republican Women convence in Chicago, Sept. 5-7.

The writer was a fascinated eye and ear witness to this fissionable incident several years ago at the Congressional Club when Mrs. Church was president and Mrs. Luce was the speaker.

In the audience were wives of editors and publishers (who were holding their annual convention here), many writers, and Congressional wives.

Mrs. Luce, who had served in Congress, was then in private life and was passing through what many termed her "enfant terrible" years.

She began her speech by castigating the press in general and the working press in particular. "They separate the wheat from the chaff and then throw away the wheat," she said.

The temperature dropped noticeably in the Congressional Club ballroom as Mrs. Luce launched into a detailed recital of what is wrong with Congressional wives and why they do not have a more inspiring influence on their husbands. She concluded her speech in portentous silence.

The several hundred listeners wondered what Mrs. Church could possibly say that would be within the bounds of courtesy and yet fit the situation.

With complete savoir faire, Mrs. Church said, "Some members feared that Mrs. Luce might be partisan. She was not — she played no favorites."

Later that afternoon, a contrite Mrs. Luce telephoned the program chairman, Mrs. Homer Ferguson (wife of Judge Ferguson, then the U. S. senator from Michigan), and said, "Oh, Myrtle, I have done a terrible thing and Mrs. Church did right to put me in my place."

Mrs. Church, the widow of Rep. Ralph Church of Evanston, Ill., has three children. Stender, stylish, attractively feminine, she is a brain but no bluestocking. A Phi Beta Kappa, she taught at Wellesley College when Madame Chiang Kai-shek was a student.

Considered to be Illinois' foremost woman speaker, Mrs. Church has to her credit a list of civic, political and intellectual achievements that can be equaled by few women in the United States today.

Joyce Schinnerer Plans Summer Rite

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schinnerer, 2550 Chestnut Ave., announced the betrothal of their daughter Joyce to Richard Tubbs, son of Police Captain and Mrs. Sherwin Tubbs of 146 La Verne Ave., at a garden party for family and friends. Both young people are natives of Long Beach and attended local schools where each was active in student government.

Miss Schinnerer was a June graduate of Occidental College and will be teaching at Los Cerritos Elementary School this fall. While at Occidental she was a member of Alpha Sorority, an honorary "Tiger" and was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges.

The bridegroom-to-be has been attending Long Beach State College where he is a biology major. He will return for another year of studies before entering the secondary education field. Tubbs founded the Long Beach chapter of Aescia Fraternity and was the charter president of the organization. He also served as interfraternity council president at LBSC.

The wedding is being planned for next summer.

WCTU Session

Beginning a new year of work Tuesday will be members of the Long Beach Woman's Christian Temperance Union when they meet at 1 p. m. in the chapel of First Christian Church, Fifth St. and Locust Ave. The new president, Mrs. Marjorie Wilson, will be in charge.

Conducting devotions will be Miss Olive Pound, the new vice president, and Miss Ethel Burtner, director of Loyal Temperance Legion, will present young people in a program.

gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over slipper satin, styled along princess lines with a light-fitting basque waist, short sleeves and scalloped lace outlining the scoop neckline. The bouffant skirt cascaded to the floor and swept gently back into a chapel train, and a fingertip-length silk illusion veil fell gracefully from a crown of lace and seed pearls. Tucked beneath the prayer book in her hands the bride carried a lace handkerchief made from her great grandmother's wedding veil. Butterfly orchids and lilies of the valley rested atop the book for her bouquet.

For the 8 p. m. service the bridegroom selected Marcus M. McCallen to be his best man and, as head usher, Walter A. Hoffman, brother of the bride. Ushering duties were also performed by Ron Birtcher, Jon Kruse, Bill McCallen and Marcus M. McCallen Jr. The bride's nephew, Jay Hoffman, was ring bearer.

A Lake Arrowhead honeymoon was the destination of the newlyweds who left the colorful reception in a new car, wedding gift from the bride's parents. Upon return, they will make their home at 139 E. Del Amo.

The new Mrs. Reilly is a graduate of Wilson High School, attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., and received her B. S. degree in education from USC in June. Her husband, who attended Santa Ana Junior College, was graduated from USC with a B. S. degree in commerce. He will enter the SC School of Law this fall, and his bride will teach kindergarten at Grant Elementary School.

Miss Marion Frances Roehm

Miss Roehm Will Wed in December Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Roehm, of 1518 E. Ocean Blvd., announced the engagement of their daughter, Marion Frances, to Bert Harris Genger at a recent gathering of relatives and intimate friends of the young couple.

Miss Roehm, a teacher in the Long Beach public schools, attended Polytechnic High School, where she was affiliated with Phi Gamma Chi. She was graduated from San Jose State College and is a member of Alpha Phi Sorority.

Genger, son of Mrs. Glenn H. Genger of Del Air and the late Mr. Glenn H. Genger of Park Ridge, Ill., is a graduate of Bowling Green State University, where he was a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity. He served as an officer in the U. S. Army and was stationed in Germany during his tour of service.

The wedding will take place in December.

Gay Pink, White Decor for Pre-Nuptial Courtesy

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman G. Berg, 3845 Myrtle Ave., was festive with a pink and white decor for the recent bridal shower given in honor of their niece, Meredith Matthews, whose wedding to Paul Sukane will take place Sept. 14.

A pink flower sprinkler can, tied with a huge white bow, bedecked the front door of the Berg home, and inside, the mirrored colonial mantel was breathtaking with a large white ruffled tulle heart holding two miniature wedding rings. A banner of white satin ribbon was inscribed with the betrothed couple's names. On each side of the mantel were stately candelabra.

Two cousins of the bride-to-be, Miss Marilyn Lyder and Miss Cheryl Berg, pinned tiny pink umbrella name tags upon guests as they arrived.

While candlelight cast soft rays throughout the room and with the fragrance of the pink and white floral arrangements providing a perfumed background, the guests gathered at the reception table. A delicate pink cloth set off the centerpiece of fluffy white tulle hearts bearing pink love bows. Mrs. John Matthews, mother of the honoree, and Mrs. Leslie Phillip, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, poured. Bidden were Meses, Robert Brizendine, Ernest Hest, Ted Phillips, Charles Knight, Martin Whitmore, Leslie Phillip, Jack Bayerstack, K. W. Duckworth, Carl Owenson, Arthur Penrose, Marvin Penrose, James Penrose, Willard Powers, Harvey Rosebalt, Kenneth Lyders, Kenneth Berg, John Matthews, Arnold Berg, Bertha Berg, Ida Huling and Marie Rohle.

Molly Mayfield His Choice: Wife or Mistress

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

For the past two months I have been seeing a good deal of a young man whose wife does not understand him. We have been good comrades. We enjoy one another's companionship, charms and intelligence.

Yet the time has come when he must make a choice between me and his wife. He says that he loves me and not her. But he hesitates to divorce her because she needs him. She is such a clinging vine!

Yet Jonathan and I must put our relationship on a more permanent basis. I no longer can endure the thought of him going home to her. To think of him embracing her, kissing her... of more... is maddening.

I do not think I can ever give Jonathan up. There has been too much between us. We are both 32 and physically and mentally in our prime. We should enjoy a full and complete relationship. When I think of this woman, I cannot sleep.

Jonathan says that I ought to be patient. Yet they have no children. I see no reason why I should be patient, since we have been intimately acquainted with each other for two years.

What shall I do to win him away from her? I know that she really does not love him, but only clings to him because of her own inadequacy and weak nature. He does not love her, either.

What can I do to attain the fulfillment of a love which must be placed on a permanent and legal basis?—JONATHAN'S SLAVE

DEAR JONATHAN'S SLAVE:

Are you really so sure that Jonathan does love you? Reading your letter makes me wonder.

You say that you have been intimately acquainted with him for two years. Yet you talk about him going home to his wife, embracing, kissing her, etc.

You say that you are sure he does not love his wife. Yet he certainly seems to live with her as a husband.

You say that his wife wants him only because she is a clinging vine. Yet he seems to me to be clinging pretty hard to her, despite all the pleas of you, his mistress.

No, this does not sound to me like a great romance. It sounds to me more as he seems to think he has found a good thing in you and is going to enjoy it without ever really doing anything about his present married life. The love between you— if it really is love—certainly seems to be more on your side than it does on his.

The only way you'll ever know whether there is anything genuine between you is for you to separate from him. Don't see him for a while, a considerable while.

And in this separation try to look objectively at the picture, try to see what it really is, a somewhat tawdry romance, and try truly to add up your own emotions. At the same time, see how he acts. Does he make any real effort to make you the only woman in his life?

By separation I believe you will find the answer. Do try it before it is too late—before you are a woman on toward 40 with only a backstreet life. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Please ask your kind readers to send cards to a dear old lady who broke her hip several years ago and is crippled pretty badly. She is Mrs. Rennie Johnson, Wilmington, Ill., Route 2, Box 32c. —HER FRIEND.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father has been sick for a long time and I thought maybe some of your readers would send him cards to cheer him up. He is J. L. Anderson, 20 E. Benson St., Reading 15, Ohio.—MRS. W.P. This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Oswald Jacoby Wins Two Club Tricks

By OSWALD JACOBY
WRITER OF CLUB TRICKS

The problem in today's hand is to make two club tricks. South has seven top cards in the remaining three suits.

South won the first trick with the king of spades and led a low club toward dummy. He finessed the jack, losing to East's singleton queen. Thereafter, he was unable to make a second club trick, and his game contract was defeated.

The correct play of the clubs is to lead low to dummy's ace immediately. When an honor drops, the rest is easy.

If only small clubs appear on the first trick in that suit, South continues by leading a low club from dummy toward his ten. This assures him a second trick even if one of the opponents has started with four clubs headed by the king-queen.

Suppose East has all of the missing clubs. He must put up the queen to win the series.

and club trick. Now South can easily use the ten or jack to drive out the king.

Suppose West has all of the missing clubs. East will show out on the second round of the suit, and South will use the ten to drive out an honor from the West hand. South will later get to his hand in a different suit in order to lead a club toward dummy's jack. This will guarantee him a second club trick.

There are other ways of winning two club tricks if you happen to know just how the missing clubs are divided. The recommended line of play assures you two tricks even if you don't know how the missing cards are divided.

Worry Injures the Spirit; Help Children to Confide

By ANGELO PATRI

Worry is poison to the mind and body. It is so easy to say, "Don't worry," and so hard not to. We all have to "worry," that is, to think ahead, think to avoid trouble, think how to manage a probable difficulty. If we do not do such thinking, we will find ourselves without a roof over our heads or kneecaps in trouble. A certain amount of "worry" is necessary in ordinary living.

There are worries, however, that can burrow like maggots into the mind and, if that is allowed to continue, cause mental illness. Then, too, there are minds that seem to be cultures for worry. Everything from the threat of rain to sudden death is a worry for them.

Something must be done to bring worry to its lowest possible limit. The Quaker's cure for it, "Cure it, accept it, do something about it," is good. Doing something about it is the first and best cure. But what? If action is possible, the answer is found. If it is not possible to do anything about it? Confide it to a trusted friend; the clergyman? The family physician? A sympathetic relative? Tell it. Talk it out fully. Trouble shared is half cured. The assurance that a friend knows, understands and will help when help is possible lifts a great weight off the worrier's mind.

Children worry more than grown-up people know. A casual word overheard and half-understood has plunged a child into deep anxiety and made him ill. A mistake made and covered up but always in danger of discovery can make a child nervous, fearful, and a failure in school.

For this reason, it is extremely important that parents do their best to keep open the lines of communication between themselves and their children. Try to teach youngsters from the earliest days through adolescence that nothing they can do will ever cost them their parents' affection and protection. Make a practice of listening with interest to all your children have to tell. Words will not bring this faith and assurance unless they are sincere and backed by everyday practice, yet this assurance of a parent's love and protection is the most powerful force in maintaining a child's mental health.

Confession is mental medicine. Worry is the poison that wrecks the body and mind, robs a person of health, of power, of the buoyancy of spirit that makes life desirable. If boys and girls can feel secure enough in their parents' love and understanding to confide faults, failings and worries, they will be healthy through and through. Confession, confiding, telling things out to the last dark thought is a soothing, healing medicine every family needs.

Carol-Hart Procter Says 'I Do'

Tier upon tier of daintily embroidered Swiss organdy were fashioned into the lovely bridal gown chosen by Carol-Hart Procter daughter of Mrs. Margery Davis Procter, 4226 Locust Ave., when she became the bride of John Ray Connors in a double ring ceremony last Sunday at Lakewood Village Community Church.

The Rev. W. R. Hall officiated before more than 200 friends and relatives of the popular young pair.

The attractive bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Rufus Alonzo Davis. Her wedding dress, a Cahill original, featured a long fitted torso of Swiss organdy, with bouffant skirt of embroidered tiers cascading into a chapel train. Her fingertip length veil of silk illusion fell gently from a cap of Viennese lace re-embroidered with seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of her bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Janet Owen Reynolds, chosen as maid of honor, Miss Helene L. Kippis and Mrs. Peter S. Davis, bridesmaids, were gowned identically in ballerina length dresses of choral chiffon. Their crescent shaped bouquets held harmonizing coral carnations.

The bridegroom asked his brother, Robert L. Connors, to serve him as best man, and ushering duties were performed by Jack Allen, William Brown, George Stark, Robert Gazeley and Peter S. Davis, a cousin of the bride.

A reception with the traditional wedding cake followed in the church social hall, with immediate relatives of the pair bidden later to a champagne buffet at the home of the bride's mother. Hostesses were Misses Rufus A. Davis, Robert A. Jones, Robert L. Connors, and Misses Elizabeth Sudenga, Barbara Fowler and Marjorie Kuhn.

Assisting the happy newlyweds in receiving guests were their mothers. Mrs. Procter selected cream Chantilly lace over champagne silk tulle with matching accessories, while the bridegroom's mother wore slate blue lace over tulle, also with matching accessories.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Laguna Beach and Hotel Del Coronado, and today are at home in Berkeley, where the bridegroom expects to be graduated from the University of California in February.

The new Mrs. Connors is the daughter of Ralph H. Procter of Pasadena. She was graduated from Polytechnic High School and the Long Beach City College. She also was graduated this June from UCLA where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Connors, 2539 Adeline Ave., received his early education in Riverside and was graduated from LCCC. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha at Berkeley.

Participation in the three-day affair is restricted to members of member clubs of the Southern California Yachting Assn. and Yacht Racing Union of Southern California.

Last night was "fun time" for members as well as visiting skippers and crews when a delightful buffet dinner party was given by the Penguin Fleet under direction of Capt. Palmer Wentworth and Mrs. Wentworth. Assisting in serving were S. B. Thomas, Allan Tebbetts, Bernard Fowle, Leonard Fowle and Charles Durnin.

A nautical background was arranged by Mrs. Grace Hurt, assisted by Mrs. James P. Neukirk. Bobbing corks and hemp mooring lines centered the long tables while overhead

Five races comprise the weekend agenda; one took place yesterday, two are scheduled today (morning and afternoon) and the concluding event will be tomorrow, The Dragons and PCs, sailing in the ocean all three days, set their starting gun for noon. Robert B. Hoffman, chairman of the racing committee and Miss Frances H. Dixon, vice chairman of the Long Beach Recreation Commission, with their committee are on duty for the entire regatta.

D. R. Scotts Pause Here in Travels

Dr. and Mrs. D. R. Scott, en route from their recent home in Cairo, Egypt, to Washington, D. C. were houseguests during the month of August at the Havana Avenue home of Mrs. Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Temple Ellis.

While here the pair was honored at several festive parties by relatives and longtime friends.

A barbecue dinner at the Ellis home was the setting for a gay evening of companionship, good food and intriguing talk of their life in Egypt where Dr. Scott, of the State Department, was attached to the U. S. Embassy. He is now on "home leave." Co-hosts with the Ellises were Mrs. Scott's sister and brother-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Dirk te Groen.

Seventy-five friends gathered to honor Mrs. Scott at a bridge luncheon hosted by Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. te Groen. A central topic of conversation was the exquisite table cloth of gold embroidery brought last year from the Holy Land by Mrs. Scott's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sidford of Palms Verdes opened their lovely home for a dinner party honoring the travelers, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidford invited former Polytechnic High School friends of Mrs. Scott to a luncheon.

Before leaving the warmth and gaiety that accompanies being with families and old friends, the Scotts were entertained at a dinner party by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hunsaker who visited the honorees when the latter lived in Ecuador and Cairo.

Among the last farewell fetes was a cocktail party and buffet supper hosted by Mr. and Mrs. te Groen.

Rothenborgs of Dallas End Visit

Now enroute to their home in Dallas, Texas, after a month-long visit are Mr. and Mrs. Mason Rothenborg (she is the former Beverly Dugale).

This marked the couple's first visit to the Southland since their fashionable wedding here last October. They shared their time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Degele, 925 Derraine Ave., and at his mother's home in Pasadena.

Their presence here touched off a series of parties, among them being a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyle of Pacific Palisades and a buffet dinner given in their honor by Mrs. M. L. Fiske in San Marino.

For Mrs. Rothenborg one of the most pleasant evenings was a surprise birthday party and barbecue dinner arranged by her husband at his mother's home.

Another affair long to be remembered was the baby shower given for her by Mrs. Robert F. James, 2690 Chatswin Ave., last Wednesday. Those hidden were Misses, Clark Leslie, Kenneth Austin, James Rowland, Bruce Bolster, Robert Barber, Marvin Fiske, Howard Selover, Glen Anderson, William Brinkman, Albert Boesel, Wallace Propst, William Schutt, Robert Smith, Jerry Lauritzen, Harry O'Neill, Charles Degele, Hal Rothenborg, Max E. Trickey, Misses Beverly Kreitzer, Cheryl Posposil, Catherine Cooper and Patti Pyle.

Barbecue Will Open Organist Guild Year

Long Beach Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will open its ninth season with a barbecue at the home of its dean, Mindelle Lobbett, 4501 Blackthorne Ave., on Tuesday. Tentative plans for the year will include recitals by two of the outstanding organists of the country, a choral workshop, an organ workshop, and a glee club concert by a popular college group.

The National Guild, first organized in 1896, now has 250 chapters in the 48 states, with 13,000 members. Yearly examinations are given for associations and fellowships in the National Guild which require the skilled performance of given musical numbers, accurate sight reading, harmonizing to a given melody and knowledge of counterpoint. A special choir master certificate is also available. Yearly competitions are held in New York which attract talented young organists from all parts of the nation.

The Long Beach Chapter, formed in 1947 by a small group of enthusiastic organists, now has a membership of 100 from the local area and harbor cities. In 1955 the East-Western Convention took place at the Lafayette Hotel hosted by the Long Beach Chapter. Lloyd Holzgrafe, a fine young musician from this area, was sponsored by this group to compete in the national student competition this summer.

The purpose of the Guild is to advance the cause of worthy church music, increase the efficiency of the church musician, and provide opportunity for meeting and discussing professional topics. Special sessions are held to acquaint the organists with the liturgy of the various churches, and new music is displayed yearly by national publishers through local dealers.

Officers of the Long Beach Chapter for the coming year are dean, Mindelle Lobbett; sub-dean, Esther Scott; Wilmington; secretary, Belle Marie Marty; treasurer, Axel Anderson; auditor, Burnett

Merrill-Harvey Nuptials Read

Mrs. Charles Frank Merrill

The torch-lit garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Harvey Jr. in Orange was setting for a reception following the marriage of their daughter, Alice Priscilla, to Charles Frank Merrill in Santa Ana First Presbyterian Church.

The receiving line was by the pool on which floated arrangements of tropical leaves and yellow chrysanthemums.

The former Miss Harvey was graduated from Santa Ana High School and Stanford University.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Merrill, 5843 Corso di Napoli, is a graduate of Pasadena High School and Stanford where he was a Kappa Alpha. After honeymooning in Southern California resorts the newlyweds will reside in Palo Alto while he returns to Stanford for advanced work.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, Miss Harvey was attired in a ballerina-length Cahill gown of French lace with a round neck, brief sleeves and a cummerbund of white satin. Her circular veil was caught to a crown of seed pearls. Bridal flowers were white butterfly roses and lilies of the valley in a cascade arrangement.

Attending the young bride were Miss Sue Ross, maid of honor; Mrs. Paul C. Merrill Jr., Mrs. John Harvey III, Miss Patricia Nicholson and Miss Harriet Higgins, bridesmaids. All were dressed alike in pale yellow pima silk gowns, which were ballerina-length. In their hair they wore wreaths of miniature spider chrysanthemums. The maid of honor carried a cornucopia of champagne spider chrysanthemums, and the others, bronze chrysanthemums.

Best man duties were performed by Paul C. Merrill Jr., and the 370 guests were shown to their places by Lt. John A. Harvey III, Jewel Lynn Bixby IV, James Bixby and Leland Michael Garrison. Candlelighters were Misses Lynn Jeffrey and Miss Gretchen Hoyle. Roy Carl Christ solemnized the nuptial service.

The cycle has been completed as director of the Long Beach Community Players, Chef of the Week Larry Johns has fulfilled a lifelong dream.

The pattern for this dream started taking shape, when, at the age of 19, he was privileged to meet the man whose friendship and guidance profoundly influenced his life. That man was Elias Day, the first paid director of the Long Beach Community Players. Larry Johns, in turn, was the first to establish scheduled productions. Today the playhouse is in operation 52 weeks of the year.

Johns has, no doubt, always been an actor—he was actually convinced of that at the early age of six. Inspired by his cousin with whom he lived, and who had a flair for the theater, he went to New York when 17 years old. Though he had played leads in a number of high school plays, and had served as president of their dramatics society, he really preferred the technical side—lighting and stage setting. Fate stepped in, however, and in his first New York job he was neither an actor nor a technician, but a director. He directed the Community Theater for a period of two years.

Heading back toward the environment of his birth, Cleveland, Ohio, he "overshot" the depot and landed in Chicago. It was here that he met Mr. and Mrs. Elias Day, acting dean of Lyceum Arts Conservatory. During the next seven years Johns taught at the Busch Conservatory of Music while attending Chicago University from which he received both his Bachelors and Master of Arts Degrees.

About this time Elias Day left for Long Beach to become director of our Playhouse, and Johns returned to New York. During the six years which followed, his name became well known on Broadway. Upon the death of Mr. Day, our own Mrs. Walter Case journeyed to New York and persuaded Mr. Johns to step into the shoes of his friend. This he did for two years, '58 and '59.

But again New York beckoned, and the next 10 years proved exciting, interesting and very satisfying. He played

Your Baby & Mine
Readers' Opinions

BY MYRTLE MEYER FLORED

Just because sun and air are good for the baby's diapers does not mean that they may never be dried in a clothes drier. As long as the diapers do not cause any rash or soreness, Mrs. D. P., then you may feel assured they are right for the baby. If they do, then be critical of the type of soap or detergent you are using; try boiling or sunning or both, or use some commercial product designed to end the conditions which bring about this chaffing.

Mrs. R. G. H. thinks more should be done to educate both mothers and fathers to the advantages of nursing. "My babies were very happy babies and my husband encouraged me to nurse them. My babies never spit up, never had colic and even at four months were not wet too often, nor did they have odoriferous stools. The closeness a mother feels toward her nursing baby is something which cannot be duplicated. I think your column is a great help to mothers."

A Determined Nursing Mother writes, "I would ask this gentleman who did not want his babies fed like animals whether he acquired them by some vegetable or mineral method? He may advocate abolishing nursing but I'll bet he won't abandon the animal way of procuring a family. Animals may be dumb but they are not stupid—" she finishes in a blaze of resentment.

Mr. U. A. M. says he is personally of the opinion that every father should be present when his baby is born. "A mother and father are united until death do them part and then at a time when a wife needs him most the husband is parading up and down the waiting room or absent for other causes."

"We had four children all born at home so I was present at each birth. I felt it my duty to hold my wife's hand and whisper words of comfort to her. Furthermore, one of the most glorious sights given anyone to see is the sight of a mother's face when she hears the first little cry of her newborn. She forgets all she has gone through and experiences love and joy at helping her Creator bring forth his greatest creation. I doubt if a doctor or nurse ever sees this expression."

This clears up these letters on my desk which really demand no answer but should be published.

WALTZES, MARCHES and POLKAS

Whether it was one of the happiest periods in history, or whether it was they who made it so, no one can say, but it can never be denied that the "years of the Strausses" are among the most enjoyable ever recorded.
While waltzes, polkas and marches were the "pop" music of that day, Strauss' compositions had won the serious consideration of critics and composers alike.

While the name of Strauss is almost synonymous with the waltz, no album such as this would be complete without including some of the delightful marches and polkas which brought Johann and Josef such fame. This album opens with the memorable Persian March and, in striking contrast, turns to the ever-beloved Tales of the Vienna Woods.
Seven other numbers make up this delightful album.

Schools Keep Pace With the Cradle

By Harry Karns

IN THIS ERA of classroom and teacher shortages, outsiders are apt to look on Long Beach Unified School District as a miracle defying all logic.

This district sprawls across 128 square miles of Los Angeles County in the heart of the swiftest-growing part of the United States. Here, long since, the sound of little feet has ceased to be a patter and turned into a rumble.

Considering this growth and the fact that Long Beach lost all its schools in an earthquake during the big depression, the district ought to be the country's worst nightmare of jump-packed classrooms, undermanned teaching staffs, and rationed schooling.

Instead, as it prepares for the opening of the new term Sept. 11, it is a district where the educator's dream has come true—a system where every boy and girl has a desk, and every room a qualified teacher.

It has whipped the school shortage. It is the first district in any growing area to do so.

NO ONE INDIVIDUAL can take the credit for all this. But one who deserves a good share of it is guiding spirit is a 58-year-old former math teacher who has infinite patience and an unerring sense of diplomacy. Superintendent Douglas A. (Doug) Newcomb has led the school district through a tumultuous decade with the realistic optimism of a mathematician who knows if you add two and two you are bound to get four.

After serving as a vice principal, principal, director of elementary schools, and assistant superintendent, he stepped in as Acting Superintendent in 1944 and became Superintendent in 1947.

Few new superintendents have ever found greater problems awaiting them. Past, present, and future provided them abundantly.

For instance, there had been the earthquake. It had happened March 10, 1933, at the death of the great depression. In a ruinous 10 seconds the district's 53 school buildings—the work and dreams of 40 years—were demolished.

The district was far from recovered six years later when it was struck another blow—this time by a human avalanche of wartime migrants who began to fill Los Angeles County to the ocean's edge and packed school rooms to the windowsills. Families who didn't have children were getting ready to have them. Long Beach District is still one of the most pregnant in the land. The school-age population of this area has increased 37,000, or a whopping 100 per cent, during the past decade.

THROUGH THEY SAW district after district flailing woefully behind and the classroom shortage developing into a national crisis, Newcomb and school board members believed it possible for Long Beach District to solve the problem—and with its own resources.

Asks from classroom shortages, the big problem was to maintain an academic program of sufficient quality to justify public support. That meant getting and keeping good teachers. Yet, American schools faced (and they still do) a teacher shortage as critical as the classroom shortage.

The question came up at a board meeting. Newcomb stood and said simply: "We don't need more teachers." Board members stared at him. He added with a smile: "We need more good teachers."

It would be a mistake, he stated, to lower teacher requirements for the dubious advantage of quantity. He felt that the right kind of recruitment program could attract both quantity and quality. What teacher recruitment needed was the human touch.

So a slogan was born: "You can Really Live and Teach in Long Beach."

Recruiters set out to remind potential teachers that Long Beach had not only schools, but also sunshine waiting to be soaked up, and a whole ocean to play in during spare time. Long Beach Unified School District thus made a discovery that many another district overlooks: teachers do like to live as well as teach.

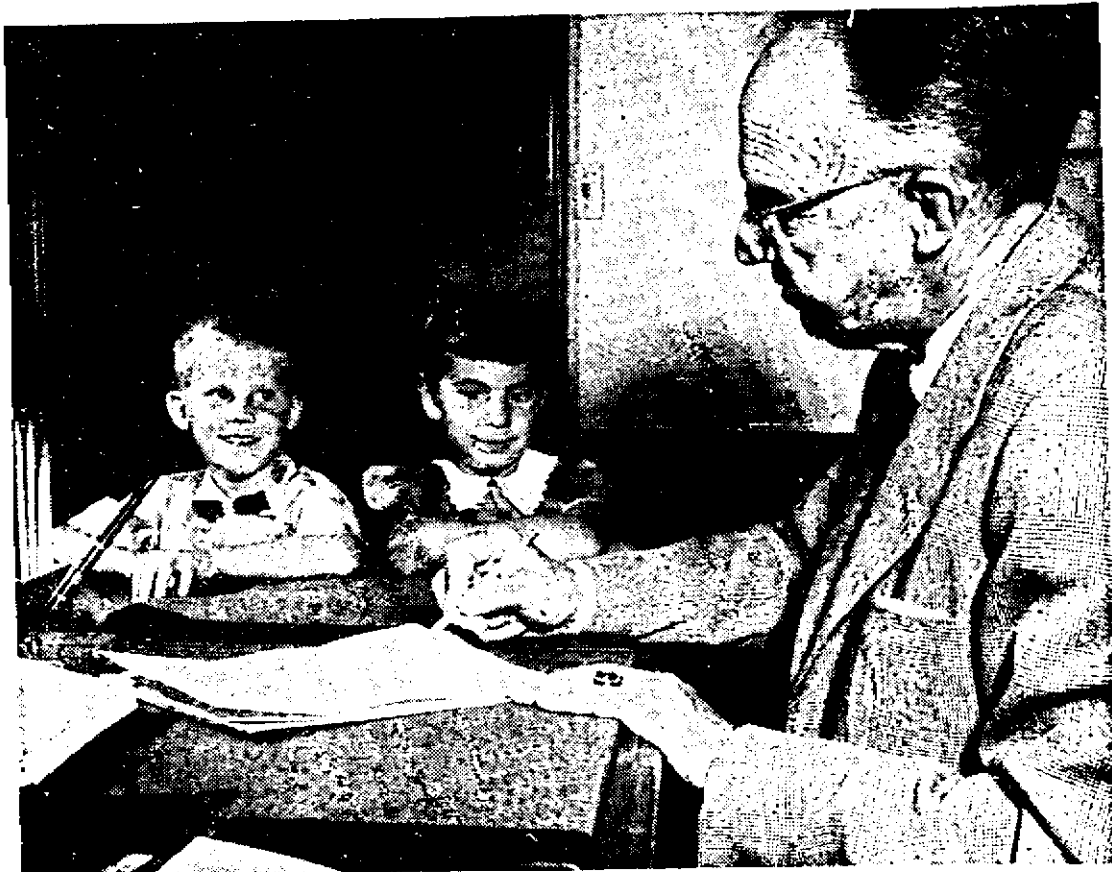

Long Beach District began to get the teachers it needed.

NEWCOMB'S CAPACITY for listening is enormous. When townspeople come to his office to make suggestions or voice criticism, he hears them out with an inner feeling of joy.

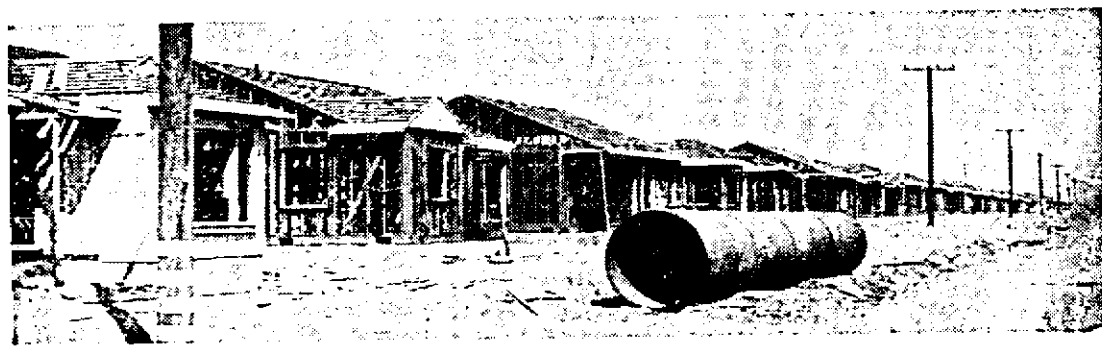

"After all," he explains, "they're interested! When they're not interested, that's the time to start worrying."

This attitude is the key to the whole story of Long Beach District's achievement. The people take part.

On the eve of a typical school bond election, dinners were delayed in homes from one end of the dis-

Tens of thousands of Long Beach youths return to school Sept. 11. Two of them with Supt. Douglas Newcomb are Mark Swain, Barbara Waterman.

Housing developments, like this street of homes being born in Lakewood, are one factor boosting enrollment in Long Beach Unified School District.

TODAY'S MOST POPULAR NATIONAL SPORT

Houston, Texas, boasts of Billy Welu, an ABC titleholder, as one of bowling's young stars.

Among the very youngest beginners is Jody Lee Foody, taking instruction from coach Ed Hcey.

IF YOU WERE to ask any sport-minded person in this area what the most popular national sport is, the reply probably would be:

"Why, baseball, of course."

But any bowler who knows his statistics can give him a stiff argument.

More than 50,000 men, women and children in the Long Beach, Lakewood and Orange County areas bowl weekly—far more than play baseball. And with winter bowling leagues opening this month, alleys will be crowded to capacity.

Nationally, the 20,000,000 adherents of bowling spend about $350,000,000 a year on their sport.

This is 10 times more than the total major leagues' gate receipts last year. And if hometown teams are your criterion, it's four or five times the amount expended for baseball equipment by the sandlotters.

DESPITE ALL THE FUN of bowling, none of it would have come about if it hadn't been for a canny Puritan who, 300 years ago, outfoxed a "blue law" code.

It seems the Puritan Fathers thought the game of "nine pins," brought to America by Dutch settlers, was too popular with the men and kept them away from chores. Strong laws were passed to outlaw the sport.

A sports-minded Puritan wisely noted that the law said "nine pins." He added a 10th pin. It not only circumvented the law but improved the game.

Bowling is a rapidly growing sport. Today there are 7,500 bowling establishments in the nation—twice the number of 10 years ago.

A few years ago there were only two or three bowling emporiums in the Long Beach area. And they were located in antiquated buildings on side streets and, actually, down alleys.

TODAY THERE ARE NEARLY 50 bowling alleys and many of them are plush establishments which would do credit to a Hollywood movie set depicting the sport.

Cushioned seats have replaced the hard benches of yesteryear and indirect fluorescent lighting takes the place of the green-shaded incandescents of old-style alleys.

Swank restaurants have replaced the ice box filled with soft drinks. Soft music from hi-fi systems blends with the plunk-plunk sound of balls hitting pins.

Alleys in this area have followed the national trend to luxury. The $1,000,000 Lakewood Bowl, definitely on the "plush" side, has billiards and coffee shop and dining room in addition to its 32 lanes.

The proposed $2,000,000 bowling establishment to be built in Los Altos will hit a new high in luxury with a deluxe supper club providing top rate entertainment, a banquet room seating 500 persons and specialty shops in addition to its 32 lanes.

REQUIRING SKILL and offering the fun of competition, bowling attracts virtually every age group because it does not call for excessive physical exertion.

Participants ordinarily range from 8 to 80, though some are above and below these figures.

In addition to recreation for individual groups, bowling is popular for leagues sponsored by companies.

The Long Beach Bowling Assn. lists 162 winter leagues for men; in addition, there are additional scores of summer leagues.

Approximately 5,000 men are registered in local leagues.

Women also find fun in this recreational sport. The Women's International Bowling Congress, established in 1917 with 40 members, now has more than 700,000.

The Long Beach Division Women's Bowling Assn. lists 74 winter and 52 summer leagues, with about 2,000 women bowlers registered in this area.

ALL OF THIS BRINGS about the question of why bowling has become so vital a part of modern recreation.

The experts come up with a multi-part answer.

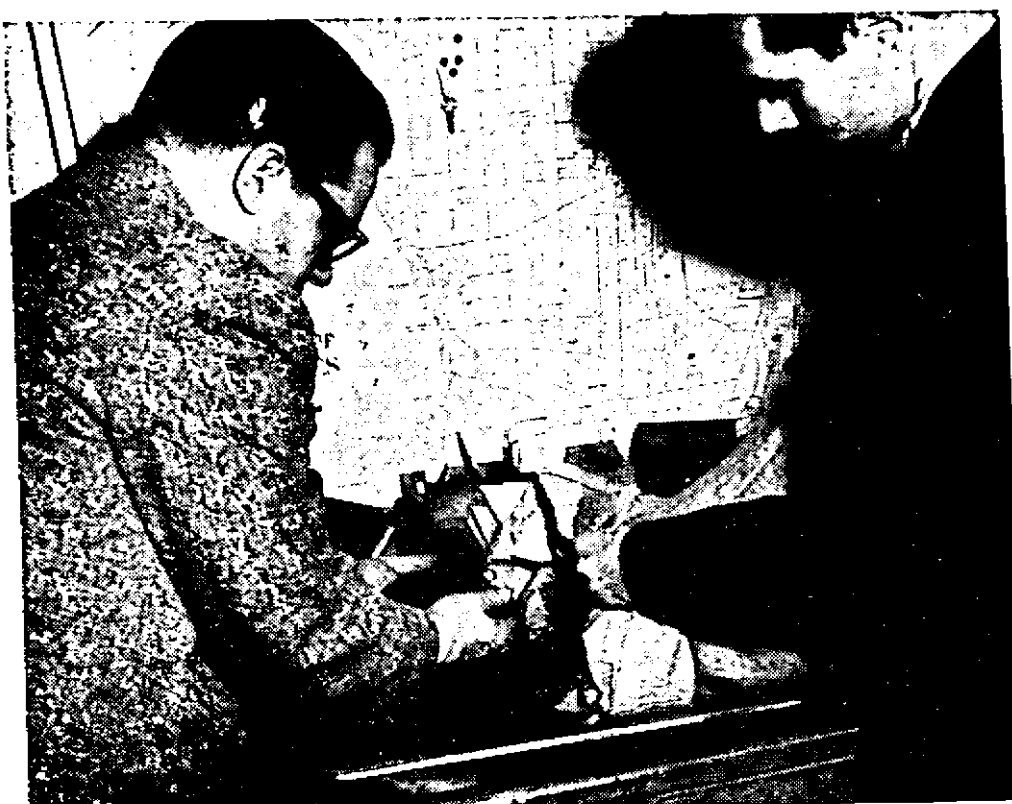

Bowling is popular because of automation (such as automatic pin setters), the challenge to the individual to "better" his score, development of good sportsmanship and team play, healthy exercise, and the fact that bowling can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

The Puritans had an idea three centuries ago—and it still adds up to fun for 20th Century Americans!

OUR COVER

Scores of winter bowling leagues in the Long Beach area open their schedules early this month, and the bowlers—men and women alike—are rolling a few practice games to regain form that sometimes gets a little rusty after the summer layoff. That's exactly what Jean Cross was doing when staff photographer John H. Neagle snapped her picture at Virginia Bowl for Southland's cover today. Jean bowls in a women's Tuesday evening winter league at Virginia.

Capitalizing on the coffee break. Al (l) and Jerry Lapin brew a special blend of coffee, examined here, and supply it to Los Angeles area firms.

They're Cashing In on the Coffee Break

By Jack B. Kemmerer

TWO YOUNG MEN with a remedy for management's coffee nerves are busy building a thriving business supplying the beverage to offices and factories in the Los Angeles area.

The "coffee break" often involving important losses in time and high serving costs, has become an administrative headache in many concerns.

Al Lapin, one-time civil defense official turned caterer, and his brother, Jerry, think they have the problem pretty well solved, and at a profit for everyone concerned.

The Lapins' customers get their coffee in stainless-steel, vacuum-insulated thermos jugs of three, five- or ten-gallon capacity. A freshly filled can is delivered each morning, and an electrically heated rod is inserted to keep the coffee at a constant 170 degrees and preserve its flavor. Coffee addicts help themselves at any time during the day, and by taking the coffee to their desks, no time is lost from the job.

Next morning the empty can is removed and another filled one put in its place. The unique service includes the coffee, paper cups, wooden spoons, cream and sugar.

The coffee is brewed in three 100-gallon urns in what Al Lapin claims is the most modern coffee brewing setup anywhere.

The brewing plant can turn out 270 gallons of freshly brewed coffee in just 50 minutes. Currently, the Lapins are turning out more than 25,000 cups of coffee per day.

The operation starts at 1 a.m. each work day, with 26 pounds of ground coffee for each 100 gallons of dechlorinated water yielding 32 gallons of coffee. The cans are filled and delivered to the customer between 4 and 9 a.m.

With the coffee break time assuming such importance—even the labor unions are writing it into their new contracts as a fringe benefit Al and Jerry Lapin believe they have a business that is just getting started and expect to pass the 2,000 gallon per day mark soon.

Al and Jerry always sample the coffee to be sure of quality before delivery.

Just before each container is filled, it is sterilized in a bath of steam.

A five-gallon container is filled with steaming brew, transported to dispenser, kept hot with electric rod.

25 YEARS AHEAD OF THE AUTO WORLD

Cord Is Still Meeting Challenges

ERRETT L. CORD, the man who built today's automobiles 25 years ago, has added another activity to a bold career which brought him both fun and fortune.

The mild-mannered financier, whose depression-day Auburns, Cords and Duesenbergs still command respect — and top prices — from automobile lovers the world over, has become a Nevada state senator.

His constituency in the state's south central Esmeralda County has fewer people than jack-rabbits. The county's biggest town, Goldfield, only has about 150 registered voters and the entire county has fewer than 400.

AS SHY as any freshman senator, Cord had little to say during a recent special session of the Legislature. But he quickly won the respect of his colleagues for sharp thinking especially on money matters.

He should have, for Cord has handled more money in his 62 years than many banks have seen.

Before he was 21, he made — and lost — three $50,000 fortunes, winding up with only $20 to his name by the end of World War I.

Today he is one of the nation's wealthiest men after building everything from steamships to kiddie cars, including the automobiles that made his name famous.

YOUNGISH in both appearance and attitude, Cord has to have fun in his work. And to Cord, fun comes in terms of challenge.

"Once you conquer the challenge," he says, "it's no longer fun. You want to tackle something else. All you can do by staying where you are is make more money. And that isn't fun."

The son of Missouri parents

By Ed Olsen

Associated Press Staff Writer

"who had just enough to spoil me" as he grew up in Los Angeles, Cord was led into the auto manufacturing business by his desire for challenge.

He had a highly successful auto agency in Chicago, when, in 1924, the struggling Auburn Motor Co. of Auburn, Ind., offered him $36,000 a year to run its factory.

The firm had used nothing but red ink for years, but Cord jumped at the job, turning down any salary.

All he asked was 20 per cent of the profit, if he could show one, and an option to buy all the common stock.

A YEAR LATER Cord owned the Auburn Motor Co.

Gathering men around him who, like himself, were willing to gamble security against the enjoyment of the challenge, Cord re-engineered and re-styled the Auburn and made it the first American stock car to do 100 m.p.h. by stopwatch. He was at the wheel when it broke the mark.

The glamorous Cord 810, put out in 1932, still has advocates as the best looking car ever to come from an American factory. And it was a top performer.

Its compact V-8 engine wasn't equalled in horsepower per pound of fuel delivered until Cadillac came out with a new motor in 1949.

The Cord 810 had a rounded streamlined body, disappearing headlights and flush taillamps, dashboard shift, step-down floor, no running boards and a sleek hard-top look. It also had a front-wheel drive which enabled it to pull out of corner skills more effectively than other cars.

It sold for $2,695 at a time when a Cadillac cost $1,895.

You could make a Cord speedometer hit 115 m.p.h. without too much trouble, but at least two special Duesenbergs turned out by the Cord people were capable of 145 m.p.h.

These were built for Clark Gable and Gary Cooper. You paid $8,500 for a Duesenberg, incidentally, and then all you got was the motor and chassis. The body came extra.

Auburn Corp. stock climbed spectacularly and its vast holdings were worth many millions at the start of the depression.

But by this time the automobiles he built were almost a sideline to Cord. He also solely owned or had controlling interests in American Airlines, the Stinson airplane factory, the Lycoming engine plant, several auto body factories and the New York Shipbuilding Corp., which built U. S. liners and Navy cruisers.

IN 1936, a year before his cars went off the market for good, Cord sold all of his major holdings for four million dollars. The depression was making it tougher and tougher to sell luxury autos and, besides, the challenge was over.

But Cord didn't retire. In the years that followed, he added to his fortune by investments in Los Angeles real estate and in factories producing aircraft parts, kiddie cars and small household appliances. He also acquired an all-music radio station in Los Angeles, a substantial block of Santa Fe Railroad stock and holdings in a number of other corporations.

Cord moved to Nevada in 1939, buying a 3,400-acre home ranch in Esmeralda County's Fish Lake Valley and an additional 30,000 acres of cattle land in the Elko and Lovelock areas.

He could have become a country gentleman at this point, but again he refused to retire. Only last year he and some partners bought a Utah uranium mine which today is rated the third richest in the nation.

"No one thing can hold me," says Cord. "There isn't enough days left in my life."

But his eyes are still on the future.

"I'd give anything to start over," he adds. "Because kids today have far greater opportunities what with electronics, atomic energy, exploration of space and all the other things in modern science."

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Beauty From 'Crazy Experiments'

By Ellen Saunders

HOW MANY TIMES have you wished you could preserve the short-lived beauty of a flower? Countless, no doubt. But you've probably never backed up your wish with the hard work which enabled Mrs. Leonard Back of 3319 San Francisco Ave., to transform the same desire into reality. Her method of dehydrating flowers in sand retains so much of the blossom's original color that her 5-year-old framed flower pictures appear at first glance to be still life paintings.

"I started to work on the problem with only the vague idea that I had once read that the American Indian had discovered a method of retaining color in flowers by baking them in sand," says Mrs. Back. "When research failed to clarify the subject I begged flowers from everyone to begin what my friends were eventually to call, 'those crazy experiments.'"

FOR A YEAR Mrs. Back pulled countless pans of scorched blossoms out of the oven before she discovered the exact amount of heat and the length of time needed to dehydrate the flowers to the extent that their natural color would not fade. Now she knows that small flowers must be baked under continuous low heat for from eight to 15 hours, while large ones such as stocks and delphiniums may require as long as two weeks of baking for more than eight hour periods daily. All the moisture in the flowers must be absorbed and since no two plants contain the same amount of water the only way one can actually tell when this state has been reached is to handle the blossoms. "When the petals feel like tissue paper," is Mrs. Back's explanation of how one knows when the processing is completed.

Preserved flowers, artificial fern enhance table top. Mrs. Back "rediscovered" flower process by experiment.

Don't think, however, that you can just pick some flowers from your garden, lay them in sand and meet with success. It isn't that simple. Freshly picked flowers process best, but if you want to use some blossoms from a favorite corsage perk them up with a night's stay in the refrigerator. With the exception of the pansy every flower must be taken apart petal by petal, otherwise it will not attain the degree of drying which will preserve its coloring. The petals are then placed in a large pan on a one-inch layer of clean white sand and covered with another layer of the same thickness.

ONLY TWO OF the more than 20 varieties of flowers with which Mrs. Back has experimented cannot be processed successfully. Orchids are too delicate to be handled and the wax-like beauty of a gardenia acquires a yellow tinge.

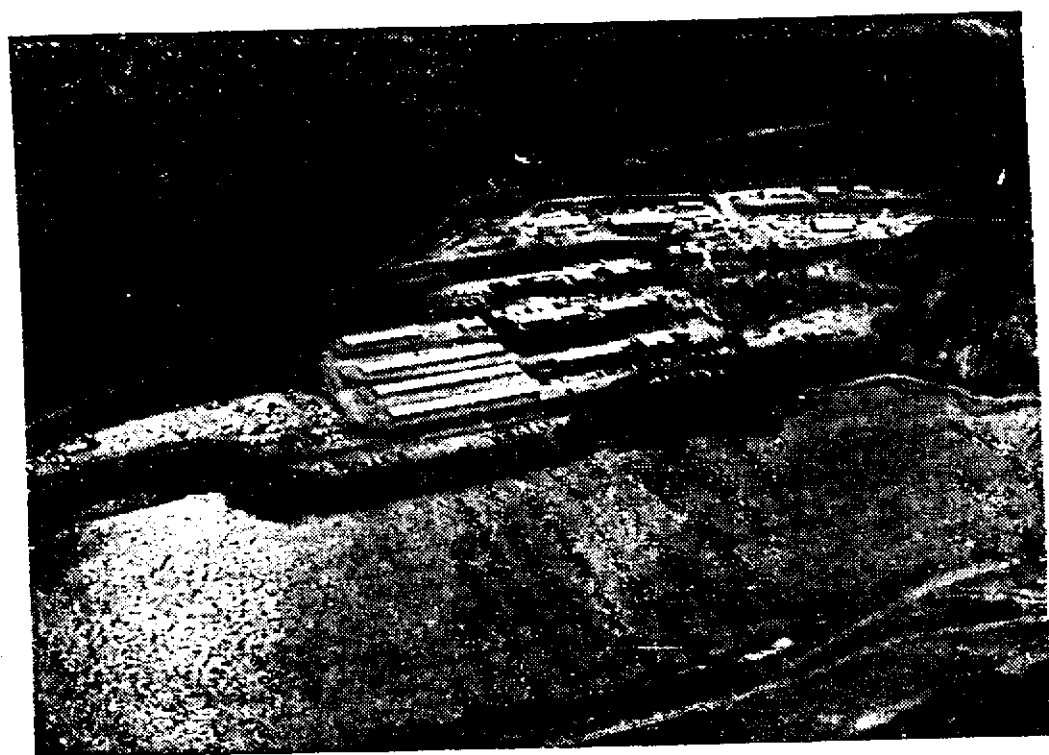

After the blossoms are dried comes the painstaking job of re-assembling and gluing each petal to the stem until the original flower takes shape. Only pansy stems can be processed.

Hell's Canyon to Stay Unspoiled

By Blaine Stubblefield

CONSTRUCTION of three authorized dams in the Hell's Canyon reach of the Snake River along the Idaho-Oregon border will leave nearly all of the main scenery and places of recreation along this deepest chasm on the western hemisphere just as they are now for its ever-increasing stream of visitors.

And recent rejection by the Senate appears to have ended the long controversy over the proposed federal high dam, although Idaho Power Co., which last winter was licensed by the Federal Power Commission to develop the site, has had nearly 1,000 men on the job for more than six months.

Two of the company dams are far upstream from Hell's Canyon main gorge and thus will have no effect on it. Oxlow Dam is 20 miles and Brownlee Dam around 30 miles above Kinney Creek Rapid, which is the upper gate of the principal defile.

THE COMPANY'S Hell Canyon Dam, not yet started, will be about midway in the main gorge, near Deep Creek and Eagle Bar, leaving the lower half of the main canyon below the dam virtually undisturbed.

Fish seasons are in the lower half of the awesome chasm. Most impressive of these is Hell Creek, a prehistoric tributary on the Oregon side, only a few steps wide at the bottom, with sides rising almost vertically 2,000 feet. Hell Creek is 21 miles below Homestead, a village reached by roads from both Oregon and Idaho. Another mile down from its mouth of Still Creek, where Battle Mountain rises 2,000 feet above the river, is the Oregon side.

MOUTHS OF THE MAIN defile in the upper half—Kinney, Snake, Deep and Stampat Creeks—will be under 100 to 200 feet of water but their main purposes will be to let the air overlying passengers will live and work until Hell's Canyon dam is completed, six to nine years from now.

Important to Hell's Canyon recreation seekers is the fact, barely known to the public, that two of the dams—Oxlow and Hell's Canyon—are run-of-the-river operations, which means the impounded pools will have no draw-down. The water level will vary only a foot or two—hence there'll be no muddy "high water" rings on the shore walls, no "low water" smells.

IDAHO POWER, under the terms of its FPC license, will provide with its own money camp and picnic grounds, overlooks, boating accommodations, and other recreation facilities at various places along the entire 93 miles of water impounded by the three dams. They have already set up $250,000 for studies of wild life and will invest large sums in installations for the improvement of fish resources.

The canyon is reached in about 100 miles of driving, from either Weiser and Council, Idaho, or Baker, Ore. Either way, it is necessary to travel two or three hours on dirt roads. Vacationers' headquarters is Cuprum (Latin for copper) village on the Idaho rim; the boat dock is at Homestead.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"We won't be going to England until next spring, but we would like to make some preparations, like finding out what to do..."

A GOOD MAGAZINE on traveling in England is "Coming Events in Britain." Costs $2 a year, as I remember. You get it from British Travel and Holiday Association, 64 St. James' St., London. Ask them for any more literature they may have.

"Do you rent or buy a car to travel in Europe? I don't know, but you can buy and sell them back..."

YOU CAN, But I had a rough time when I did it. Maybe things have improved since then. I've never been to Europe. Generally, figure if you spend three months only and really enjoy it, it's worth it.

"Where can I find out about a vacation in Europe?"

WRITE THE CANADIAN Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa, Canada. They've got a thing called "The Canadian Vacation Package." It's free.

"How do you choose your places to eat when you are abroad?"

I GO TO THE tourist hotel. First, for instance, you can write British Travel Association in London or at 336 Madison Ave., New York. You get a free copy of Gourmet's Guide to Britain. Excellent. In France, I use the Guide Michelin. Buy it at any magazine kiosk. I ask the hotel concierge to give me a list of five he likes best. I ask friends and I badge taxi drivers. Start with the tourist board first though. They have some amazing information tucked away.

"Do we need evening clothes for a trip to Europe in the fall?"

FRIDAY NIGHT at Maxim's in Paris. La Scala Opera House in Milan. Maybe if you are being invited to very posh parties in England.

"... some place with cheap accommodations for skiing..."

AUSTRIA IS YOUR spot. Get a list from the Austrian Tourist Board in New York. Shouldn't cost you over $3 a day with all meals included. You can catch trains from Frankfurt, Germany. You can fly. You can take the Aurlberg Express (which I like) from Paris and transfer off at Innsbruck or before. Winter in the Tyrol is one of the best travel joys today.

Set on a base of crisp salad greens and garnished with fresh fruits, this salad with baking powder biscuits, coffee will make a bridge luncheon hit.

COOKING

Fruit Salad for Bridge Luncheons

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

OUR MOTTO for warm weather cooking, both for the family and guests, is "keep it simple." And you'll find fruits of all kinds are able assistants. Cool and refreshing, they are satisfying and delicious.

So when it comes your turn to entertain the ladies at bridge we suggest bridge luncheon salads.

For your convenience, the bridge luncheon salads are featured elsewhere on this page.

Another fruit salad, which nicely complements buffet suppers, is molded cherry salad with sherry. It may be made in a ring mold and the center filled with melon balls and garnished with mint leaves.

Molded Cherry Salad With Sherry

- 2 pkgs. cream cheese
- 1 No. 2 can Bing cherries, pitted
- 2 pkgs. cherry-flavored gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 cup sherry wine
- 1 cup cherry juice

Chill the cream cheese. Form into miniature balls and stuff into pitted cherries. Arrange stuffed cherries in bottom of fancy mold. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add sherry and cherry juice. Pour over cherries and chill until firm.

Minted and gingered prunes add much to any fruit salad, and the recipes for these and other suggested fruit salads follow.

Minted Prunes

Cover 3 cups prunes with water, add whole cloves and stick cinnamon and boil about 30 minutes. To 1 cup of cooking liquid from prunes, add 1/2 cup vinegar and 1 cup brown sugar. Boil 5 minutes. Add 10 to 12 drops oil of peppermint or 1/4 teaspoon peppermint extract. Allow prunes to cool in most syrup. Serve cool in salads or with meats. Makes about 1 1/2 pints.

Gingered Prunes

Boil 3 cups prunes in 5 cups water 10 minutes. Cut 2 unpeeled lemons into thin slices and add to prunes with 2 cups granulated sugar and 1/2 cup finely sliced preserved ginger. Simmer about 15 minutes adding more water if needed. Makes about 1 quart.

Cheese Stuffed Pears

- 1 (3-ounce) pkg. cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons milk or cream
- 1 cup ripe olives
- 1 tablespoon chopped green sweet pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 6 large fresh or canned pear halves
- Salad greens
- French dressing

Soften cheese with a fork and blend in milk. Cut cores from pears into large pieces. Blend olives, pepper, pimiento and salt into cheese. Arrange pear halves, cut side up, on salad greens.

1 (3-ounce) pkg. cream cheese

Bridge Luncheon Salads:

- 1 1/2 cups cooked prunes
- 1 cup strawberries
- 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 No. 1 flat can crushed pineapple (about 1 cup)
- 2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- Salad greens
- Fresh fruits

Cut prunes from pits into pieces. Halve or quarter strawberries, depending on size. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool to room temperature. Meanwhile drain syrup from pineapple and gradually blend into cheese. Blend in lemon juice. Stir in cooled gelatin, a small portion at a time. Fold in stiffly-whipped cream, peaches, strawberries and pineapple. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens and garnish with fresh fruits. Makes 8 (6-ounce) molds.

greens and fill with cheese mixture. Serve with French dressing. Serves 6.

Tutti Frutti Salad

- 1 medium pineapple
- 2 oranges, peeled and sliced
- 3 bananas, halved lengthwise
- 1 large can peach halves, drained
- 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries
- 1 pint strawberries
- Salad greens
- 1 tablespoon mint jelly
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped

Cut pineapple into 1/2 inch slices. Remove center pitting and core. Place orange slices on top of pineapple. Cut peach halves with 1/2 inch slices. Add strawberries. Arrange greens and fruit on salad plate. Whip jelly with a fork. Stir into 2 tablespoons of real mayonnaise and mix until well blended. Continue with remaining mayonnaise. Fold whipped cream gently into mixture and serve. Serve with salad. Or serve salad with fresh mint mayonnaise. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

FRESH MINT MAYONNAISE—Blend 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon minced fresh mint leaves and 1/4 teaspoon salt.

By E. J. Leslie

NEW YOSEMITE visitors actually know that its mighty granite guardian El Capitan was born when a contortion of the earth beneath the sea shook into view the spine of the Sierra Nevada, well padded with broad valleys, low hills and swift streams.

About 200 million years ago Yosemite National Park, some 250 miles north of Long Beach, was a shallow arm of the Pacific. Subsequent upheavals, river erosion and glacial activity carved deeper valleys. Waterfalls poured riotously over steep precipices. Twice this area was inundated by the Pacific.

El Capitan grew from a rounded hill 700 feet high into the largest exposed monolith in the world, about 8,000 feet above sea level. Three times higher than the Empire State building, twice as high as the Rock of Gibraltar, it stands guard over the entrance to Yosemite Valley which many thousands of years ago was a deep lake five and a half miles long.

Gradually the lake disappeared, trees grew and lush grass carpeted the valley floor. Later the valley became the stronghold of the Grizzly Bear (u-za-mai-ti) tribe of Indians, so named because one of their clan killed a

Geologists and Indian legend agree that El Capitan had a very small beginning. Long, long ago, according to legend, two small boys (or bear cubs—legends do not agree) went swimming in a stream in the Valley of Ahwah-ree, Yosemite, on a hot summer day. Tired of play they climbed onto a large rock and went to sleep. As they slept the rock grew higher and higher into the sky. Fleecy white clouds gave them a blanket.

They slept peacefully year after year while their mother searched frantically for them. A high-flying crane located them and returned to the valley with the news. The excited, sympathetic animals organized a rescue party. The mouse, the fox, the raccoon, the coyote, the deer and the bear all tried to climb the slippery, granite wall of the rock-chief. They all failed.

At last Tu-tok-a-nu-la, the measuring worm, started the perilous ascent. Inching its way on its many legs to the top, it succeeded after many months in guiding the boys safely back to their grateful mother. The Indians named the rock Tu-tok-a-nu-la, the measuring-worm stone.

When friends marvel at Mrs. Back's willingness to devote so much skill, patience and time to retain the loveliness of a flower, she reminds them of Keat's famous lines, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

"My mother lived by those words," she says, "and taught her children to do the same."

Many of the hundreds of flower pictures Mrs. Back has created for her family and friends have been made from blossoms which have held a special significance for them. In fact, Mrs. Back likes nothing better than to steal a few rosebuds from a bridal bouquet and later surprise the young couple with a framed flower picture as a memento for their home. Many people who used to try to preserve a few flowers from a funeral wreath by pressing them between the pages of a book, now ask Mrs. Back to turn them into a lasting remembrance.

THE FLOWERS ARE always mounted on plain wallpaper of varying shades since Mrs. Back has found that this shows up their beauty to best advantage. Whenever possible antique frames with beveled glass are used. Ferns used are not the real thing—they are artificial.

This ingenious housewife has found many other uses for her hobby. She transforms ordinary birthday and get well cards into distinctive greetings by decorating them with a few blossoms and in the same manner creates novel place cards for dinner parties. An ordinary tray is converted into a most welcome Christmas gift by mounting clusters of the recipient's favorite flowers on wallpaper and gluing them to a cardboard back which is then fastened underneath the glass top of the tray.

He Clowned His Way to Stardom

Chucko the Clown in full make-up and ready for an appearance on TV. His career began most auspiciously.

Here's Chucko (Charles Runyon) out of costume and enjoying good music with son, Denny, who started it all.

Runyon begins the metamorphosis which changes him into a clown—first comes greasepaint, then the costume.

By Terry Vernon
Independent Press-Telegram
Television-Radio Columnist

WHEN OUR daughter was four years old we thought it would be nice to have the Merry-Go-Ride company stage her birthday party and entertain the little friends who were invited. Columnist Harry Fulton had told us how to contact him. So we called Charles Runyon and made the date.

Little did we know that Chucko the Clown was destined to become a star on TV with his own KABC-TV show . . . fact is, he didn't even mention such a possibility while we chatted between stunts and rides at the birthday party.

But a star he is, especially to the smaller children who love his cartoon shows, his funny balloon tricks and his painted face with the clown costume to set it off.

ACTUALLY CHUCKO was born out of dire necessity. The Runyon's son, Denny, had a birthday coming up and the parents were perplexed as to just what to do about it.

"Even when you're serious, you're a clown," said Mildred, "so I'll fix you up." And that is just what she did. Chalk, lipstick and some red and white fabric turned Runyon into Chucko the Clown and his career was launched.

This led to the neighbors borrowing Chucko for their children's parties, and the possibilities of this type of life appealed to the Runyons. So they invested in some little merry-go-round horses, an old pickup truck, some paint and other materials and rigged up a "merry-go-bile." This is a merry-go-round that operates on electricity (furnished by the householder) and has its own music system. Chucko drives it from party to party and has done four or five a day many times.

AS HE GREW more and more popular Chucko kept improving his act. He discovered the secret of fashioning peculiar animals out of balloons, he learned to hold the attention of children with stories, acrobatics and magic. He read every book he could find concerning clowns and entertaining.

"This being a clown is a serious business," he told us, "especially to the children. One wrong word or gesture and you can lose your audience. I'm very careful never to offend the children. I just try to keep them attentive and laughing. That way I delight the parents too, for they have no worries."

Charles Runyon was born in San Diego but came to Los Angeles when he was three years old. He attended Inglewood and South Gate High Schools and then went into the National Guard. On Dec. 11, 1941, he was stationed at Pearl Harbor and has often remarked since that "those Japanese bombers weren't clowning."

House of Two Faces, Two Moods

From a high vantage point, the home of James and Jeanette Reid surveys Portuguese Bend and the blue Pacific as far as the eye may care to roam.

By Eileen Ball

A VIEW as beautifully breath-taking as the one which "went with" the lot James and Jeanette Reid bought in Portuguese Bend can be understandably frustrating. Its magnitude is overwhelming, with an unbroken vista of blue Pacific waters stretching as far as the eye can see. In planning a house for such a site it seems tragic to lose the view from any room.

So, such a house becomes a "sight-seer," arranging itself in such a way that the view is framed in as many windows as possible without its plan losing sense.

The house the Reids built at 40 Seacove Dr. has settled itself congenially on its bluff site where it has taken as much advantage of the Pacific panorama as is practical. Of modest design, it in no way tries to outdo the spot in which it finds itself. Submissive to the natural grandeur of its surroundings, it clings close to the earth among beds of vibrant geraniums, achieving a tranquility that is effectively contrasted by the restless background of the sea.

THE HOUSE HAS a comprehensive use of glass that faces the ocean with frank interest. Yet the structure is agreeably "two faced," for some of its rooms—necessarily out of sea-scape range—face an entirely different picture composed of pool and patio.

Widely divergent are the two moods thus produced—the "front" of the house deriving an almost ethereal quality from the infinite view; the other part assuming a more intimate personality that stems from the sun-flooded sheltered patio.

Guests arrive at the Reid home by means of a driveway that leads down a rather sharp incline to the cliff-side lot. They alight in a car port and enter a patio that is protected by a high grapestake fence. Inside the patio, lush planting beds are terraced so that the vividly colored blossoms and dark green tropical foliage can be reflected in the pool. The house, with its attached garage and bedroom wing, provides a "U" into which the patio extends.

adjoins the den on the left and the living area straight ahead, with wide hallways fanning out on both sides toward the bedroom and the kitchen areas. At no place in the entry, den, living or dining area is there a right-angled corner. Thus the rooms gain interest by their physical proportions as well as their decor.

View is also a feature of the Reids' kitchen-dinette where wide panels of glass look out on the seascape. Attractive divider sets off the area.

Within "U" formed by house, space is found for pool and patio, the latter sheltered by overhang of roof.

Sand park was chosen for the entry walls. Flagstone used for the living room fireplace has been extended into the entry where it forms a planter.

Earshell and opaque draperies woven with a fine gold thread pull across the extensive glass panels on occasions when the desire for coziness supercedes that for grandeur. A gold-flocked oyster sofa stands before the windows and is served by a low cocktail table of pale birch.

CREATING A FEELING of solace and warmth is an open fireplace of flagstone, the buff tones of which are beautifully reflected in the browns, beiges and cocons used throughout the area. An extended raised hearth of stone is accented with occasional pillows in champagne, cocoa and sage green. A leather chair of dusty green stands near the fireplace and faces the view.

Exposed ceiling beams are of Douglas fir stained to match mahogany paneling of the walls. Valances and unpaneled wall areas are painted a warm, rich cocoa.

A glass wall at one end of the room slides open to a terrace covered with a cantilevered roof. The terrace overlooks the rolling lawn that, together with bordering bands of bright pink geraniums, seemingly goes off into infinity at the cliff's edge.

A DINING SET of bleached oak occupies a space between the living room and the kitchen-dinette, the latter portion of which merges with the living tone established in the carpet.

THE DEN IS CARPETED identically to the living room. A sliding glass door opens to the terrace and paneled walls of mahogany seclude hi-fi component parts, a built-in television and a bar. So painstakingly fitted are the folding panels of mahogany that conceal these features that, when they are closed, there is no hint whatever of their function.

A large angular flagstone fireplace opens through to the living room and features a raised seat-height hearth. The den doubles as a guest room with a pair of green tweed-covered day beds that meet a large blond lamp table in one corner.

The house has two bedrooms, one overlooking the ocean and one backing in the reflected sunlight of the patio pool. The former is sage green with pink accessories while the latter has a complexion comprised of sand-colored, terra cotta and lime green.

Flight From Reality

ALCOHOLISM takes its victims from every social strata of life. The poor excuse their weakness as an escape from poverty, and the rich console themselves with liquor because of the responsibilities thrust on them by their positions in society. Each and every alcoholic has a personal and to them—overwhelming reason to flee reality.

"Come Fill the Cup" by Rosalind Wale (Pantheon, $3.75) describes the life of a young English divorcee who turns to the oblivion of alcohol when she loses her husband to another woman. Although Hester Revell has a comfortable income, a pleasant home and a fine young son she is incapable of adjusting herself to her lonely life or beginning a new one and seeking new friends. Instead, she dwells on her past happiness, and drinks more and more so that she can numb her mind to her loneliness and despair.

Soon, her dreadful secret becomes known to her friends and family, and Hester is persuaded to take "cures" which are as shocking as they are painful. They do nothing to relieve her of her problem. When Hester's sister turns from her in revulsion, and her friends give up any hope for a cure, Hester begins her descent into degradation and poverty. The shocking picture of this once beautiful woman scrubbing floors in a squalid hotel in return for alcohol is appalling.

Hester is helped back to sanity by a group of former alcoholics who understand her problem. And with these people to guide her she begins her struggle towards a better life. But the price of her former degradation is heavy. She has lost her health, her youth and her son, F.T.H.

ONE OF THE MOST prolific authors of his time, Zane Grey wrote two and often three books a year. His output was so copious that his publishers could not keep up with him and his backlog of unpublished stories gathered dust. Since his death in 1939, one of these yarns has been issued each year. This week his 57th novel "Stranger From the Tonto" (Harper, $2.75) appeared. Set in the beautiful Utah country above the Grand Canyon which Grey knew so intimately, it contains all the ingredients readers like—a mysterious cache of gold, a captive girl, a band of desperate outlaws. The hero is red-blooded, romantic and fearless, the villain as ornery as you'll find, the heroine beautiful, loving and pure. You'll agree that it is one of Grey's best.—F.T.K.

A MOST GAY BOOK is "Weddings in the Family" by Dale Fife (Farrar, Straus & Cudahy, $3.50). Quite uninhibited, this Alsatian group of characters goes through delightful and stimulating experiences dealing with love and marriage and resettlement in a strange and interesting America. Mama does her best (and it's good enough) to see that the parlor wall is covered with wedding pictures. The sprightly misadventures are due to Mama, in most part, and the book will carry the reader along in a hurry.

WHEN CROOKED CREEK overflowed and Grandma Sykes' house was flooded, she took off her shoes, tied the leather thongs in a bowknot and strung them around her neck. Then she sat back, and smoked her pipe. She sat out trouble. When Preacher Prescott was called upon to speak at the funeral of a man who had broken ALL the Commandments, he said simply "You knowed Charlie. I knowed Charlie. Let's bury him." The story of two generations of people in Crooked Creek, in the deep South is told feelingly by Hoke Norris, Chicago newspaper reporter born in North Carolina, in "All the Kingdoms of Earth" (Simon and Schuster, $3.50).

"FROGMAN" IS THE story of the underwater exploits of Commander Crab, who has recently aroused so much speculation in the press because of his mysterious disappearance last April 19 in England's Portsmouth Harbor. The Russians accused Crab of spying on their cruiser "Ondzhonibize" which was anchored in the harbor with two attendant destroyers. The uproar was intensified because the cruiser was the ship which had brought Marshal Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev to British shores. A close friend of Commander Crab, Marshall Pugh, has written "Frogman" (Simon and Schuster, $3.50) not only to immortalize Crab, but also to tell the dramatic story of the feats of the brave men who risk their lives in underwater warfare.—F.T.H.

PERHAPS selfishness is the great destroyer of happiness in modern living, and "Try Giving Yourself Away" by David L. Ford (Prentice, Hall, $2.95) is a splendid little book from a man who had tried it and found it served his own needs. If we can live with friendship in mind, we can perhaps live more gracefully and with more purpose. It is lack of purpose which stretches nerves and brings on boredom. But we are never bored by a friend, so try and make more of them. This book will assist you to do so.

"All right, wise guy, let's get it ALL on... Major Ernest Newton!"

THERE'S NO Surer WAY to get a deep-down belly laugh than to read "Grab Your Socks" (Ballantine, 35c), an album of more than 100 riotously funny cartoons for and about men facing peacetime life in the new army. The cartoonist is Shel Silverstein, who practiced his art for two years with Pacific Stars and Stripes. The foreword is by Bill Mauldin.

NEW PAPERBACK originals (never before published in book form) you may like: "Murder in the Wind," a driving story of suspense by John D. MacDonald (Dell, 25c); "The Girl in 301," a woman of the streets, love, and death in the night, by Harold R. Daniels (Dell, 25c); "Fight for Control," all about buying stocks and the stock market, by David Kaffr (Ballantine, 35c); "The Human Angle," 8 science-fiction tales by William Tenn (Ballantine, 35c); "Frontier," 6 lusty stories of the old west, by Marvin De Vries (Ballantine, 35c); "The Cruiser," novel of a fighting ship and her men, by Warren Tute (Ballantine, 50c).

A SPLENDID BOOK for the most distinguished library is "Stories From Shakespeare" (World, $1.75), in which Marjorie Chute (she also wrote "Shakespeare of London") retells some of the greatest tales in English literature in scintillating, easily-understood language that characterizes today's most effective writers. Upon the zephyrs of her breezy style readers from age 12 to 90 will capture a fascinating new interest in the Bard of Avon. There are 26 tales, classified in three groups: Comedies, Tragedies, and Histories.

THE SUSPENSE NOVEL has an important following, and these readers who like their heroes and villains out in the open will favor "Horn Into Hell" by Richard Parker (Gardners, $3.95). I found Hawks with 3,000 pounds in an English football pool, and from then on he and his family are subjected to a gradually increasing procession of evil men. It has a cliffhanger and Hawks is subjected to the terror of a ransom demand. The two villains of the story are perhaps the most unpleasant criminals in fiction, but they blend in more and more tightly, both for themselves and for their victims. The ending is a fiery dream, and the whole tale is a splendid one with many novel twists in it.

COVERING CRUELTY with pity, the convicts of Florida Scotland on the tails of Cromwell's reign in "My Lord Monleigh" by Jan Cox Speas (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.75). Laced through the novel is the glowing love story of Monleigh, champion of the Royalist forces with a price on his head, and Anne Lindsay, companion to the ailing sister of a covenant. Anne's love is tested when she is faced with the decision to stay in comparative comfort with the hated covenants, or to journey with Monleigh on his danger-ridden path against Cromwell's forces.

THESE TIMES SEEM to try parents. Not that in all generations there have not been moments when a mother or a father despaired of raising anything but a monster. But various social changes have brought evils into light which complicated parent-child relationships. "Time Is the Piv-er" by Maurice W. Sellstrom, Ph.D. (Sherwood Pub. Co. Los Angeles, $3.50) is filled with practical suggestions for parents who feel they need suggestions as their children change and become unresponsive to ordinary treatment of problems. Getting the viewpoint of the child is a beginning, and from there on in honesty of purpose will serve well.

HOW TO Fasten Pictures and Other Objects to Plaster Walls of Living Room

1. FOR HEAVY OBJECTS (such as a cabinet), use wood screws driven through the plaster and into the studs. Make sure screws you use are heavy and long enough to support weight. Try to run them into center of studs.

2. LOCATE STUDS quickly with a wall dowser. Hold it to the plaster and give wall thump with your fist, as shown. When over stud, steel balls in tube move only slightly.

3. FLANGE-TYPE fastener fans out in back of wall after you insert it through proper size hole and turn the screw in the center. Remove screw and slip it through fixture you'll hang. Then run screw back into bolt.

4. "WINGS" ON TOGGLE bolt compress, then spring apart in back of the wall for secure mounting in plaster, etc. Thread the bolt through the fixture and part way onto the "wing" section. Push it through the hole, as shown, and tighten with a screwdriver. Toggle bolts are made in several sizes.

5. BRIDGE STUDS with a piece of wood when you hang heavy objects between them. Use screws to hold boards to studs and object you'll fasten to it. If edges of the board will show, counter-bore screw holes and fill with water putty after you run screws in. When the putty hardens, sand board smooth and paint it color of the wall. (Lines show studs.)

6. HANG PICTURES and many other light objects on plaster walls with regular picture hooks. They are available in many sizes. Long, thin Brad slips into hook at an angle, increasing the weight it can hold. Drive Brad through "X" of cellophane tape to keep plaster from chipping and cracking.

Glamorize Bathing Girls

By the Shutterbug

LONG BEACH'S lengthy shoreside season makes for huge production of snaps of wives, girl friends and sisters by the sea in bathing suits. Granted the gals aren't professional models or actresses whose faces and figures usually adorn the pin-ups, still there's a lot we amateur photographers can do to attain oomph and appeal in our pictures.

In posing, the female figure is most appealing when composed of graceful curves so avoid action in which the limbs make harsh lines or sharp angles. Beware of body distortion in which a part of the subject looms up disproportionately because it extends closer to the camera.

TO KEEP A SLIM waist, let the elbow or arms cross the body a little above or below but never just at the waistline. When leaning on an arm or leg, let the weight be supported on the limbs furthest from the

Have a separate look at the hands. Fingers should hold an object or curl gracefully and hands look best in a three-quarter plane or edgewise.

Good props are an important factor in good pictures. In color pictures a beach ball, umbrella or robe can add a bright accent, as long as they don't dominate the scene. At a beach there are many natural props like sand, surf, rocks and driftwood.

OUR HOME-GROWN models shouldn't hold a pose too long because tenseness in expression or body action is usually visible. Instead, make all preliminary shooting preparations. Then have the subject go through the action several times leading up to the selected pose... and hold it for a second. Shoot the picture at this peak of action and you're likely to capture spontaneity in both expression and body action.

A common mistake of most snapshooters is the little thought they give to a disturbing background. How can any glamor gal compete with the clutter of most crowded beaches and pools? You might shoot with the lens wide open and critically focussed so as to throw everything else behind her out of focus. It's easier to seek a quiet spot with a simple background. Or make your own simple background by shooting down to get all sand or water; or shoot up to get the sky.

THAT THE FACE UP and turn it away slightly for better facial illumination. For more interesting lighting effects, try sidelighting and backlighting. Since they also add more shadow areas, these types of pictures require extra exposure to compensate. The increase may range from one-half stop to two full stops depending on the degree of backlighting.

LONG BEACH CAMERA Guild will open the new club year with a black and white print competition at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. THREE FILMS will be shown at the Long Beach Cinema Club meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Houghton Park clubhouse. They will be "An Incident at the Beach" by Mitchell Don, "How Much Land Does a Man Need?" by Hans Zimmer, and "Frustration" by Warren Nash. Visitors are welcome.

trict to the other while mothers staged a parade through the streets waving banners which read: "Vote for Our Children."

THE BETTER SCHOOLS Committee, which planned the strategy in behalf of the bond issue, was a "select" group of 10,000 citizens, all of them working through block after block of the district.

The product was easy to sell. Three times between 1945 and 1950, the people went to the polls and voted yes for bond issues totaling $112,000,000. It wasn't enough.

School statisticians watched the enrollments mount and shook their heads in amazement. Without further funds for schools, the district would have to put 15,500 boys and girls on half-day sessions in 1956 — 29,500 in 1958 — 41,500 in 1960.

THE CONCLUSION was inevitable. The district needed still another bond issue — and a big one.

"Will the public stand for it?" asked a worried board member. "The question," replied Newcomb, "is whether the public will stand for the half-day sessions."

In 1951 the school board proposed a $12,500,000 bond issue. Superintendent Newcomb's appeal to the public had the logic of a syllogism:

"WE'RE GOING TO decide on election day whether we'll have rational education — half-day school — in this district.

"Rational education breeds delinquency.

"Delinquency costs money.

"We can educate a high school youngster for about $500 or $100 a year. It costs $3,000 a year to care for him in a penal institution.

"This district is at a crossroads."

TODAY LONG BEACH Unified School District forms a sharp contrast on the educational landscape.

Across the nation school bells daily summon 32,000,000 boys and girls into schools which can decently serve but three-fourths that number. Five hundred thousand children go to school only half the day, and scores have never had desks to call their own. Such is America's school shortage.

Can it be whipped? Long Beach Unified School District — where the shortage is a thing of the past — says Yes.

Here's First All-America Camellia

By Walter Finch

CINDERELLA, a spectacular-ly beautiful new camellia japonica, is the All-America Camellia Selection for 1957, the first camellia ever to be so honored.

The All-America Award is the highest distinction attainable and is given only to the best new camellia. To achieve this top recognition, Cinderella won against the finest new varieties developed in the United States and abroad in extensive three-year competitive trials conducted by All-America Camellia Selections.

Cinderella is noted for its flower formation, which is unique and quite different from that of camellias in commerce generally. Development from the long pointed buds progresses slowly and the flower unfurls in a manner notably distinct from the conventional rose bud opening.

Each rose pink petal, veined with deep crimson and bordered with a marble white edging, is crinkly textured and wrinkled almost like a new baby's skin. Petal edges are notched and lacinated or frimbriated.

THE FLOWER FORM and coloring is remindful of an old-fashioned Valentine with many layers of lace ruffles. The blooms of this new variety usually average about four inches in width and three inches in depth and are produced freely upon a vigorous and stocky plant. The healthy plants bloom well at an early age, producing buds which are well spaced over the plant and are not clustered.

Cinderella possesses greater hardiness than most camellias. The plants suffered little damage during the severe killing freeze which struck the Pacific Northwest during November 1955, when no previous frosts had occurred to induce dormancy and when even the Douglas firs showed severe needle drop. Reporting upon two test plants of Cinderella, the director of the AACS Trial Garden, located at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore., found only one tip burned on both plants and that, although flower buds quite naturally were gone, growth buds were 90 per cent good. Cinderella plants will be made available through leading nurseries.

All-America Camellia Selections, known also as AACS, was established in 1950-51 and incorporated in 1952 as a non-profit organization, by a group of America's leading hybridizers and nurserymen. Patterned after but entirely independent of other All-America testing associations, its primary function is to provide for the scientific pre-testing of new camellia varieties and to encourage only the introduction of those of quality and distinction, garden proved and sure to perform well anywhere camellias may be grown in the United States.

ALL-AMERICA Camellia Selections enables the public to know which are the best new camellias. The ever-increasing popularity of camellias, favorites for generations, is at an all-time peak and has led to the haphazard introduction each year of vast numbers of new seedlings and sports, usually at prohibitive prices. A few of these newcomers are very good but all too many are neither different nor better than existing kinds and, until now, neither the public nor the nurserymen have had any reliable way to determine which are worthy.

Garden Tips

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Vegetables thrive in the Long Beach area during the fall and winter months. About 20 varieties can be seeded now.

Mums will react favorably to regular applications of water during the next few weeks. You can feed the plants up to the time that the buds show color. Then terminate all feeding but continue watering at intervals of perhaps once every 10 days.

You can still expect plenty of warm weather. Perhaps this is the time to repair your garden hose or, if badly worn out, obtain a new one. The plastic, lightweight hoses weigh only a few pounds, making watering an easy task.

We hear a great deal these days about oak root fungus. There are many kinds of fungus in the soil but a very small percentage is the dreaded oak root fungus. This fungus usually originates where oak trees have been taken out and the roots have been left in the ground to decompose.

Best remedy where there is a reliable diagnosis of genuine oak root fungus, is to bare the roots of any trees or plants growing in the area and leave them exposed to the sun and air for three or four weeks. Then spray the roots with a safe, strong fungicide. Replace the soil with either new, clean soil, or old soil that has been thoroughly disinfected. A product combining ether and copper is excellent for this purpose. It is advisable to intermingle the replacement soil with a little agricultural sulphur and iron sulphate.

PET PARADE

An Obedient Dog Is a Good Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

MANY PEOPLE have expressed a wish to discipline train their dogs, yet because of various reasons are not able to attend regular classes. Some of these persons shrink from trying to train their own dogs because they feel that only professional dog trainers know how to work with dogs, or they feel their dogs are too old and settled to be trained.

The truth is, fine as these classes are and invaluable for entering dogs in obedience trials, much of the training can be done at home. In fact, even in a class, the owner is part of the team with the dog. And a dog is seldom too old to learn. Usually obedience lessons are started when the puppy is from 6 to 8 months old, but an older dog, say 2 years old, is right in his prime for training.

THE SYSTEM of dog training is simple and unchanging. Praise the pet lavishly when he does things right. When he gets on the wrong track, some shaming and scolding may be in order, but as a rule ignore his mistakes and keep working with him. The slip-chain collar will guide him shortly into knowing what is expected of him.

Don't consider the slip-chain collar or "chocker collar" as a cruel item. In the words of Carl Spitz, noted trainer and obedience judge, the dog merely finds this collar "inconvenient when he doesn't do his lessons correctly."

DOGS LOVE the attention they get when being trained so long as the lessons are pleasurable. Never make them long.

Winter Sweet Peas

Elsewhere this feat is looked upon as a miracle of the horticultural world. The time to start sowing seed is right now; by planting at intervals of every few weeks, a succession of bloom for weeks at a time is assured.

There is no real secret concerned with growing sweet peas in the middle of winter in this area. A deep soil, plenty of plant food and the right selection of seed are the bare essentials. But the seed is all-important.

ORDINARY OR summer-flowering sweet peas will not prosper during the fall, winter or early spring.

Winter-flowering peas, often identified as early-flowering, have the capacity for blooming when the days are cold and when grey skies, accompanied by a lack of sunshine, are prevalent. The winter-flowering strains have proved exceedingly valuable in the florist trade and many local cut flower growers plant this type exclusively.

SOILS IN WHICH sweet peas are to be planted should be thoroughly prepared in advance. Turn the existing soil over to a depth of about 18 inches. Sweet peas like a deep, well prepared soil.

The seed bed should be kept damp until planting time. Plant the seed about one inch deep and from three to four inches apart. If prize-winning flowers are desired the plants should be thinned out to perhaps seven or eight inches. But for profusion of bloom, which is what is usually desired, a closer spacing will prove advisable. As the seedlings grow, the depression should gradually be filled in until almost even with the surface. Leave just a slight depression to catch the water.

SWEET PEAS PRODUCE a vine-like plant and the stems require a suitable support or trellis. Garden supply stores now stock a trellis (it looks like a fishnet) made especially for training sweet peas.

Sweet peas should be irrigated and not sprinkled. They are fairly heavy drinkers.

Sweet peas have, comparatively speaking, voracious appetites. Liquid fertilizer or a well-balanced commercial food should be applied about once every 14 days when the buds start to appear.

and "grinding" and never turn them into sessions of scolding, shouting, badgering or cursing. Do not cram all his lessons down his throat at once, but if a command is made, the pet should be made to carry it out. Teach one lesson at a time, and interrupt it occasionally with fun and frolic.

Be patient. Some dogs may be brighter than others, but some may be fairly slow in catching on.

AFTER A DOG or puppy is acquainted with his owner and new home, training him to come when called should be his first obedience lesson. In an inviting but firm tone, call the dog by name and say, "Come!" If he ignores the summons, drop to a kneeling position, clap hands and call him. When he comes, praise him highly.

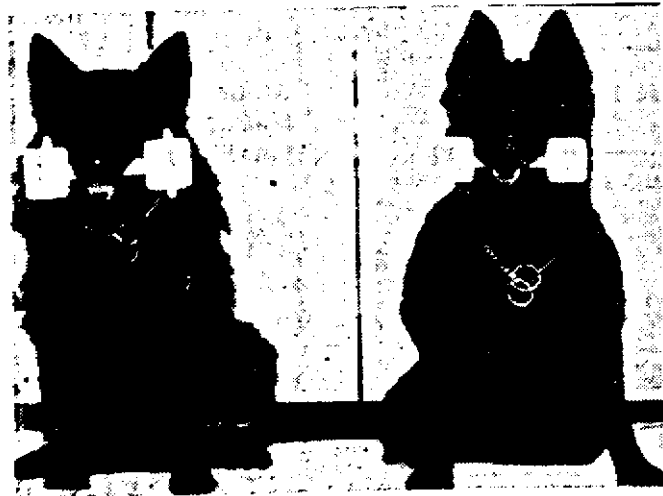

Obtain a longe (a rope about 25 feet long) and attach it to the dog's collar. Let the pet run out to full length, give the rope a sharp tug, and command,

"Come!" Repeat until the dog obeys. Then start walking with him. If he goes south, go north and tug sharply when the line is taut, commanding, "Come!" (A sharp tug does not mean a vicious one.)

A LONGE SERVES several purposes. It helps teach the dog to come upon command. It will get him in a receptive mood to accept a short leash. It will also let him know that he should never stray far from his master. If he spends enough time with the longe lessons, one day he will be ready to go on excursions and will know that he is not to wander far; unless, of course, he has since been trained to retrieve. Even then, the lessons learned on the longe will prompt him to want to come back.

Watch for more dog training lessons which will appear at the conclusion of future Pet Parade articles.

MIRAMAR HOTEL in Santa Monica will be the setting of the Beverly-Riviera Kennel Club dog show and obedience trial Sept. 15-16.

Alert, well-trained dogs are these Schipperkes, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Jones of Encinitas.

ERNEST GLASER
That Coat Is RED!
ALWAYS on the lookout for something new to tantalize his patrons, Ernest Glaser has come up with something entirely different in the sea food department.

The continental menu of Glaser's beautiful Chandelier Restaurant, 4205 Atlantic Ave., now lists a gourmet's delight called Deviled Tiny Chilean Lobster Tails Au Gratin. These remarkable little lobsters, imported from Chile, are unusually delicious. Each patron receives approximately 20 of them (they're about the size of diminutive shrimp). They're served for $2.75 on a dinner which includes onion soup or crisp green salad with choice of dressing; baked potato, continental breads, sweet (unsalted) butter and choice of beverage.
The Caterer to Kings (Glaser acquired the name while serving several monarchs in Europe in the 1930s) has also added a new and most reasonably priced New York cut steak to his menu. Called the Continental, it's a beauty marinated in garlic oil and spices—and then charcoal-broiled. It's $3.50 with the same dinner items listed previously.

ALWAYS POPULAR are Glaser's flaming sword specialties, served in the grand Louis XV manner which causes heads to turn as the waiters march across the dining room holding the brilliant weapons aloft. Among the flaming entrees are royal squab chicken, $3.10, TV Chef Mike Roy's Lambkibab, $3.25, and the Sirloin Steak Chandelier, $3.95. Glaser's flaming desserts are also palate pleasers. His banana flambe (bananas flamed over chocolate ice cream) is marvelous.

The Chandelier has a lively continental atmosphere, created by hostesses in stunning costumes, strolling violinist Sid Bruszer and, last but not least, Glaser himself who often wears a flaming red coat. Featured nightly at the grand piano is amazingly talented Bela Maleciner, Hungarian composer who has scored many motion pictures.

Open every day, the Chandelier features Parisian buffet luncheons daily except Sunday. Sunday dinners are served from 4 p.m. on.

Scotch Broth

- 10 pound fresh brisket of beef
- 3 carrots
- 3 onions
- 3 leeks
- 3 stalks celery
- 1 white turnip
- 1 pound scotch barley
- 2 bunches curly kale
- Chopped parsley, salt, pepper, nutmeg to suit

Place brisket of beef in a large pot, cover well with cold water and bring to a boil slowly. Skim well, add more water and skim again when coming to a second boil. Grind all the enumerated vegetables (except parley and kale) through a coarse plate in meat grinder, and add to the boiling brisket, together with barley and finely chopped kale. Boil slowly 3 hours, skimming frequently. Season with salt and pepper to taste and last with a little ground nutmeg. Remove the beef, cut  $\frac{1}{4}$  of it in small dices and add to soup. Serve with a sprinkling of chopped parsley. It's the scotch barley and the kale which impart that "regional" flavor.

Marie M. Munsell

Buttered Chyote

- salt
- 2 tblsp. butter

Wash and peel chayotes and cut through center lengthwise. Cut out white core. Dice and put in pan with as small amount of water as possible. Cook covered until tender, about 15 or 20 minutes. Roll out the dough and cut into 4" squares, fill with jam and pinch sides together so it doesn't leak out. If you like, use half of the dough and roll out and fill with chocolate, walnut and sugar mixture, roll up like a jellyroll and tie up in a napkin. The dumplings and the jellyroll are then to be dropped gently into a big pan of boiling water and cook for 20 minutes.

Mrs. Elsie Baron,

- 2 cups sugar
- 2 oz. cocoa
- 4 tbs. butter
- 6 tbs. milk
- Vanilla

Combine in iron frying pan the unbeaten eggs, sugar, cocoa, butter and milk. Cook until a rolling boil then take off fire, add vanilla and beat. If too thick add a little more milk. This makes enough to ice two 8-inch layers.

Mary K. Smith,
8581 MacAlpine Rd.,
Garden Grove.

Uncooked Meringue

- 2 egg whites
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tbs. cold water

Place egg whites, sugar and water in top of double boiler over boiling water and beat just one minute. Remove from fire and continue to beat 1 or 2 minutes more, or until will hold peaks. Use on any pie that requires meringue, but don't brown, as it needs no more cooking. Fine to use when making ice cream pies.

Candy

Candied Orange Peel

Peel from 1 orange
 1 cup water
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1 cup sugar
 2 tblsp. white corn syrup.
 Choose oranges that are bright, clean-skinned and free from blemish. Remove peel from oranges in quarters; scrape off excess white portion and membrane. Place rack in pressure cooker; add 1/2 cup water and salt. Place peel on rack. Cook 5 minutes at 15 pounds pressure; cool immediately. Cut the peel in 1/4 inch wide strips. Heat 1/2 cup water, sugar and corn syrup in cooker, stirring occasionally. When syrup is boiling, add peel and simmer, uncovered for 12 minutes. Cool peel in syrup. Reheat syrup just to loosen peel; drain strips on cake rack; roll in granulated sugar; spread out to dry.

For variety add a little cinnamon, cloves, or ginger to the candying syrup to give the peel some spiciness.

If you wish, you may coat the candied orange peel with chocolate. Remove the strips of peel from the candying syrup; drain, then spread out on wax paper. Do not roll them in sugar. Let peel stand in a warm room until dry, 24 hours or more. Melt dipping chocolate over warm water. Pour out some chocolate into a plate, stir with your fingers until the edges start to harden. Coat the peel, one strip at a time, and place on wax paper to harden. Mix in more warm chocolate as needed.

Combine the candied peel with dried fruit for a double-fruit flavored confection. Pit large dates; stuff with piece of candied orange peel; dip in slightly beaten egg white, then roll in colored sugar. Or dip the stuffed dates in sherry; drain, and coat with a dipping chocolate.

Grind through a food chopper three times, or until well mixed, 2 1/2 cups dried figs, 1 cup walnut meats, 1/2 cup raisins, and 1/4 cup candied orange peel. Add just enough honey to moisten the mixture. Shape into balls and roll each one in powdered sugar. Store in refrigerator.

Mrs. J. G. Cowles,
 729 Pacific Ave.

Gayle's Fudge

1 tblsp. corn syrup
 1/2 cup milk
 2 tblsp. butter
 2 cups sugar
 1/2 cup cream
 1 tblsp. cocoa
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1 tsp. vanilla

Put sugar, cream, and salt into a sauce pan, add a little of the cream enough to make a paste. Now add the remainder of the cream. Add milk, syrup and butter, place mixture over flame. Stir the mixture with spoon until it starts to boil. Once it is boiling, reduce the heat. Cook slowly for about 40 minutes. While the fudge is cooking, butter a shallow pan. Test the fudge by dropping a tiny bit of it from a spoon into a dish of very cold water. When the fudge forms a soft ball, slightly firm outside, the fudge is done. Remove from the fire, add vanilla and mix. When the fudge is cool, stir it until it is creamy. Just before the fudge gets creamy, you will notice a change in color from dark to light. At this point, pour the fudge into the buttered pan. When it is almost cold, cut into one-inch squares.

Miss Gayle Snider,

Pralines

1 cup sugar
 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 1/2 tsp. baking soda
 1 cup buttermilk
 1/4 tsp. salt
 2 tblsp. butter
 1 1/2 cups pecan halves

Boil over moderate heat to 230 degrees or until syrup spins a 2-inch thread when dropped from a spoon. Remove, add butter, nuts and vanilla. Heat candy until it starts to become thick, slightly stringy and sugary. Place over low heat to keep candy soft while dropping on a greased cookie sheet. Drop by table-spoons onto sheet forming patties about 3 inches in diameter. Makes 13 pralines.

Miss Gayle Snider,

Peanut Brittle

2 cups sugar
 1 cup corn syrup
 1/2 cup water
 2 cups raw peanuts

A thought on Labor Day...

It's your capitalism

by MASSIMO SALVADORI Professor of History, Smith and Bennington Colleges

EDITOR'S NOTE: Of all the year's holidays, Labor Day offers the strongest reasons for Americans to take stock of the economic system called capitalism — the American system. Here, in excerpts from a speech delivered in Washington and highly praised by President Eisenhower, a noted author and teacher notes five misconceptions about our system — five ideas common in many parts of the world, and not unknown here — and answers them with facts.

Misconception: It isn't the capitalistic system which is responsible for the prosperity of the American people, but the vast natural resources of the United States.

Facts: Natural resources, in relation to population, are no more abundant in the U.S. than in the Soviet Union, or in Western Europe and its dependencies. Prosperity is, above all, the result of the way efforts to use resources are organized. The people who came to America were willing to take risks, endure hardships, work hard. They displayed ingenuity and cooperation; they lived under laws which guarantee personal liberty and the peaceful enjoyment of the fruits of one's labor.

Misconception: The American economic system is inefficient.

Facts: In order to achieve a rate of economic expansion identical or superior to that of other countries, Americans invest much less than is needed in the other economies. Capital is more efficiently managed in the U.S. than in the Soviet Union or some of the major industrial countries of Western Europe. Low production costs are coupled with high wages.

Misconception: The system in the United States is unstable and the individual insecure.

Facts: Unless there is a major change in governmental policies or a sudden wave of irresponsibility on the part of business or labor, there should not be another depression. Minor ups and downs yes, but nothing more.

There is no social security system on the other side of the Iron Curtain as generous as the American one. When unemployment occurs, insurance takes care of it. When a whole group is economically ill, it gets help. There is competition in the American system; there is also solidarity.

Misconception: Because of the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few families, the U.S. is a plutocracy and a monopolistic capitalistic system.

Facts: Large fortunes are fewer and smaller (in relation to national income) than they were 50 years ago. A process of equalization is taking place. Differences between main socio-economic groups are now less in the U.S. than in any other country in the world.

Misconception: The American economy is unplanned.

Facts: There is more planning going on in the U.S. than in any other country. Financial and economic planning is one of the main preoccupations of Government. Planning is one of the main functions of most corporations. Individuals plan their economic activities. The American economy is planned, but differently. It is not collectivistic planning, but planning for freedom.

The United States should call its system democratic capitalism or perhaps people's capitalism.

Your LAST CHANCE to win a prize

If you haven't yet sent in your entry in PARADE's political slogan contest, here's good news: there's extra time. To accommodate readers of this newspaper who do not have the benefit of Sunday or Labor Day mail pickups, the contest deadline has been extended a full 48 hours — to midnight, Tuesday, September 4.

The purpose of the contest is to help remind every qualified voter to go to the polls November 6 — and vote. Your part is to think up a catchy, hard-hitting, non-partisan slogan or saying — something you think will have popular appeal and make people want to vote. Your slogan can be long or short, light or serious, but it must be original. (See rules below.)

If your slogan wins, it will be used in get-out-the-vote drives during the election campaign by both the Republican and Democratic parties and by the non-partisan American Heritage Foundation. PARADE's contest also is supported by the League of Women Voters.

And here's the big prize: a free week in Washington at PARADE's expense, for the winner and a guest of his choice, to attend the Presidential Inauguration on January 21 and the festivities that go with it — Inaugural Ball, parade, etc. The prize also includes amusements, side trips, capital tours and a week's stay at the famous Mayflower Hotel. In addition, 55 more winners will receive personal citation scrolls from the American Heritage Foundation for their contributions to an important democratic cause.

Get busy now. Mail entries to Slogan Contest Editor, PARADE, Box 1640, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y. And be sure to mention this newspaper.

CONTEST RULES

1. All entries must be legible, postmarked not later than midnight, Sept. 4, 1956. In the event of duplicate entries, the entry with the earlier postmark shall take precedence.
2. All entries become the property of PARADE and may be used for its editorial and promotional purposes, whether winners or not. No entry can be returned.
3. The decision of the judges shall be final.
4. This contest is not open to employees of PARADE and their families, or to employees of distributing newspapers and their families.
5. This contest is valid only in the continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii, except in any state or locality prohibiting licensing, taxing or regulating such contests.
6. This contest is subject to cancellation at any time by PARADE.
7. All entries must be accompanied by the contestant's name, address and the name of this newspaper, and must be mailed to Slogan Contest Editor, PARADE, Box 1640, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y.

happy vacations begin in a Chevy

You'll love to travel in it, because it loves to travel! When you get this Chevrolet out on the road, you'll want to keep going—and so will the whole family.

Of course, even in a Chevrolet the happiest vacations may involve one or two minor problems. Like fidgety small fry who want gallons of water and keep asking if you're almost there. The big things, though, are beautifully taken care of by this roomy Chevrolet's smooth and easy way of going.

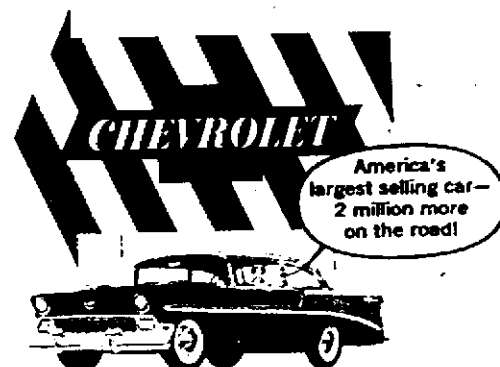

The fact is, few cars at any price hold the road with a Chevy's grace. That idea about the best riding cars being great, oversized affairs went out with the introduction of Chevrolet's outrigger rear springing and low, precisely balanced chassis design. With horsepower up to 225, this Chevrolet moves out like a whiplash, for safer passing. And with it you've always got that solid feeling of stability. Chevrolet's famous for its roadability and sureness of control. It set a new record up Pikes Peak just so there wouldn't be any doubt about it!

Stop by and see how easy we're making it to own a new Chevy!

What's happening to YOUR NATIONAL PARKS?

They're squeezed between demands for 'more to do' and 'get back to nature'

by ED KIESTER

Tomorrow marks the unofficial end of the vacation season. If you spent your two weeks in one of America's national parks (and one in three Americans did), you can probably sum up what you saw in a single word:

People.

Millions of people — jammed shoulder to shoulder at the overlooks along the Grand Canyon; flocking pell-mell through the backwash of primitive Cades Cove in the Great Smokies; even, as one observer noted; lining up 15-deep to use the restrooms.

In 1955, the parks were thronged with 50 million people. This year, the total will be close to 54 million — and these in a park system staffed and equipped to handle only the 20 million who came annually before World War II.

This year, the National Park Service received Congressional approval of "Mission 66," a 10-year program to patch up "human erosion" in the parks, increase their staffs, develop their facilities and prepare for a herd of 80 million by 1966. But at the present rate, the 80 million will appear five years ahead of time — in 1961. And the parks, instead of catching up, will just hold their own.

The pressure on overtaxed facilities will remain tremendous: more queues, more need for reservations, more traffic jams. But most important, more crowds mean more pressure for more pastimes — "just something" to keep the 80 million at play and out from under one another's feet. More man-made entertainment will be demanded. The parks will be under fire to change — in ways that may affect your summer vacationing for the rest of your life.

Already, the Park Service is being urged to provide "more to do." Skiers want lifts on park mountain-sides. Sports-car fans think scenic park roads would make superb race courses. Local groups in bordering towns think the parks should ape the more fast-paced resorts.

But the Park Service is under pressure from another quarter. To the Service, this group is known as the "longhairs"; those who demand "more to do" are "shorthairs." Made up of many of the parks' best friends, the "longhairs" think things have been cheapened too much already. The parks, they point out, were set aside to preserve nature's scenic wonders for coming generations; nothing not in keeping with the enjoyment of pure nature should be permitted. That includes cocktail lounges, souvenir stands, ski lifts and golf courses. Say the longhairs: Let those who like resort life go to resort areas.

And in the middle of the muddle is the National Park Service. (To some extent, city and state parks face the same problem, and so do privately operated shrines. At one such shrine recently, two members of the board of directors resigned angrily, charging the place was being turned into a "honky-tonk.")

Some of the brainstormers for injecting a pinch of Coney Island into your parks are so ridiculous that Director Conrad Wirth of the National Park Service and his staff simply laugh them off. Not long ago, an amusement operator had a bright idea: a ferris wheel on the rim of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone in Wyoming. "Think how well people could see the view from the top," he enthused.

FREE STAGE SHOW draws hundreds of vacationers to Camp Curry in Yosemite Park. A summer perennial, nightly show long has been target of criticism.

Even less thought went into a plan for an elevator to shuttle tourists to the floor of Arizona's Grand Canyon. Park officials observed that the lift would be a mile high — and even then passengers would have a mile hike to the canyon-cutting Colorado River.

There also was the proposal for a stand to peddle buffaloburgers in Glacier National Park, Mont.

Where Should Vacationers Pray?

The Park Service has given in on some projects that longhairs consider damaging. Many parks have cocktail lounges; Yosemite, as PARADE's pictures show, also boasts a dance pavilion, outdoor shows, a golf course, two pools, a supermarket. This year, a T-bar ski lift — a permanent installation requiring steel towers — was installed in Rocky Mountain National Park, Colo. A wide swath through the park's Hidden Valley made way for the lift line; another clearing was hacked out for a shelter and parking lot.

At Mount Rainier, Wash., the Park Service authorized another mile-long T-bar lift. A group hoping to rival Sun Valley as a resort had been pushing for an aerial tramway, to handle skiers in winter and sightseers in summer. Conservationists, led by the National Parks Association, a private group, complained that even the T-bar scarred the peak. Their position was spelled out: "We disapprove any mechanical ski development in the national park system."

More storm clouds have been gathering around — of all things — a church. A million dollars is being raised for a "Shrine of the Ages," to perch on the south rim of the Grand Canyon overlooking one of its most scenic sweeps. The Park Service has given the project its blessing. Indeed, some of the prime movers are park employees and rangers, who now have no place of worship.

No one likes to oppose a church, but the National Parks Association has done it. The Association agrees a church is needed, both for employees and visitors. But why, it asks, can't the church be built away from the rim or even outside the park? Any building — even a church — on the rim is a distraction, the Association believes. "Does anyone seriously believe that God is to be found only in man-made structures?" a recent broadside asks. "Does anyone believe this mighty Temple of the Lord needs artificial adornment?"

Says embattled Director Wirth: "I am convinced that is a proper use of a national park. Some say it is not necessary to have a church to worship at the canyon. I for one am not going to prescribe how a person will worship his God."

As for Rainier, Wirth says: "We are not going to outdo Sun Valley. It has its place, and Rainier has its place. They are not the same." He still hears from

"shorthairs" on the subject, and not all of them are simply out to draw a tourist dollar. Recently, the Auto Club of Washington declared: "We fervently believe the area's beauty and grandeur should not be restricted to mountaineers, hikers and naturalist societies . . . We intend to make it easier for more people . . . to see as much of the park as they desire."

So long as the parks belong to the people, Wirth realizes, no one can be shut out. And so long as people come — and the signs are they will come in greater numbers — there will be some who prefer vodka to vistas, golf to geysers, skiing to skylines. Must the park system cater to their preferences?

Yes, say the shorthairs. No, say the longhairs. Says the Park Service: a qualified no. A smattering may be all right, but such amusements will never become the prime aim of the park system. There are other resorts for vodka-drinkers, golfers and skiers.

Currently, park planners are at work on a nation-wide master plan for national, state and local parks, to coordinate all three and beef up the types in short supply. Already the coastlines have been surveyed with an eye toward more beach recreation areas.

Wirth and his staff hope that such planning can siphon off some of the overflow, diverting it to more suitable resorts. The nation-wide study will be done in 1961; that same year, the parks will groan under the impact of 80 million visitors. By then it may be too late to save your parks — America's greatest recreational resource — from an uncertain future. ■

Are these tomorrow's stars?

by ECKERT GOODMAN

NEW YORK. One of the most notable sources of fresh theatrical talent during the past 23 years has been New Faces, a breezy little revue that periodically hits town with the impact of a tornado. This year's edition—concocted, like all its predecessors, by impresario Leonard Sillman—is no exception. Of its 19-member cast, all were comparative "unknowns"; today they're in a Broadway hit of their own making and started on potential careers. Based on the New Faces batting average since 1934, the year these revues got started, one or more of the 1956 crop will attain top stardom. At least one may be in the picture on the opposite page, though which one is anybody's guess.

New Faces has been produced only six times, but boasts such top-bracket alumni as Henry Fonda, James Stewart, John Lund, Sonny Tufts, stripper Gypsy Rose Lee, singer Eartha Kitt. Eve

Arden was launched as a comedienne in a Sillman cast, and one of the hits of New Faces of '36 was a hooper named Van Johnson, who later went into the movies.

How does Sillman recruit his talent? It's a patient, painstaking search, but the 48-year-old showman and ex-vaudeville dancer leaves no stone unturned. He was four years putting together his present cast in a search that took him all over the world. He auditioned more than 4,000 hopefuls, weeded them out till he had three New Faces companies totaling 60 performers. Further elimination (which he terms "agonizing") finally resulted in the present cast. All New Faces performers are "stars" of the show and get alphabetic billing. Though each one has a specialty, they all are called upon to sing, dance, clown and even play scenes to show their versatility.

As a standard practice, Sillman signs his cast to a run-of-the-play contract, so his "discoveries" can't accept better offers and thus close the show. On the other hand, many take TV, night-club, movie offers and others that don't interfere with the regular performance. This rule, both Sillman and his stars agree, hasn't yet prevented anyone from reaching the top.

What's the secret of Sillman's success? "I guess I'm able to pick young talent more readily than others because I've never really grown up all the way myself," he says. Although New Faces is usually a hit, the show rarely makes much money for Sillman, who spends lavishly on production costs. This year, he and his backers put nearly a quarter-million dollars into the revue before it even opened on Broadway.

The handsome costumes and scenery, of course, do help Sillman's hopefuls to appear at their best. From there on, it's up to them.

fit both. So when the school bells ring

Doctors' New 2-Way Treatment Counteracts Allergy, Without Injections

Use of Super Anahist Nasal Spray together with Anahist Tablets recommended in long-suffering victims.

Anahist Laboratories, N. Y. By combining two forms of hay-fever therapy, doctors have achieved amazing results. They report that the allergic reaction of hay fever has been neutralized by using Super Anahist Nasal Spray in conjunction with Anahist Tablets.

The reason for the wonderful recovery is logical. Super Anahist Nasal Spray directly treats the affected membranes of nose and throat. Swollen tissue shrinks rapidly, breathing becomes easier, discharge is stopped down to a minimum.

Anahist Tablets work internally to spread the antidote throughout your system. This gives your body new resistance to allergic attack. Violent sneezing spasms, tortured breathing, ugly nasal discharge are relieved.

Hay-fever victims who have suffered for years can now achieve wonderful results, without injections. They can avoid the worst choking, suffocating spasms of hay-fever attack. They can escape heavy discharge and explosive sneezing. They can work or play through the hay-fever season, without looking red, swollen and ugly.

THE OLYMPICS

Why?

They're not 'athletes,' say officials.

PINWHEEL maneuver shown here requires athletic skill as well as perfect timing. Most synchro-swimming champions come from Oakland's Athens Club.

SYNCHRONIZED SWIMMERS complete a maneuver. Long seen in Esther Williams movies, synchro swimming is now rated a sport by AAU.

Here's a hard-hitting reply

by MRS. NORMA OLSEN
as told to JIM SCOTT

OAKLAND, CALIF.

Should synchronized swimmers, like the graceful, pretty ones shown on these pages, be kept out of the Olympics?

I say no.

But Avery Brundage says yes. And as head of the International Olympic Committee, he's the boss. Mr. Brundage has ruled that synchronized swimming—the performing of ballet-like maneuvers while on the surface or under water—should not be allowed in the Games.

Why?

Well, here are the reasons he has given me—and what I think of them:

1) Synchronized swimming isn't actually a sport, says Brundage; he calls it "nautical vaudeville."

Vaudeville! There's nothing brassy or funny about synchronized swimming. It's a rough, tough sport. My daughter, Zoe Ann (wife of Boston Red Sox star Jackie Jensen) finished second as a diver in the '48 Olympics and third in the '52 Games—yet hasn't been able to win much of anything in synchronized swimming.

Synchro is more of a sport than track or swimming races, for in those events only speed is required. But in synchronized swimming, grace, rhythm and coordination are all needed to glide through the maneuvers—especially when you have to keep time to music.

Synchro is thus a kissing cousin of figure skating, which is on the Olympic program as a sport. And isn't synchro more of a sport than the equestrian events? There the horses do most of the work.

2) The Olympics already have too many sports, says Brundage. He points out they've eliminated events like archery, golf, polo, tennis and tug-of-war.

But some of those sports, like tug-of-war, were too obscure ever to have been put in the Games to begin with. Tennis and golf were dropped because they already had international competitions of their own.

Mr. Brundage can't tell me the door is closed to new events. After all, in 1952 he added six new events to the gymnastic division (the Soviets won three of these). All six events combined wouldn't draw half the crowd synchro swimming would.

3) Synchro swimming, Brundage says,

THE AUTHOR, a famed West Coast swimming coach, is chairman of the U.S. Synchronized Swimming Committee, an official Amateur Athletic Union group that governs the event for international competition.

is too new an event for the Olympics.

That's ridiculous! Synchro swimming was recognized by the Amateur Athletic Union way back in 1946. And it was started in Avery's own city, Chicago, 21 years ago.

The sport, in fact, was included in the Pan-American Games in Mexico City last year. Afterwards, Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, president of the U.S. Olympic Association, admitted that it's as much a sport as any other aquatic event. And 35 nations have notified me that they want synchro swimming in the Olympics.

But though Mr. Brundage has managed to keep us out of the Olympics so far, we'll be on the scene when the '56 Games open in Melbourne on November 22. Starting late this month, a team of synchro swimmers, mostly girls from the Athens Athletic Club here, will leave with me on a tour of Scandinavia, Germany, India, Egypt—and then Australia.

We won't be swimming in Melbourne's Olympic pool, of course, but in one not too far away. And when we do, I'm going to make sure that the Olympic bosses of all the competing nations are on hand to watch us. The result, I'm confident, will be an invitation to synchro swimmers the world over to compete in the 1960 Olympics—despite Avery Brundage! ■

JOHANN STRAUSS

WALTZES, MARCHES and POLKAS

Whether it was one of the happiest periods in history, or whether it was they who made it so, no one can say, but it can never be denied that the "years of the Strausses" are among the most enjoyable ever recorded. While waltzes, polkas and marches were the "pop" music of that day, Strauss' compositions had won the serious consideration of critics and composers alike.

While the name of Strauss is almost synonymous with the waltz, no album such as this would be complete without including some of the delightful marches and polkas which brought Johann and Josef such fame. This album opens with the memorable Persian March and, in striking contrast, turns to the ever-beloved Tales of the Vienna Woods. Seven other numbers make up this delightful album.

Schools Keep Pace With the Cradle

Sunday, September 2, 1956

By Harry Karns

IN THIS ERA of classroom and teacher shortages, outsiders are apt to look on Long Beach Unified School District as a miracle defying all logic.

This district sprawls across 128 square miles of Los Angeles County in the heart of the swiftest-growing part of the United States. Here, long since, the sound of little feet has ceased to be a patter and turned into a rumble.

Considering this growth and the fact that Long Beach lost all its schools in an earthquake during the big depression, the district ought to be the country's worst nightmare of jam-packed classrooms, undermanned teaching staffs, and rationed schooling.

Instead, as it prepares for the opening of the new term Sept. 11, it is a district where the educator's dream has come true—a system where every boy and girl has a desk, and every room a qualified teacher.

It has whipped the school shortage. It is the first district in any growing area to do so.

NO ONE INDIVIDUAL can take the credit for all this. But one who deserves a good share of it as guiding spirit is a 58-year-old former math teacher who has infinite patience and an unerring sense of diplomacy. Superintendent Douglas A. (Doug) Newcomb has led the school district through a tumultuous decade with the realistic optimism of a mathematician who knows if you add two and two you are bound to get four.

After serving as a vice principal, principal, director of elementary schools, and assistant superintendent, he stepped in as Acting Superintendent in 1944 and became Superintendent in 1947.

Few new superintendents have ever found greater problems awaiting them. Past, present, and future provided them abundantly.

For instance, there had been the earthquake. It had happened March 10, 1933, at the depth of the great depression. In a ruinous 10 seconds the district's 38 school buildings—the work and dreams of 40 years—were demolished.

The district was far from recovered six years later when it was struck another blow—this time by a human avalanche of wartime migrants who began to fill Los Angeles County to the ocean's edge and packed school rooms to the windowsills. Families who didn't have children were getting ready to have them. Long Beach District is still one of the most pregnant in the land. The school-age population of this area has increased 37,000—or a whopping 109 per cent—during the past decade.

THOUGH THEY SAW district after district falling woefully behind and the classroom shortage developing into a national crisis, Newcomb and school board members believed it possible for Long Beach District to solve the problem—and with its own resources.

Aside from classroom shortages, the big problem was to maintain an academic program of sufficient quality to justify public support. That meant getting and keeping good teachers. Yet, American schools faced (and they still do) a teacher shortage as critical as the classroom shortage.

The question came up at a board meeting. Newcomb stood and said simply: "We don't need more teachers." Board members stared at him. He added with a smile: "We need more good teachers."

It would be a mistake, he stated, to lower teacher requirements for the dubious advantage of quantity. He felt that the right kind of recruitment program could attract both quantity and quality. What teacher recruitment needed was the human touch.

So a slogan was born: "You can Really Live and Teach in Long Beach."

Recruiters set out to remind potential teachers that Long Beach had not only schools, but also sunshine waiting to be soaked up, and a whole ocean to play in during spare time. Long Beach Unified School District thus made a discovery that many another district overlooks: teachers do like to live as well as teach.

Long Beach District began to get the teachers it needed.

NEWCOMB'S CAPACITY for listening is enormous. When townspeople come to his office to make suggestions or voice criticism, he hears them out with an inner feeling of joy.

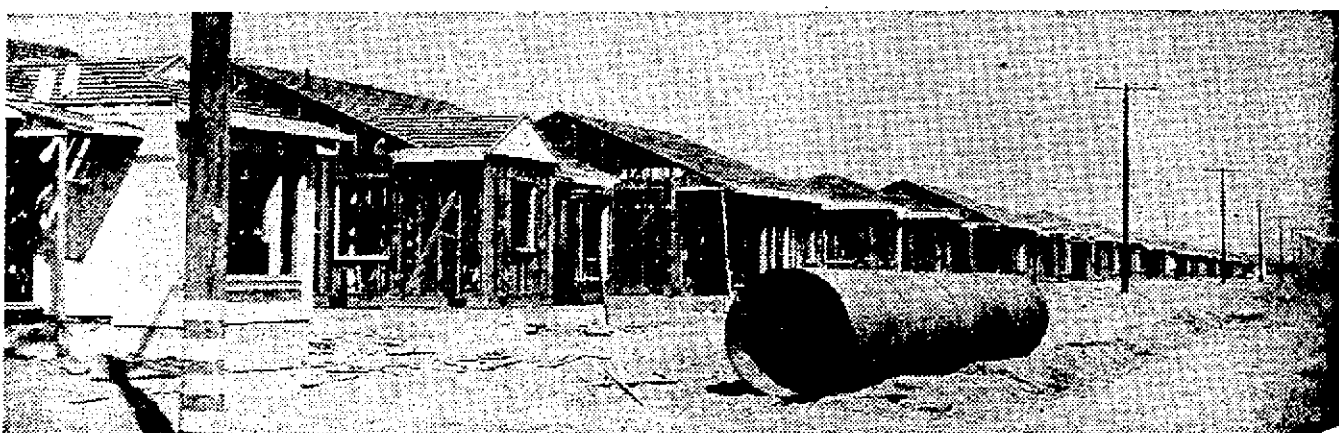

"After all," he explains, "they're interested! When they're not interested, that's the time to start worrying."

This attitude is the key to the whole story of Long Beach District's achievement. The people take part.

On the eve of a typical school bond election, dinners were delayed in homes from one end of the dis-

Tens of thousands of Long Beach youths return to school Sept. 11. Two of them with Supt. Douglas Newcomb are Mark Swain, Barbara Waterman.

Housing developments, like this street of homes being born in Lakewood, are one factor boosting enrollment in Long Beach Unified School District.

IF YOU WERE to ask any sport-minded person in this area what the most popular national sport is, the reply probably would be:

"Why, baseball, of course."

But any bowler who knows his statistics can give him a stiff argument.

More than 50,000 men, women and children in the Long Beach, Lakewood and Orange County areas bowl weekly—far more than play baseball. And with winter bowling leagues opening this month, alleys will be crowded to capacity.

Nationally, the 20,000,000 adherents of bowling spend about $350,000,000 a year on their sport.

This is 10 times more than the total major leagues' gate receipts last year. And if hometown teams are your criterion, it's four or five times the amount expended for baseball equipment by the sandlotters.

DESPITE ALL THE FUN of bowling, none of it would have come about if it hadn't been for a canny Puritan who, 300 years ago, outfoxed a "blue law" code.

It seems the Puritan Fathers thought the game of "nine pins," brought to America by Dutch settlers, was too popular with the men and kept them away from chores. Strong laws were passed to outlaw the sport.

A sports-minded Puritan wisely noted that the law said "nine pins." He added a 10th pin. It not only circumvented the law but improved the game.

Bowling is a rapidly growing sport. Today there are 7,500 bowling establishments in the nation—twice the number of 10 years ago.

A few years ago there were only two or three bowling emporiums in the Long Beach area. And they were located in antiquated buildings on side streets and, actually, down alleys.

TODAY THERE ARE NEARLY 50 bowling alleys and many of them are plush establishments which would do credit to a Hollywood movie set depicting the sport.

Cushioned seats have replaced the hard benches of yesteryear and indirect fluorescent lighting takes the place of the green-shaded incandescents of old-style alleys.

Swank restaurants have replaced the ice box filled with soft drinks. Soft music from hi-fi systems blends with the plank-plank sound of balls hitting pins.

Alleys in this area have followed the national trend to luxury. The $1,000,000 Lakewood Bowl, definitely on the "plush" side, has billiards and coffee shop and dining room in addition to its 30 lanes.

The proposed $2,000,000 bowling establishment to be built in Los Altos will hit a new high in luxury with a de luxe supper club providing top rate entertainment, a banquet room seating 500 persons and specialty shops in addition to its 32 lanes.

REQUIRING SKILL and offering the fun of competition, bowling attracts virtually every age group because it does not call for excessive physical exertion.

Participants ordinarily range from 8 to 80—though some are above and below these figures.

In addition to recreation for individual groups, bowling is popular for leagues sponsored by companies.

The Long Beach Bowling Assn. lists 102 winter leagues for men; in addition, there are additional scores of summer leagues.

Approximately 5,600 men are registered in local leagues.

Women also find fun in this recreational sport. The Women's International Bowling Congress, established in 1917 with 40 members, now has more than 706,000.

The Long Beach Division Women's Bowling Assn. lists 74 winter and 52 summer leagues, with about 2,063 women bowlers registered in this area.

ALL OF THIS BRINGS about the question of why bowling has become so vital a part of modern recreation.

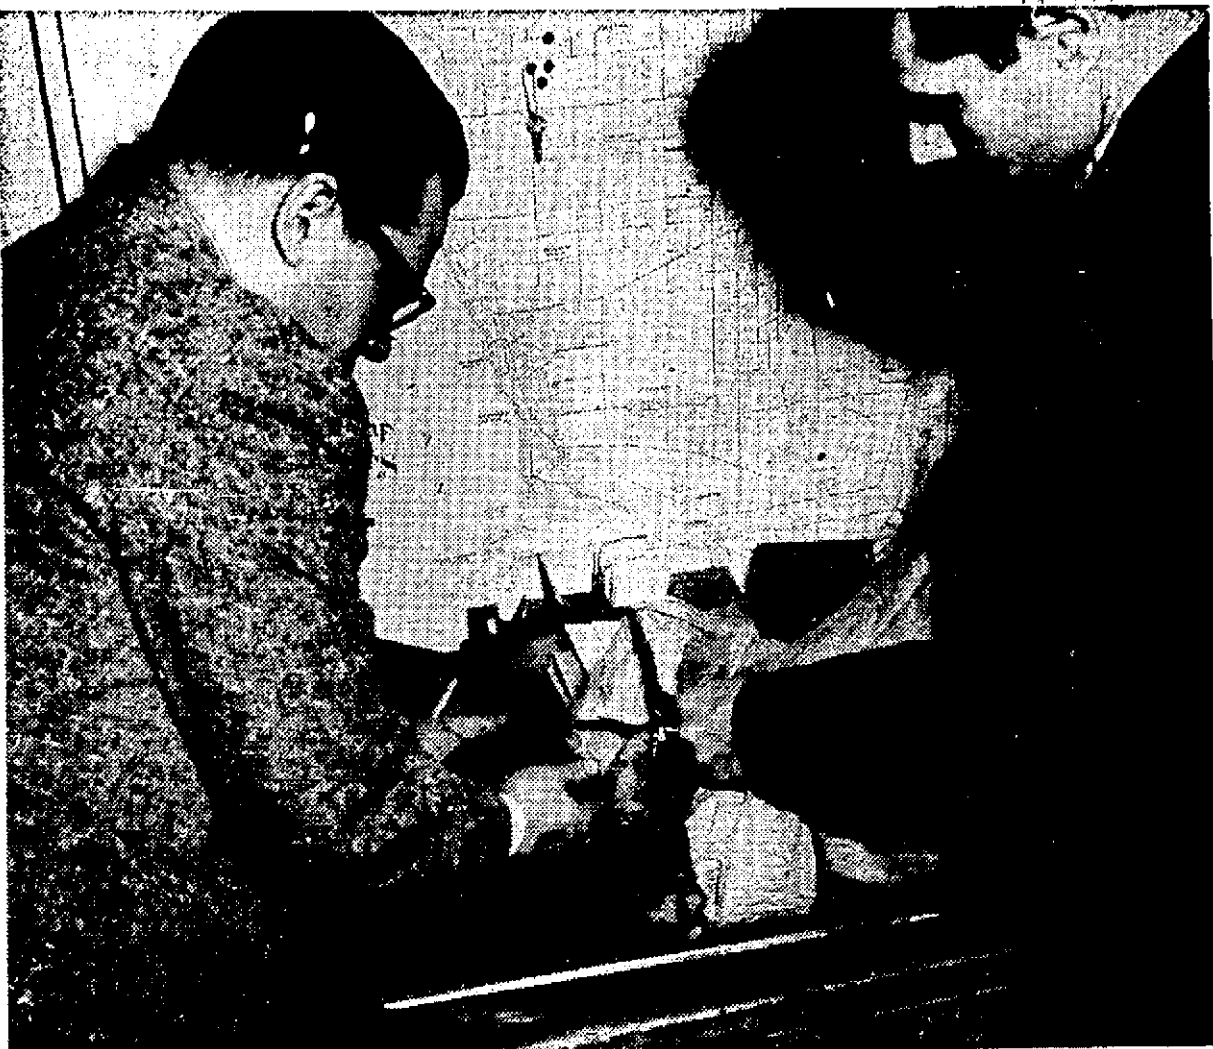

The experts come up with a multi-part answer.

Bowling is popular because of automation (such as automatic pin setters), the challenge to the individual to "better" his score, development of good sportsmanship and team play, healthy exercise, and the fact that bowling can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

The Puritans had an idea three centuries ago—and it still adds up to fun for 20th Century Americans!

OUR COVER

Scores of winter bowling leagues in the Long Beach area open their schedules early this month, and the bowlers—men and women alike—are rolling a few practice games to regain form that sometimes gets a little rusty after the summer layoff. That's exactly what Jean Cross was doing when staff photographer John H. Neagle snapped her picture at Virginia Bowl for Southland's cover today. Jean bowls in a women's Tuesday evening winter league at Virginia.

Capitalizing on the coffee break, Al (l) and Jerry Lapin brew a special blend of coffee, examined here, and supply it to Los Angeles area firms.

They're Cashing In on the Coffee Break

By Jack B. Kemmerer

TWO YOUNG MEN with a remedy for management's coffee nerves are busy building a thriving business supplying the beverage to offices and factories in the Los Angeles area.

The "coffee break" often involving important losses in time and high serving costs, has become an administrative headache in many concerns.

Al Lapin, one-time civil defense official turned caterer, and his brother, Jerry, think they have the problem pretty well solved, and at a profit for everyone concerned.

The Lapins' customers get their coffee in stainless-steel, vacuum-insulated thermos jugs of three-, five- or ten-gallon capacity. A freshly filled can is delivered each morning, and an electrically heated rod is inserted to keep the coffee at a constant 170 degrees and preserve its flavor. Coffee addicts help themselves at any time during the day, and by taking the coffee to their desks, no time is lost from the job.

Next morning the empty can is removed and another filled one put in its place. The unique service includes the coffee, paper cups, wooden spoons, cream and sugar.

The coffee is brewed in three 100-gallon urns in what Al Lapin claims is the most modern coffee-brewing setup anywhere.

The brewing plant can turn out 270 gallons of freshly brewed coffee in just 50 minutes. Currently, the Lapins are turning out more than 25,000 cups of coffee per day.

The operation starts at 1 a.m. each work day, with 26 pounds of ground coffee for each 100 gallons of dechlorinated water yielding 92 gallons of coffee. The cans are filled and delivered to the customer between 4 and 9 a.m.

With the coffee break time assuming such importance—even the labor unions are writing it into their new contracts as a fringe benefit—Al and Jerry Lapin believe they have a business that is just getting started and expect to pass the 2,000 gallon per day mark soon.

Al and Jerry always sample the coffee to be sure of quality before delivery.

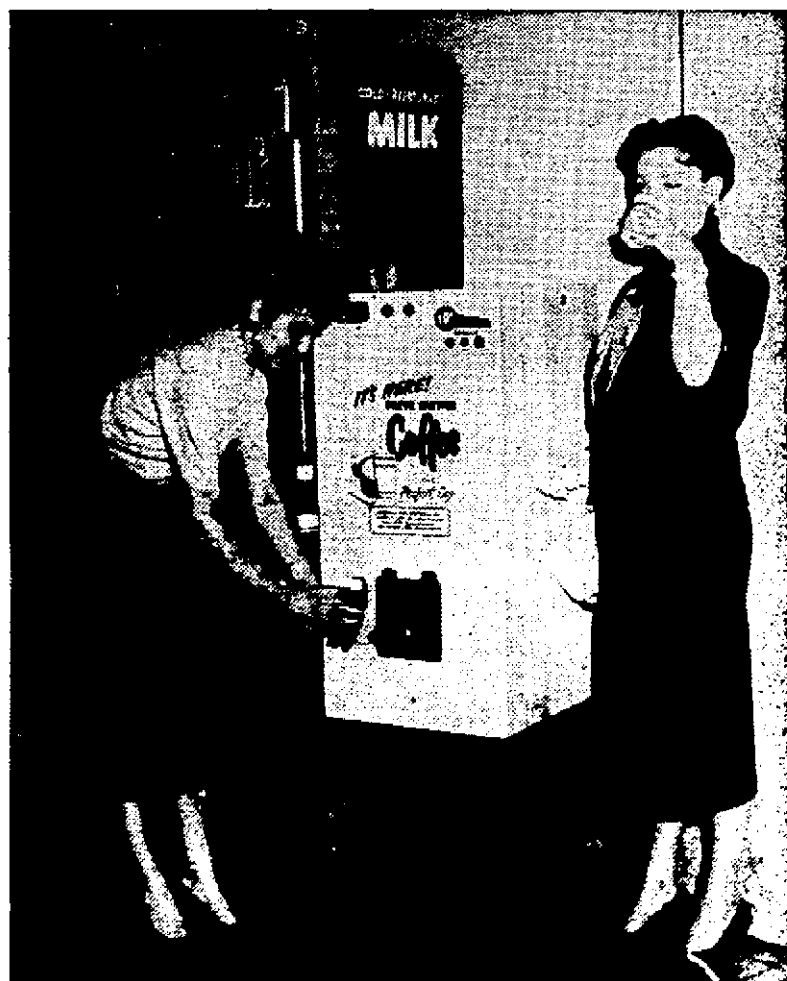

Just before each container is filled, it is sterilized in a bath of steam.

Photos by the Author

A five-gallon container is filled with steaming brew, transported to dispenser, kept hot with electric rod.

Cord Is Still Meeting Challenges

ERRETT L. CORD, the man who built today's automobiles 25 years ago, has added another activity to a bold career which brought him both fun and fortune.

The mild-mannered financier, whose depression-day Auburns, Cords and Duesenbergs still command respect — and top prices—from automobile lovers the world over, has become a Nevada state senator.

His constituency in the state's south central Esmeralda County has fewer people than jack-rabbits. The county's biggest town, Goldfield, only has about 150 registered voters and the entire county has fewer than 400.

AS SHY as any freshman senator, Cord had little to say during a recent special session of the Legislature. But he quickly won the respect of his colleagues for sharp thinking especially on money matters.

He should have, for Cord has handled more money in his 62 years than many banks have seen.

Before he was 21, he made—and lost—three $50,000 fortunes, winding up with only $20 to his name by the end of World War I.

Today he is one of the nation's wealthiest men after building everything from steamships to kiddie cars, including the automobiles that made his name famous.

YOUNGISH in both appearance and attitude, Cord has to have fun in his work. And to Cord, fun comes in terms of challenge.

"Once you conquer the challenge," he says, "it's no longer fun. You want to tackle something else. All you can do by staying where you are is make more money. And that isn't fun."

The son of Missouri parents

"who had just enough to spoil me" as he grew up in Los Angeles, Cord was led into the auto manufacturing business by his desire for challenge.

He had a highly successful auto agency in Chicago, when, in 1924, the struggling Auburn Motor Co. of Auburn, Ind., offered him $36,000 a year to run its factory.

The firm had used nothing but red ink for years, but Cord jumped at the job, turning down any salary.

All he asked was 20 per cent of the profit, if he could show one, and an option to buy all the common stock.

A YEAR LATER Cord owned the Auburn Motor Co.

Gathering men around him who, like himself, were willing to gamble security against the enjoyment of the challenge, Cord re-engineered and re-styled the Auburn and made it the first American stock car to do 100 m.p.h. by stopwatch. He was at the wheel when it broke the mark.

The glamorous Cord 810, put out in 1932, still has advocates as the best looking car ever to come from an American factory. And it was a top performer.

Its compact V-8 engine wasn't equaled in horsepower per pound of fuel delivered until Cadillac came out with a new motor in 1949.

The Cord 810 had a rounded streamlined body, disappearing headlights and flush taillamps, dashboard shift, step-down floor, no running boards and a sleek hard-top look. It also had a front-wheel drive which enabled it to pull out of corner skids more effectively than other cars.

It sold for $2,695 at a time when a Cadillac cost $1,895.

You could make a Cord speedometer hit 115 m.p.h. without too much trouble, but at least two special Duesenbergs turned out by the Cord people were capable of 145 m.p.h.

These were built for Clark Gable and Gary Cooper. You paid $8,500 for a Duesenberg, incidentally, and then all you got was the motor and chassis. The body came extra.

Auburn Corp. stock climbed spectacularly and its vast holdings were worth many millions at the start of the depression.

But by this time the automobiles he built were almost a sideline to Cord. He also solely owned or had controlling interests in American Airlines, the Stinson airplane factory, the Lycoming engine plant, several auto body factories and the New York Shipbuilding Corp., which built U. S. liners and Navy cruisers.

IN 1936, a year before his cars went off the market for good, Cord sold all of his major holdings for four million dollars. The depression was making it tougher and tougher to sell luxury autos and, besides, the challenge was over.

But Cord didn't retire. In the years that followed, he added to his fortune by investments in Los Angeles real estate and in factories producing aircraft parts, kiddie cars and small household appliances. He also acquired an all-music radio station in Los Angeles, a substantial block of Santa Fe Railroad stock and holdings in a number of other corporations.

Cord moved to Nevada in 1939, buying a 3,400-acre home ranch in Esmeralda County's Fish Lake Valley and an additional 30,000 acres of cattle land in the Elko and Lovelock areas.

He could have become a country gentleman at this point, but again he refused to retire. Only last year he and some partners bought a Utah uranium mine which today is rated the third richest in the nation.

"No one thing can hold me," says Cord. "There aren't enough days left in my life."

But his eyes are still on the future.

"I'd give anything to start over," he adds, "because kids today have far greater opportunities with electronics, atomic energy, exploration of space and all the other things in modern science."

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Beauty From 'Crazy Experiments'

By Ellen Saunders

HOW MANY TIMES have you wished you could preserve the short-lived beauty of a flower? Countless, no doubt. But you've probably never backed up your wish with the hard work which enabled Mrs. Leonard Back of 3319 San Francisco Ave., to transform the same desire into reality. Her method of dehydrating flowers in sand retains so much of the blossom's original color that her 5-year-old framed flower pictures appear at first glance to be still life paintings.

"I started to work on the problem with only the vague idea that I had once read that the American Indian had discovered a method of retaining color in flowers by baking them in sand," says Mrs. Back. "When research failed to clarify the subject I begged flowers from everyone to begin what my friends were eventually to call, 'those crazy experiments.'"

FOR A YEAR Mrs. Back pulled countless pans of scorched blossoms out of the oven before she discovered the exact amount of heat and the length of time needed to dehydrate the flowers to the extent that their natural color would not fade. Now she knows that small flowers must be baked under continuous low heat for from eight to 15 hours, while large ones such as stocks and delphiniums may require as long as two weeks of baking for more than eight hour periods daily. All the moisture in the flowers must be absorbed and since no two plants contain the same amount of water the only way one can actually tell when this state has been reached is to handle the blossoms. "When the petals feel like tissue paper," is Mrs. Back's explanation of how one knows when the processing is completed.

Preserved flowers, artificial fern enhance table top. Mrs. Back "rediscovered" flower process by experiment.

Don't think, however, that you can just pick some flowers from your garden, lay them in sand and meet with success. It isn't that simple. Freshly picked flowers process best, but if you want to use some blossoms from a favorite corsage perk them up with a night's stay in the refrigerator. With the exception of the pansy every flower must be taken apart petal by petal, otherwise it will not attain the degree of drying which will preserve its coloring. The petals are then placed in a large pan or a one-inch layer of clean white sand and covered with another layer of the same thickness.

ONLY TWO OF the more than 20 varieties of flowers with which Mrs. Back has experimented cannot be processed successfully. Orchids are too delicate to be handled and the wax-like beauty of a gardenia acquires a yellow tinge.

After the blossoms are dried comes the painstaking job of re-assembling and gluing each petal to the stem until the original flower takes shape. Only pansy stems can be processed;

Hell's Canyon to Stay Unspoiled

By Blaine Stubblefield

CONSTRUCTION of three authorized dams in the Hell's Canyon reach of the Snake River along the Idaho-Oregon border will leave nearly all of the main scenery and places of recreation along this deepest chasm on the western hemisphere just as they are now for its ever-increasing stream of visitors.

And recent rejection by the Senate appears to have ended the long controversy over the proposed federal high dam, although Idaho Power Co., which last winter was licensed by the Federal Power Commission to develop the site, has had nearly 1,000 men on the job for more than six months.

Two of the company dams are far upstream from Hell's Canyon main gorge and thus will have no effect on it. Oxbow Dam is 20 miles and Brownlee Dam around 30 miles above Kinney Creek Rapid, which is the upper gate of the principal defile.

THE COMPANY'S Hell Canyon Dam, not yet started, will be about midway in the main gorge, near Deep Creek and Eagle Bar, leaving the lower half of the main canyon below the dam virtually undisturbed.

Focal scenes are in the lower half of the awesome chasm. Most impressive of these is Hell Creek, a precipitous tributary on the Oregon side, only a few steps wide at the bottom, with sides rising almost vertically 2,000 feet. Hell Creek is 21 miles below Homestead, a village reached by roads from both Oregon and Idaho. Another mile downstream is the mouth of Starl Creek, where Battle Mountain rises 2,000 feet above the river on the Oregon side.

MONTHS ON THE MAIN highway in the upper half, Honey, Spring, Bark and Split Creeks — will be under 100 to 200 feet of water, but their main purpose will be to let the river empty itself of water, a half century of silt, brush, fisherman and hunters.

The big rapids between Homestead and Deep Creek, now traversed by whitewater boats carrying passengers, will live and flow and Hell's Canyon dam is completed, six to nine years from now.

Important to Hell's Canyon recreation seekers is the fact, barely known to the public, that two of the dams—Oxbow and Hell's Canyon—are run-of-the-river operations, which means the impounded pools will have no draw-down. The water level will vary only a foot or two—hence there'll be no muddy "high water" rings on the shore walls, no "low water" smells.

IDAHO POWER, under the terms of its FPC license, will provide with its own money camp and picnic grounds, overlooks, boating accommodations, and other recreation facilities at various places along the entire 93 miles of water impounded by the three dams. They have already set up $250,000 for studies of wild life and will invest large sums in installations for the improvement of fish resources.

The canyon is reached in about 100 miles of driving, from either Weiser and Council, Idaho, or Baker, Ore. Either way, it is necessary to travel two or three hours on dirt roads. Vacationers' headquarters is Cuprum (Latin for copper) village on the Idaho rim; the boat dock is at Homestead.

Set on a base of crisp salad greens and garnished with fresh fruits, this salad with baking powder biscuits, coffee will make a bridge luncheon hit.

COOKING

Fruit Salad for Bridge Luncheons

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

OUR MOTTO for warm weather cooking, both for the family and guests, is "keep it simple." And you'll find fruits of all kinds are able assistants. Cool and refreshing, they are satisfying and delicious.

So when it comes your turn to entertain the ladies at bridge we suggest bridge luncheon salads.

MAKE RICH minute-sized baking powder biscuits from your own recipe of mix. Before baking, top each with a sugar cube dipped in concentrated or fresh orange juice. As they bake the sugar and orange juice give them a crusty topping. Another labor-saving idea is to serve everything, including the coffee on pretty snack trays which do away with the need for saucers.

For your convenience, the bridge luncheon salads are featured elsewhere on this page.

Another fruit salad, which nicely complements buffet suppers, is molded cherry salad with sherry. It may be made in a ring mold and the center filled with melon balls and garnished with mint leaves.

Molded Cherry Salad With Sherry

- 2 pkgs. cream cheese
  - 1 No. 2 can Bing cherries, pitted
  - 2 pkgs. cherry-flavored gelatin
  - 2 cups boiling water
  - 1 cup sherry wine
  - 1 cup cherry juice
- Chill the cream cheese. Form into miniature balls and stuff into pitted cherries. Arrange stuffed cherries in bottom of fancy mold. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add sherry and cherry juice. Pour over cherries; chill until firm.

Minted and gingered prunes add much to any fruit salad, and the recipes for these and other suggested fruit salads follow:

Minted Prunes

Cover 3 cups prunes with water, add whole cloves and stick cinnamon and boil about 30 minutes. To 1 cup of cooking liquid from prunes, add ½ cup vinegar and 1 cup brown sugar. Boil 5 minutes. Add 10 to 12 drops oil of peppermint or ¼ teaspoon peppermint extract. Allow prunes to cool in mint syrup. Serve cold in salads or with meats. Makes about 1½ pints.

Gingered Prunes

Boil 3 cups prunes in 5 cups water 10 minutes. Cut 2 unpeeled lemons into thin slices and add to prunes with 2 cups granulated sugar and ½ cup finely sliced preserved ginger. Simmer about 45 minutes adding more water if needed. Makes about 1 quart.

Cheese Stuffed Pears

- 1 (3-ounce) pkg. cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons milk or cream
- ¼ cup ripe olives
- 1 tablespoon chopped green sweet pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimento
- Few grains salt
- 6 large fresh or canned pear halves
- Salad greens
- French dressing

Soften cheese with a fork and blend in milk. Cut olives from pits into large pieces. Blend olives, pepper, pimento and salt into cheese. Arrange pear halves, cut side up on salad greens and fill with cheese mixture. Serve with French dressing. Serves 6.

Tutti Frutti Salad

- 1 medium pineapple
- 2 oranges, peeled and sliced
- 3 bananas, halved lengthwise
- 1 large can peach halves, drained
- 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries
- 1 pint strawberries
- Salad greens
- 1 tablespoon mint jelly
- ¼ cup heavy cream, whipped

Cut pineapple into ½ inch slices. Remove outer peeling and core. Place orange slices on top of pineapple. Fill peach halves with blueberries. Hull strawberries. Arrange greens and fruit on salad plate. Whip jelly with a fork. Stir into 2 tablespoons of real mayonnaise and mix until well blended. Combine with remaining mayonnaise. Fold whipped cream gently into mixture until smooth. Serve with salad. Or serve salad with fresh mint mayonnaise. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

FRESH MINT MAYONNAISE—Blend ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon minced fresh mint leaves and ¼ teaspoon salt.

Kitchen Tip:

To Break Nut Meats quickly, place in paper bag and roll with rolling pin.

NEW YOSEMITE visitors actually know that its mighty granite guardian El Capitan was born when a contortion of the earth beneath the sea shook into view the spine of the Sierra Nevada, well padded with broad valleys, low hills and swift streams.

About 200 million years ago Yosemite National Park, some 250 miles north of Long Beach, was a shallow arm of the Pacific. Subsequent upheavals, river erosion and glacial activity carved deeper valleys. Waterfalls poured riotously over steep precipices. Twice this area was inundated by the Pacific.

El Capitan grew from a rounded hill 700 feet high into the largest exposed monolith in the world, about 8,000 feet above sea level. Three times higher than the Empire State building, twice as high as the Rock of Gibraltar, it stands guard over the entrance to Yosemite Valley which many thousands of years ago was a deep lake five and a half miles long.

Gradually the lake disappeared, trees grew and lush grass carpeted the valley floor. Later the valley became the stronghold of the Grizzly Bear (u-za-mai-ti) tribe of Indians, so named because one of their clan killed a

Geologists and Indian legend agree that El Capitan had a very small beginning. Long, long ago, according to legend, two small boys (or bear cubs—legends do not agree) went swimming in a stream in the Valley of Ahwah-nee, Yosemite, on a hot summer day. Tired of play they climbed onto a large rock and went to sleep. As they slept the rock grew higher and higher into the sky. Fleecy white clouds gave them a blanket.

They slept peacefully year after year while their mother searched frantically for them. A high-flying crane located them and returned to the valley with the news. The excited, sympathetic animals organized a rescue party. The mouse, the fox, the raccoon, the coyote, the deer and the bear all tried to climb the slippery, granite wall of the rock-chief. They all failed.

At last Tu-tok-a-nu-la, the measuring worm, started the perilous ascent. Inching its way on its many legs to the top, it succeeded after many months in guiding the boys safely back to their grateful mother. The Indians named the rock Tu-tok-a-nu-la, the measuring-worm stone.

When friends marvel at Mrs. Back's willingness to devote so much skill, patience and time to retain the loveliness of a flower, she reminds them of Keat's famous lines, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

"My mother lived by those words," she says, "and taught her children to do the same."

all others are too bulky.

Many of the hundreds of flower pictures Mrs. Back has created for her family and friends have been made from blossoms which have held a special significance for them. In fact, Mrs. Back likes nothing better than to steal a few rosebuds from a bridal bouquet and later surprise the young couple with a framed flower picture as a memento for their home. Many people who used to try to preserve a few flowers from a funeral wreath by pressing them between the pages of a book, now ask Mrs. Back to turn them into a lasting remembrance.

THE FLOWERS ARE always mounted on plain wallpaper of varying shades since Mrs. Back has found that this shows up their beauty to best advantage. Whenever possible antique frames with beveled glass are used. Ferns used are not the real thing—they are artificial.

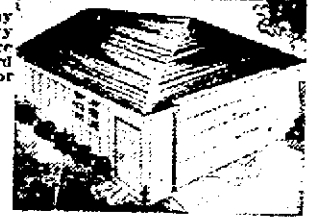

This ingenious housewife has found many other uses for her hobby. She transforms ordinary birthday and get well cards into distinctive greetings by decorating them with a few blossoms and in the same manner creates novel place cards for dinner parties. An ordinary tray is converted into a most welcome Christmas gift by mounting clusters of the recipient's favorite flowers on wallpaper and gluing them to a card-board back which is then fastened underneath the glass top of the tray.

He Clowned His Way to Stardom

Chucko the Clown in full make-up and ready for an appearance on TV. His career began most auspiciously.

Here's Chucko (Charles Runyon) out of costume and enjoying good music with son, Denny, who started it all.

Runyon begins the metamorphosis which changes him into a clown—first comes greasepaint, then the costume.

By Terry Vernon
Independent Press-Telegram
Television-Radio Columnist

WHEN OUR daughter was four years old we thought it would be nice to have the Merry-Go-Ride company stage her birthday party and entertain the little friends who were invited. Columnist Harry Fulton had told us how to contact him. So we called Charles Runyon and made the date.

Little did we know that Chucko the Clown was destined to become a star on TV with his own KABC-TV show . . . fact is, he didn't even mention such a possibility while we chatted between stunts and rides at the birthday party.

But a star he is, especially to the smaller children who love his cartoon shows, his funny balloon tricks and his painted face with the clown costume to set it off.

ACTUALLY CHUCKO was born out of dire necessity. The Runyon's son, Denny, had a birthday coming up and the parents were perplexed as to just what to do about it.

"Even when you're serious, you're a clown," said Mildred, "so I'll fix you up." And that is just what she did. Chalk, lipstick and some red and white fabric turned Runyon into Chucko the Clown and his career was launched.

This led to the neighbors borrowing Chucko for their children's parties, and the possibilities of this type of life appealed to the Runyans. So they invested in some little merry-go-round horses, an old pickup truck, some paint and other materials and rigged up a "merry-go-bile." This is a merry-go-round that operates on electricity (furnished by the householder) and has its own music system. Chucko drives it from party to party and has done four or five a day many times.

AS HE GREW more and more popular Chucko kept improving his act. He discovered the secret of fashioning peculiar animals out of balloons, he learned to hold the attention of children with stories, acrobatics and magic. He read every book he could find concerning clowns and entertaining.

"This being a clown is a serious business," he told us, "especially to the children. One wrong word or gesture and you can lose your audience. I'm very careful never to offend the children. I just try to keep them attentive and laughing. That way I delight the parents too, for they have no worries."

Charles Runyon was born in San Diego but came to Los Angeles when he was three years old. He attended Inglewood and South Gate High Schools and then went into the National Guard. On Dec. 11, 1941, he was stationed at Pearl Harbor and has often remarked since that "these Japanese bandits weren't clowning."

SOUTHLAND HOMES

House of Two Faces, Two Moods

From a high vantage point, the home of James and Jeanette Reid surveys Portuguese Bend and the blue Pacific as far as the eye may care to roam.

By Eileen Ball

A VIEW as beautifully breath-taking as the one which "went with" the lot James and Jeanette Reid bought in Portuguese Bend can be understandably frustrating. Its magnitude is overwhelming, with an unbroken vista of blue Pacific waters stretching as far as the eye can see. In planning a house for such a site it seems tragic to lose the view from any room.

So, such a house becomes a "sight-seer," arranging itself in such a way that the view is framed in as many windows as possible without its plan losing sense.

The house the Reids built at 40 Seacove Dr. has settled itself congenially on its bluff site where it has taken as much advantage of the Pacific panorama as is practical. Of modest design, it in no way tries to outdo the spot in which it finds itself. Submissive to the natural grandeur of its surroundings, it clings close to the earth among beds of vibrant geraniums, achieving a tranquility that is effectively contrasted by the restless background of the sea.

THE HOUSE HAS a comprehensive use of glass that faces the ocean with frank interest. Yet the structure is agreeably "two faced," for some of its rooms—necessarily out of seascape range—face an entirely different picture composed of pool and patio.

Widely divergent are the two moods thus produced—the "front" of the house deriving an almost ethereal quality from the infinite view; the other part assuming a more intimate personality that stems from the sun-flooded sheltered patio.

Guests arrive at the Reid home by means of a driveway that leads down a rather sharp incline to the cliff-side lot. They alight in a car port and enter a patio that is protected by a high grapestake fence. Inside the patio, lush planting beds are terraced so that the vividly colored blossoms and dark green tropical foliage can be reflected in the pool. The house, with its attached garage and bedroom wing, provides a "U" into which the patio extends.

adjoins the den on the left and the living area straight ahead, with wide hallways fanning out

on both sides toward the bedroom and the kitchen areas. At no place in the entry, den, living or dining area is there a right-angled corner. Thus the rooms gain interest by their physical proportions as well as their decor.

View is also a feature of the Reids' kitchen-dinette where wide panels of glass look out on the seascape. Attractive divider sets off the area.

Within "U" formed by house, space is found for pool and patio, the latter sheltered by overhang of roof.

Sand pink was chosen for the entry walls. Flagstone used for the living room fireplace has been extended into the entry where it forms a planter.

Eggshell semi-opaque draperies woven with a fine gold thread pull across the extensive glass panels on occasions when the desire for coziness supercedes that for grandeur. A gold-flecked cocoa sofa stands before the windows and is served by a low cocktail table of pale birch.

CREATING A FEELING of solidarity and warmth is an open fireplace of flagstone, the buff tones of which are beautifully reflected in the browns, beiges and cocoas used throughout the area. An extended raised hearth of stone is accessoried with occasional pillows in champagne, cocoa and sage green. A leather chair of dusty green stands near the fireplace and faces the view.

Exposed ceiling beams are of Douglas fir stained to match mahogany paneling of the walls. Valances and unpaneled wall areas are painted a warm, rich cocoa.

A glass wall at one end of the room slides open to a terrace covered with a cantilevered roof. The terrace overlooks the rolling lawn that, together with bordering bands of bright pink geraniums, seemingly goes off into infinity at the cliff's edge.

A DINING SET of bleached oak occupies a space between the living room and the kitchen-dinette, the latter portion of which merges with the living

tone established in the carpet.

THE DEN IS CARPETED identically to the living room. A sliding glass door opens to the terrace and paneled walls of mahogany seclude hi-fi component parts, a built-in television and a bar. So painstakingly fitted are the folding panels of mahogany that conceal these features that, when they are closed, there is no hint whatever of their function.

A large angular flagstone fireplace opens through to the living room and features a raised seat-height hearth. The den doubles as a guest room with a pair of green tweed-covered day beds that meet a large blond lamp table in one corner.

The house has two bedrooms, one overlooking the ocean and one basking in the reflected sunlight of the patio pool. The former is sage green with pink accessories while the latter has a complexion comprised of sand-wood, terra cotta and lime green.

Flight From Reality

ALCOHOLISM takes its victims from every social strata of life. The poor excuse their weakness as an escape from poverty, and the rich console themselves with liquor because of the responsibilities thrust on them by their positions in society. Each and every alcoholic has a personal—and to them—overwhelming reason to flee reality.

"Come Fill the Cup" by Rosalind Wade (Pantheon, $3.75) describes the life of a young English divorcee who turns to the oblivion of alcohol when she loses her husband to another woman. Although Hester Revell has a comfortable income, a pleasant home and a fine young son she is incapable of adjusting herself to her lonely life or beginning a new one and seeking new friends. Instead, she dwells on her past happiness, and drinks more and more so that she can numb her mind to her loneliness and despair.

Soon, her dreadful secret becomes known to her friends and family, and Hester is persuaded to take "cures" which are as shocking as they are painful.
They do nothing to relieve her of her problem. When Hester's sister turns from her in revulsion, and her friends give up any hope for a cure, Hester begins her descent into degradation and poverty. The shocking picture of this once beautiful woman scrubbing floors in a squalid hotel in return for alcohol is appalling.

Hester is helped back to sanity by a group of former alcoholics who understand her problem. And with these people to guide her she begins her struggle towards a better life. But the price of her former degradation is heavy. She has lost her health, her youth and her

ONE OF THE MOST prolific authors of his time, Zane Grey wrote two and often three books a year. His output was so cop-ious that his publishers could not keep up with him and his backlog of unpublished stories gathered dust. Since his death in 1939, one of these yarns has been issued each year. This week his 57th novel "Stranger From the Tonto" (Harper, $2.75) appeared. Set in the beautiful Utah country above the Grand Canyon which Grey knew so intimately, it contains all the ingredients readers like — a mysterious cache of gold, a captive girl, a band of desperate outlaws. The hero is red-blooded, romantic and fearless, the villain as ornery as you'll find, the heroine beautiful, loving and pure. You'll agree that it is one of Grey's best.—F.T.K.

A MOST GAY BOOK is "Weddings in the Family" by Dale Fife (Farrar, Straus & Cudahy,
$3.50). Quite uninhibited, this Alsatian group of characters goes through delightful and stimulating experiences dealing with love and marriage and resettlement in a strange and interesting America. Mama does her best (and it's good enough!)
to see that the parlor wall is covered with wedding pictures.
The sprightly misadventures are due to Mama, in most part, and the book will carry the reader along in a hurry.

WHEN CROOKED CREEK
overflowed and Grandma Sykes' house was flooded, she took off her shoes, tied the leather thongs in a bowknot and strung them around her neck. Then she sat back, and smoked her pipe. She sat out trouble.
When Preacher Prescott was called upon to speak at the funeral of a man who had broken ALL the Commandments, he said simply "You knowed Charlie. I knowed Charlie. Let's bury him." The story of two generations of people in Crooked Creek. In the deep South is told feelingly by Hoke Norris, Chicago newspaper reporter born in North Carolina, in "All the Kingdoms of Earth" (Simon and Schuster, $3.50).

"FROGMAN" IS THE story of the underwater exploits of Commander Crabb, who has recently aroused so much speculation in the press because of his mysterious disappearance last April 19 in England's Portsmouth Harbor. The Russians accused Crabb of spying on their cruiser "Ordzhonididze," which was anchored in the harbor with two attendant destroyers. The uproar was intensified because the cruiser was the ship which had brought Marshal Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev to British shores. A close friend of Commander Crabb, Marshall Pugh, has written "Frogman" (Scribner's, $3.50) not only to immortalize Crabb, but also to tell the dramatic story of the feats of the brave men who risk their lives in underwater warfare.—
F.T.H.

PERHAPS selfishness is the great destroyer of happiness in modern living, and "Try Giving Yourself Away" by David Dunn
(Prentice Hall, $2.95) is a compact bit of advice from a man who had tried it and found it served his own needs. If we can live with friendship in mind, we can perhaps live more gracefully and with more purpose. It is lack of purpose which stretches nerves and brings on boredom. But we are never bored by a friend, so try and make more of them.
This book will assist you to do so.

"All right, wise guy, let's get it ALL on... Major Ernest Newton!"

THERE'S NO SURE way to get a deep-down belly laugh than to read "Grab Your Socks" (Ballantine, 35c), an album of more than 100 riotously funny cartoons for and about men facing peacetime life in the new army. The cartoonist is Shel Silverstein, who practiced his art for two years with Pacific Stars and Stripes. The foreword is by Bill Mauldin.

NEW PAPERBACK originals (never before published in book form) you may like: "Murder in the Wind," a driving story of suspense by John D. MacDonald (Dell, 25c); "The Girl in 304," a woman of the streets, love, and death in the night, by Harold R.
Daniels (Dell, 25c); "Fight for Control," all about buying stocks and the stock market, by David Karr (Ballantine, 35c); "The Human Angle," 8 science-fiction tales by William Tenn (Ballantine, 35c); "Frontier," 6 lusty stories of the old west, by Marvin De Vries (Ballantine, 35c);
"The Cruiser," novel of a fighting ship and her men, by Warren Tute (Ballantine, 50c).

A SPLENDID BOOK for the most distinguished library is "Stories From Shakespeare" (World, $3.75), in which Mar-chette Chute (she also wrote "Shakespeare of London") re-tells some of the greatest tales in English literature in scintillating, easily-understood language that characterizes today's most effective writers. Upon the zephyrs of her breezy style readers from age 12 to 80 will capture a fascinating new interest in the Bard of Avon. There are 36 tales, classified in three groups: Comedies, Tragedies, and Histories.

THE SUSPENSE NOVEL has an important following, and these readers who like their heroes and villains out in the open will favor "Harm Intended" by Richard Parker (Scribner's, $3). Edward Hawks wins 20,000 pounds in an English football pool, and from then on he and his family are subjected to a gradually increasing pressure of evil until at last a good vanishes and Hawks is subjected to the terror of a man in a mask. The two halves of the story are perhaps the most interesting and exciting in the book. The first half is a mystery and the second half is a thriller.
The whole is a splendid story with many new twists to it.

COVERING CRUELTY with pity, the conventional formula Scolding on the tails of Cienwell's reign in "My Lord Mon-leigh" by Jan Cox Speas (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.75). Laced through the novel is the glowing love story of Monleigh, champion of the Royalist forces with a price on his head, and Anne Lindsay, companion to the ailing sister of a covenant. Anne's love is tested when she is faced with the decision to stay in comparative comfort with the hated cov-enanters, or to journey with Monleigh on his danger-ridden path against Cromwell's forces.

THESE TIMES SEEM to try parents. Not that in all generations there have not been moments when a mother or a father despaired of raising anything but a monster. But various social changes have brought evils into light which complicated parent-child relationships.
"Time Is the Piper" by Maurine
W. Sellstrom, Ph.D. (Sherwood Pub. Co. Los Angeles, $3.50) is filled with practical suggestions for parents who feel they need suggestions as their children change and become unresponsive to ordinary treatment of problems. Getting the viewpoint of the child is a beginning, and from there on in honesty of purpose will serve well.

HOW TO Fasten Pictures and Other Objects to Plaster Walls of Living Room

1. FOR HEAVY OBJECTS (such as a cabinet), use wood screws driven through the plaster and into the studs. Make sure screws you use are heavy and long enough to support weight. Try to run them into center of studs.

2. LOCATE STUDS quickly with a wall dowser. Hold it to the plaster and give wall thump with your fist, as shown. When over stud, steel balls in tube move only slightly.

3. FLANGE-TYPE fastener fans out in back of wall (top) after you insert it through proper size hole and turn the screw in the center. Remove screw and slip it through fixture you'll hang. Then run screw back into bolt.

5. BRIDGE STUDS with a piece of wood when you hang heavy objects between them. Use screws to hold boards to studs and object you'll fasten to it. If edges of the board will show, counterbore screw holes and fill with water putty after you run screws in. When the putty hardens, sand board smooth and paint it color of the wall. (Lines show studs.)

6. HANG PICTURES and many other light objects on plaster walls with regular picture hooks. They are available in many sizes. Long, thin brad slips into hook at an angle, increasing the weight it can hold. Drive brad through "X" of cellophane tape to keep plaster from chipping and cracking.

Glamorize Bathing Girls

By the Shutterbug

LONG BEACH'S lengthy shoreside season makes for huge production of snaps of wives, girl friends and sisters by the sea in bathing suits. Granted the gals aren't professional models or actresses whose faces and figures usually adorn the pin-ups, still there's a lot we amateur photographers can do to attain oomph and appeal in our pictures.

In posing, the female figure is most appealing when composed of graceful curves so avoid action in which the limbs make harsh lines or sharp angles. Beware of body distortion in which a part of the subject looms up disproportionately because it extends closer to the camera.

TO KEEP A SLIM waist, let the elbow or arms cross the body a little above or below but never just at the waistline. When leaning on an arm or leg, let the weight be supported on the limbs furthest from the

Have a separate look at the hands. Fingers should hold an object or curl gracefully and hands look best in a three-quarter plane or edgewise.

Good props are an important factor in good pictures. In color pictures a beach ball, umbrella or robe can add a bright accent, as long as they don't dominate the scene. At a beach there are many natural props like sand, surf, rocks and driftwood.

OUR HOME-GROWN models shouldn't hold a pose too long because tenseness in expression or body action is usually visible. Instead, make all preliminary shooting preparations. Then have the subject go through the action several times leading up to the selected pose . . . and hold it for a second. Shoot the picture at this peak of action and you're likely to capture spontaneity in both expression and body action.

A common mistake of most snapshooters is the little thought they give to a disturbing background. How can any glamor gal compete with the clutter of most crowded beaches and pools? You might shoot with the lens wide open and critically focussed so as to throw everything else behind her out of focus. It's easier to seek a quiet spot with a simple background. Or make your own simple background by shooting down to get all sand or water; or shoot up to get the sky.

TILT THE FACE UP and turn it away slightly for better facial illumination. For more interesting lighting effects, try sidelighting and backlighting. Since they also add more shadow areas, these types of pictures require extra exposure to compensate. The increase may range from one-half stop to two full stops depending on the degree of backlighting.

LONG BEACH CAMERA Guild will open the new club year with a black and white print competition at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. THREE FILMS will be shown at the Long Beach Cinema Club meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Houghton Park clubhouse. They will be "An Incident at the Beach" by Mitchell Dion, "How Much Land Does a Man Need?" by Hans Zimmer, and "Frustration" by Warren Nash. Visitors are welcome.

Schools Keep Pace With the Cradle

trict to the other while mothers staged a parade through the streets waving banners which read: "Vote for Our Children."

THE BETTER SCHOOLS Committee, which planned the strategy in behalf of the bond issue, was a "select" group of 10,000 citizens, all of them working through block after block of the district.

The product was easy to sell. Three times between 1945 and 1950, the people went to the polls and voted yes for bond issues totaling $40,200,000.

It wasn't enough.

School statisticians watched the enrollments mount and shook their heads in amazement. Without further funds for schools, the district would have to put 15,500 boys and girls on half-day sessions in 1956—29,500 in 1958—41,500 in 1960.

THE CONCLUSION was inevitable. The District needed still another bond issue—and a big one.

"Will the public stand for it?" asked a worried board member. "The question," replied Newcomb, "is whether the public will stand for the half-day sessions."

In 1954 the school board proposed a $32,500,000 bond issue. Superintendent Newcomb's appeal to the public had the logic of a syllogism:

"WE'RE GOING TO decide on election day whether we'll have rationed education — half-day school — in this district.

"Rationed education breeds delinquency.

"Delinquency costs money.

"We can educate a high school youngster for about $300 or $400 a year. It costs $3,000 a year to care for him in a penal institution.

"This district is at a crossroads."

A decade of preparation paid off on election day. The people took the right road.

TODAY LONG BEACH Unified School District forms a sharp contrast on the educational landscape.

Across the nation school bells daily summon 32,000,000 boys and girls into schools which can decently serve but three-fourths that number. Five hundred thousand children go to school only half the day, and scores have never had desks to call their own. Such is America's school shortage.

Can it be whipped?

Here's First All-America Camellia

By Walter Finch

CINDERELLA, a spectacularly beautiful new camellia japonica, is the All-America Camellia Selection for 1957, the first camellia ever to be so honored.

The All-America Award is the highest distinction attainable and is given only to the best new camellia. To achieve this top recognition, Cinderella won against the finest new varieties developed in the United States and abroad in extensive three-year competitive trials conducted by All-America Camellia Selections.

Cinderella is noted for its flower formation, which is unique and quite different from that of camellias in commerce generally. Development from the long pointed buds progresses slowly and the flower unfurls in a manner notably distinct from the conventional rose bud opening.

Each rose pink petal, veined with deep crimson and bordered with a marble white edging, is crinkly textured and wrinkled almost like a new baby's skin. Petal edges are notched and laciniated or fimbriated.

THE FLOWER FORM and coloring is remindful of an old-fashioned Valentine with many layers of lacy ruffles. The blooms of this new variety usually average about four inches in width and three inches in depth and are produced freely upon a vigorous and stocky plant. The healthy plants bloom well at an early age, producing buds which are well spaced over the plant and are not clustered.

Cinderella possesses greater hardiness than most camellias. The plants suffered little damage during the severe killing freeze which struck the Pacific Northwest during November 1955, when no previous frosts had occurred to induce dormancy and when even the Douglas firs showed severe needle drop. Reporting upon two test plants of Cinderella, the director of the AACS Trial Garden, located at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore., found only one tip burned on both plants and that, although flower buds quite naturally were gone, growth buds were 90 per cent good. Cinderella plants will be made available through leading nurserymen.

All-America Camellia Selections, known also as AACS, was established in 1950-51 and incorporated in 1952 as a non-profit organization, by a group of America's leading hybridizers and nurserymen. Patterned after but entirely independent of other All-America testing associations, its primary function is to provide for the scientific pre-testing of new camellia varieties and to encourage only the introduction of those of quality and distinction, garden proved and sure to perform well anywhere camellias may be grown in the

First All-America Camellia under new award system is Cinderella (above), red-veined pink and white-edged.

United States.

ALL-AMERICA Camellia Selections enables the public to know which are the best new camellias. The ever-increasing popularity of camellias, favorites for generations, is at an all-time peak and has led to the haphazard introduction each year of vast numbers of new seedlings and sports, usually at prohibitive prices. A few of these newcomers are very good but all too many are neither different nor better than existing kinds and, until now, neither the public nor the nurserymen have had any reliable way to determine which are worthy.

Garden Tips

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Vegetables thrive in the Long Beach area during the fall and winter months. About 20 varieties can be seeded now.

Mums will react favorably to regular applications of water during the next few weeks. You can feed the plants up to the time that the buds show color. Then terminate all feeding but continue watering at intervals of perhaps once every 10 days.

You can still expect plenty of warm weather. Perhaps this is the time to repair your garden hose or, if badly worn out, obtain a new one. The plastic, lightweight hoses weigh only a few pounds, making watering an easy task.

We hear a great deal these days about oak root fungus. There are many kinds of fungus in the soil but a very small percentage is the dreaded oak root fungus. This fungus usually originates where oak trees have been taken out and the roots have been left in the ground to decompose.

Best remedy where there is a reliable diagnosis of genuine oak root fungus, is to bare the roots of any trees or plants growing in the area and leave them exposed to the sun and air for three or four weeks. Then spray the roots with a safe, strong fungicide. Replace the soil with either new, clean soil, or old soil that has been thoroughly disinfected. A product combining ether and copper is excellent for this purpose. It is advisable to intermingle the replacement soil with a little agricultural sulphur and iron sulphate.

Winter Sweet Peas

Elsewhere this feat is looked upon as a miracle of the horticultural world. The time to start sowing seed is right now; by planting at intervals of every few weeks, a succession of bloom for weeks at a time is assured.

There is no real secret concerned with growing sweet peas in the middle of winter in this area. A deep soil, plenty of plant food and the right selection of seed are the bare essentials. But the seed is all-important.

ORDINARY OR summer-flowering sweet peas will not prosper during the fall, winter or early spring.

Winter-flowering peas, often identified as early-flowering, have the capacity for blooming when the days are cold and when grey skies, accompanied by a lack of sunshine, are prevalent. The winter-flowering strains have proved exceedingly valuable in the florist trade and many local cut flower growers plant this type exclusively.

SOILS IN WHICH sweet peas are to be planted should be thoroughly prepared in advance. Turn the existing soil over to a depth of about 18 inches. Sweet peas like a deep, well prepared soil.

The seed bed should be kept damp until planting time. Plant the seed about one inch deep and from three to four inches apart. If prize-winning flowers are desired the plants should be thinned out to perhaps seven or eight inches. But for profusion of bloom, which is what is usually desired, a closer spacing will prove advisable. As the seedlings grow, the depression should gradually be filled in until almost even with the surface. Leave just a slight depression to catch the water.

SWEET PEAS PRODUCE a vine-like plant and the stems require a suitable support or trellis. Garden supply stores now stock a trellis (it looks like a fishnet) made especially for training sweet peas.

Sweet peas should be irrigated and not sprinkled. They are fairly heavy drinkers.

Sweet peas have, comparatively speaking, voracious appetites. Liquid fertilizer or a well-balanced commercial food should be applied about once every 14 days when the buds start to appear.

By Bob Gilmore

PET PARADE

An Obedient Dog Is a Good Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

MANY PEOPLE have expressed a wish to obedience train their dogs, yet because of various reasons are not able to attend regular classes. Some of these persons shrink from trying to train their own dogs because they feel that only professional dog trainers know how to work with dogs, or they feel their dogs are too old and settled to be trained.

The truth is, fine as these classes are and invaluable for entering dogs in obedience trials, much of the training can be done at home. In fact, even in a class, the owner is part of the team with the dog. And a dog is seldom too old to learn. Usually obedience lessons are started when the puppy is from 6 to 8 months old, but an older dog, say 2 years old, is right in his prime for training.

THE SYSTEM of dog training is simple and unchanging. Praise the pet lavishly when he does things right. When he gets on the wrong track, some shaming and scolding may be in order, but as a rule ignore his mistakes and keep working with him. The slip-chain collar will guide him shortly into knowing what is expected of him.

Don't consider the slip-chain collar or "chocker collar" as a cruel item. In the words of Carl Spitz, noted trainer and obedience judge, the dog merely finds this collar "inconvenient when he doesn't do his lessons correctly."

DOGS LOVE the attention they get when being trained so long as the lessons are pleasurable. Never make them long and "grinding" and never turn them into sessions of scolding, shouting, badgering or cursing. Do not cram all his lessons down his throat at once, but if a command is made, the pet should be made to carry it out. Teach one lesson at a time, and interrupt it occasionally with fun and frolic.

Be patient. Some dogs may be brighter than others, but some may be fairly slow in catching on.

AFTER A DOG or puppy is acquainted with his owner and new home, training him to come when called should be his first obedience lesson. In an inviting but firm tone, call the dog by name and say, "Come!" If he ignores the summons, drop to a kneeling position, clap hands and call him. When he comes, praise him highly.

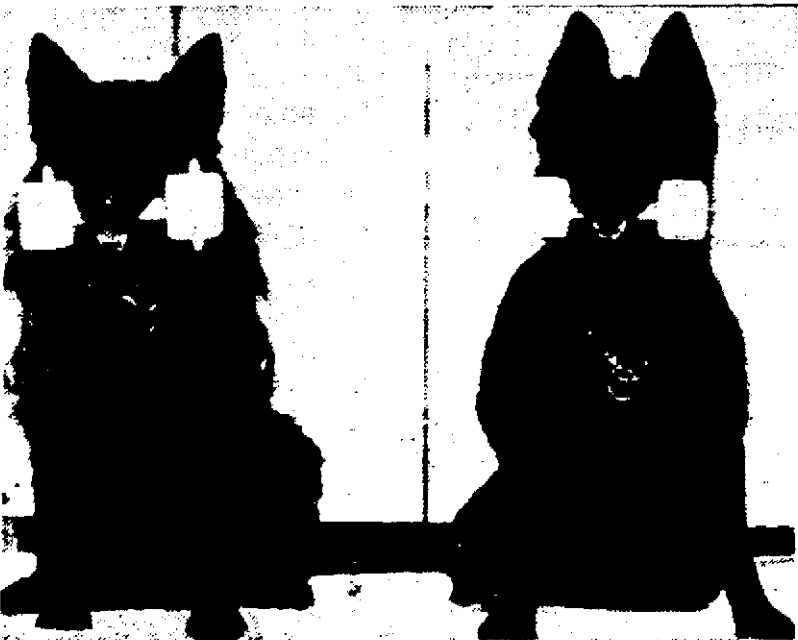

Obtain a longe (a rope about 25 feet long) and attach it to the dog's collar. Let the pet run out to full length, give the rope a sharp tug, and command,

"Come!" Repeat until the dog obeys. Then start walking with him. If he goes south, go north and tug sharply when the line is taut, commanding, "Come!" (A sharp tug does not mean a vicious one.)

A LONGE SERVES several purposes. It helps teach the dog to come upon command. It will get him in a receptive mood to accept a short leash. It will also let him know that he should never stray far from his master. If he spends enough time with the longe lessons, one day he will be ready to go on excursions and will know that he is not to wander far; unless, of course, he has since been trained to retrieve. Even then, the lessons learned on the longe will prompt him to want to come back.

Watch for more dog training lessons which will appear at the conclusion of future Pet Parade articles.

MIRAMAR HOTEL in Santa Monica will be the setting of the Beverly-Riviera Kennel Club dog show and obedience trial Sept. 15-16.

Alert, well-trained dogs are these Schipperkes, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Jones of Encinitas.

ERNEST GLASER
That Coat Is RED!
ALWAYS on the lookout for something new to tantalize his patrons, Ernest Glaser has come up with something entirely different in the sea food department.

The continental menu of Glaser's beautiful Chandelier Restaurant, 4205 Atlantic Ave., now lists a gourmet's delight called Deviled Tiny Chilean Lobster
Tails Au Gratin. These remarkable little lobsters, imported from Chile, are unusually delicious. Each patron receives approximately 20 of them (they're about the size of diminutive shrimp). They're served for $2.75 on a dinner which includes onion soup or crisp green salad with choice of dressing;
baked potato, continental breads, sweet (unsalted) butter and choice of beverage.

The Caterer to Kings (Glaser acquired the name while serving several monarchs in Europe in the 1930s) has also added a new and most reasonably priced
New York cut steak to his menu.
Called the Continental, it's a beauty marinated in garlic oil and spices—and then charcoal-broiled. It's $3.50 with the same dinner items listed previously.

ALWAYS POPULAR are Glaser's flaming sword specialties, served in the grand Louis XV manner which causes heads to turn as the waiters march across the dining room holding the brilliant weapons aloft. Among the flaming entrees are royal squab chicken, $3.10, TV
Chef Mike Roy's Lambkabab,
$3.25, and the Sirloin Steak
Chandelier, $3.95. Glaser's flaming desserts are also palate pleasers. His banana flambe (bananas flamed over chocolate ice cream) is marvelous.

The Chandelier has a lively continental atmosphere, created by hostesses in stunning costumes, strolling violinist Sid Bruszer and, last but not least,
Glaser himself who often wears a flaming red coat. Featured nightly at the grand piano is amazingly talented Bela Malcsiner, Hungarian composer who has scored many motion pictures.

Open every day, the Chandelier features Parisian buffet luncheons daily except Sunday.
Sunday dinners are served from 4 p.m. on.
